WAY CLEARED FOR APPROVAL OF RAIL POOL

Qualified Acceptance of Emergency Plan Is Favored.

I. C. C. SAID TO FAVOR BIG NATIONAL FUND

Resolution of Executives at Atlantic City Is Before Hoover.

By LAWRENCE SULLIVAN.

Qualified acceptance of the Interstate Commerce Commission's emergency revenue plan by the railway executives at Atlantic City yesterday has paved the way for application of the rate pool before December 1, in the opinion of Government officials in close touch with the railway credit situation.

Despite the unwillingness of the managers to throw the surcharge collections into a great national pool, as suggested by the commission last Tuesday, their counterproposal — to establish a special loan fund from which the weaker roads might borrow—is expected to prove acceptable to the commission.

The qualifications offered by the American Association of Railway Executives relate principally to the accounting and legal problems of administering the plan. In every important detail, it is understood, the resolution of the railway executives embodies the administrative plan outlined to President Hoover earlier in the week by Daniel Willard, president of the Baltimore & Ohio system.

To Present Program.

A subcommittee of the railway executives' organization will present the modified program to the Interstate Commerce Commission next week.

In a formal statement, the association said:

"The Association of Railway Executives * * * interprets the decision as a call by the commission on the railroads to help stabilize railroad credit by a cooperative and united effort, the means for which the order proposes to provide by an increase of specified rates. The method suggested by the commission contemplates the formation by the executives of a plan, to be submitted to it for its approval, to carry into effect this cooperative effort.

"In considering the plan, the executives will examine the opportunity of organizing their own agency, to administer the proceeds of the increase in rates announced by the commission in such manner as to accomplish the helpful purposes of the commission and with its approval.

"A committee was appointed to confer with the commission with the purposes of securing a more definite understanding of its views and to suggest certain modifications of some of the proposals made by it."

The executives' plan is calculated to accomplish all the purposes of the I. C. C. project, but without an actual pooling of income. Instead, each road will retain all its own income intact, but the stronger roads will underwrite the loan pool, to which those carriers whose credit is threatened by prevailing low income and depressed security values, may turn for emergency funds.

The terms of such loans, and the plans for repaying them, will vary according to the needs of the borrowing lines, thus providing a flexibility of operation which many railway officials feared might not have been achieved in the original plan.

It is contemplated that the Interstate Commerce Commission's views concerning the needs of the borrowing lines shall be closely followed in the administration of the pool. Final authority in approving advances, however, shall rest with the officers of the emergency organization, which is to be patterned generally after the recently organized National Credit Corporation.

Based on Pool.

The rail executives' decision against the direct rate pool was based upon

Dancer Convicted Of Wife's Murder

Roy Schuster Wounded Her Lawyer Before Killing Mate.

New York, Oct. 22 (A.P.).—Roy Schuster, 27 years old, dancing instructor, was convicted tonight of second degree murder in connection with the death of his wife, Amy. Mrs. Schuster was killed last May 2 in the office of her attorney, Israel Siegel, who was wounded in the arm before she was shot.

Schuster collapsed shortly after hearing the verdict but was revived and taken to Tombs Prison.

The killing occurred, testimony given at the trial disclosed, when Mrs. Schuster threatened to have her husband jailed for failure to pay alimony pending her suit for separation. Schuster pleaded temporary insanity. The verdict carries a penalty of not less than twenty years imprisonment.

Cyprus in Rebellion Against British Rule

Four Warships Will Arrive From Crete Today as Climax to Battle Between Populace With Stones and Police Armed With Pistols.

Larnaka, Island of Cyprus, Oct. 22 (A.P.).—A strange drama of racial and national passion that reaches back to the heroes of ancient Greece is being enacted tonight here on this little Levantine Island once sacred to Aphrodite, goddess of love.

The climax will come tomorrow with the arrival of four British warships from Crete and of airplanes bringing British soldiers from Egypt.

Tonight the island populace hopes to bring about union with Greece, to which Cyprus was bound of old.

Since dusk yesterday most of the island has been in the throes of mob rule which followed upon weeks of resentment against an imperial order in council imposing a reorganization of the tariff which the legislative council previously had rejected.

Last night, after addressing a large meeting at Nicosia, several members of the council led a mob to government house to present their resignations and to demand union with Greece.

The mob rushed the guard and stoned the building, breaking windows and tiles. Six automobiles, including the cars of the governor and of police, were burned and finally the building itself was ignited and burned to the ground.

The police, after seeing several of their fellows injured by thrown stones, fired into the crowd and ten or twelve persons were wounded. The crowd fled to the town and the guards vainly tried to save some of the governor's personal belongings and the valuable government house art treasures.

A detachment of Royal Welch Fusiliers was dispatched from their summer station on Mount Troodos by motor lorry. It took them until dawn to traverse 50 miles of steep zigzag roads.

Meanwhile the spirit of revolt spread to every town and village in the island. Detachments of fusiliers were sent to Fumagasta, where women and children were evacuated to ships in the harbor.

Cairo, Egypt, Oct. 22 (A.P.).—British troops were rushed by sea and air tonight to the ancient Isle of

ARREST MAY CLEAR LEGATION RUM CASE

Cunningham and Talley Day Killings Also Linked to New York Suspect.

Hope for solution of the assault on Dr. Don Carlos Leiva, Minister of El Salvador, during a liquor robbery at the legation on May 13, and the later slaying of Jack Cunningham, police informer, rose perceptibly last night with arrest in New York of William Beddell, a suspect in both cases.

Detention of Beddell in New York is culmination of a search that lasted five months and reached as far as Canada. Another man, also sought as a suspect, is still at large.

Inspector Frank S. W. Burke and Acting Capt. Edward J. Kelly will today confer on means to be used in bringing Beddell here. Warrants are expected to be applied for to detain Beddell, who is held in New York on a forgery charge.

It was learned authoritatively by The Post last night that Beddell's arrest will bring to the forefront a witness who has been kept under cover by police since the assault on Dr. Leiva, who was then charge d'affaires of the legation.

This witness is a taxicab driver who was hired near the legation at 2601 Connecticut avenue northwest on the night that Dr. Leiva was fired upon.

The fare was bleeding from several wounds on the face and asked to be driven to an address in the Northwest section where he obtained money and then went to the address of one of the suspects in the case.

The gun which fired the shots aimed at Dr. Leiva, who fought with the liquor thieves in the hall of the legation, has been identified by Lieut. John W. Fowler, Police Department ballistics expert, as the gun which fired the bullets that killed Jack Cunningham, police informer, when he was returning from the First Precinct on May 19. Dr. Leiva suffered a fractured skull when struck by a pistol in the hands of his assailants.

Though police have little doubt that the attempted theft of liquor from the legation and the killing of Cunningham are connected, the case also involved the late Talley Day, who was killed in a gun fight in a speakeasy May 17. Day is believed

DR. JUDD ENTREATS WIFE TO SURRENDER

Illegal Operation Theory Is Advanced in Trunk-Murder Mystery.

Phoenix, Ariz., Oct. 22 (A.P.).—Phoenix authorities today asked a more thorough examination of the body of Miss Hedvig Samuelson, trunk murder victim, in belief she may have died during an illegal operation.

Proceeding along three theoretical lines, the sheriff and county attorney's office continued investigation of the slaying of Miss Samuelson and Mrs. Agnes Anne Le Roi, whose bodies were found Monday in two trunks and a suit case in Los Angeles.

A possibility being studied is that an illegal operation may have been performed in the presence of and perhaps with the aid of Mrs. Winnie Ruth Judd, sought as the double slayer. Mrs. Le Roi, officers believe, may have been slain in order to remove her as a witness.

A second theory is that Mrs. Judd, her jealousy aroused by real or fancied partiality shown by men friends to Mrs. Le Roi, Miss Samuelson, or both, killed the girls, packed their bodies in trunks, and sent the baggage to Los Angeles.

The third theory is that Mrs. Judd, acting in jealous rage, killed the women, but, in panic as to disposal of the bodies, called in some one with whom all three women had been involved, who aided her in hope of avoiding involvement should the crime become public.

Los Angeles, Oct. 22 (A.P.).—A new appeal to Mrs. Winnie Ruth Judd to surrender and face charges of slaying her friends, Agnes Le Roi and Helvig Samuelson, was issued today by the fugitive's husband, Dr. W. C. Judd.

Police believed the woman might be hiding in the cave-like recesses in the hills of Beverly Glen.

Dr. Judd's appeal was made after a conference with his lawyers. Both he and Attorney Richard Cantillon, however, denied knowledge of Mrs. Judd's whereabouts.

Dr. Judd again expressed fear she had committed suicide.

"I know that she has not a violent temper," he said.

"If she has committed the crime with which she is charged, it means that it was done in a period of irre-

Special Luxury Sales Tax May Be Remedy for Deficit

Administration Considers Selected List for Levy; Congress Leaders, Meantime, Plan to Seek General Upward Revision Regardless of Hoover.

(Associated Press.)

Special sales taxes on a selected list of luxury articles may be the administration's way of boosting the Government's income to the level of its expenditures.

This was revealed yesterday almost simultaneously with the disclosure that progressive and conservative leaders in the House are planning to seek an upward revision of the tax schedules next session whether President Hoover likes it or not.

That the special study of the Nation's financial needs instituted by the President has turned definitely toward the selective sales tax idea was made known by the Treasury.

Whether it will be recommended to Congress by the Chief Executive is still to be decided. However, in view of the deficit of $903,000,000 last fiscal year and the deficit of $617,575,720 incurred since July 1, it has been determined that the National Legislature will be fully informed as to the condition of the Government's finances.

As soon as the Treasury officials announced the sales tax list studied included matches, radios, automobiles, and certain articles classified as luxuries, reaction came from congressional quarters.

Senator McNary, of Oregon, assistant Republican leader, termed the proposal as "perfectly ridiculous" and said it was "not the right way to tax."

Senator Couzens, of Michigan, took issue with the Treasury officials' view that nothing could be gained by increasing the surtax, but he said he would keep an open mind on the sales tax plan.

Representative Snell, of New York, asserted some method of increasing Federal revenue was necessary if expenditures continued at the present rate. He added it was against the Republican party's policy to operate the Government on borrowed money.

Both Representative Hawley, of Oregon, last session's chairman, and Representative Garner, of Texas, ranking Democratic member of the House ways and means committee, which formulates all revenue-raising legislation, have conducted quiet studies of the Nation's financial situation since early last spring.

Garner's survey was made with a view to stabilizing the flow of rev-

JAPANESE BOMB CHINA'S FORCES IN NEW ADVANCE

Military Maneuvers Are Spread Far Into Northern Manchuria.

TOKYO TELLS GENEVA SHE WON'T WITHDRAW

League Is to Act Today on Proposal for Immediate Evacuation.

Mukden, Manchuria, Oct. 22 (U. P.).—Japanese troops and bombing planes fought with Chinese forces in Heilungkiang Province today as military maneuvers spread far into northern Manchuria.

Chang Hai-Peng, whose troops have been friendly to Japan in recent efforts to establish independent governments in Manchuria, was advancing along the Taonan-Aganchi Railroad line to take control of the northern province when Chinese troops loyal to Chang Hsueh-Liang, the Manchurian ruler and ally of China, opposed them.

Tried to Bomb Bridge.

Japanese authorities said Chinese forces attempted to destroy the Taonan-Tsitsthar Bridge over the Nonno River, and also fired on Japanese planes which were protecting the Japanese-built bridge. The bridge was saved from all but slight damage and Japanese planes bombed the Chinese forces. (Previously Japanese officials had said all bombing planes had been withdrawn from Manchuria.)

The interests of Soviet Russia were presumed to be more than ever affected by the Heilungkiang engagement, because the Soviet-controlled Chinese Eastern Railroad runs through Tsitsthar and crosses Heilungkiang Province, east and west. The Anganchi-Taonan line runs north and south across the province.

Japanese sources discounted the seriousness of fighting yesterday and early today in the region of Ranai Shi-Han, some 35 miles north of Mukden, where a Japanese armored train was sent to reinforce railroad guards.

Other threats were seen, however, in the activities of Gen. Ling Yin-Chin, commander of the "people's self-defense" armies in Manchuria. He issued a manifesto repudiating Gen. Chang and Gen. Chiang Kai-shek, head of the Chinese national government, and was reported to have started for the Laichung District to establish his own regime.

Probe of General.

Gen. Shirakawa, former Japanese minister of war, arrived here to "inquire after the restraint of Gen. Honjo," the Japanese commander in Manchuria, who has been charged with overzealousness.

Body Found Is Held One of Bandit Gang

Identification Is Expected to Show Two of Band Killed by Pursuers.

Menomonie, Wis., Oct. 22 (A.P.).—The sheriff's office late today was informed a body believed that of a second bandit slain in the Menomonie Bank raid Tuesday had been found near Shell Lake. The man found had been shot through the neck.

James Kraft, 19, assistant cashier, and Frank Webber, a bandit identified as a former Utah prisoner, were slain in the holdup of the Kraft State Bank of $3,000 in cash, $7,000 in negotiable securities and $120,000 in nonnegotiables. Kraft was forced to drive the bandits away and apparently was killed in reprisal.

Sheriff J. J. Wagner, of Shell Lake, said he was positive the body was that of one of the bandits. Victims of the robbery left Menomonie at once to attempt identification. Later others said they saw the bandit car with only two occupants. This led to a belief that a second raider had been wounded fatally.

Troops Are Called To Avert Lynching

Detachment Sent as Mob Forms in Mississippi Planter's Slaying.

Jackson, Miss., Oct. 22 (A.P.).—Gov. Theodore G. Bilbo ordered out a detachment of National Guardsmen today to protect a Negro threatened with violence at Liberty, Miss.

The Negro, "Kid Boy" Jackson, is charged with slaying Bramlette Bates, a white planter, near Liberty several weeks ago. Gov. Bilbo said he had been advised by the sheriff of Amite County, where Liberty is located, that a mob had formed at that place.

Jackson, who was arrested by a posse which outwitted a mob shortly after the Bates' slaying, has been kept in the Magnolia Jail, 22 miles from Liberty, since his capture. Today officers planned to take the Negro from Magnolia to Liberty for arraignment and trial, but found the mob had formed.

LAVAL REACHES WASHINGTON FOR TALKS WITH PRESIDENT; MEETS HOOVER IN BLUE ROOM

LAVAL SAYS TALKS WILL BE INFORMAL

French Premier Asks Press to Aid Conferences With President Hoover.

By HAROLD J. T. HORAN.

Pierre Laval, the Auvergnat country lad, who rose from plow boy to premier of the French republic, outlined the scope and nature of his conversations with President Hoover and Secretary of State Stimson last night in a remarkably sound, sober and simple exposition of his hopes.

The conversations will be notable for their complete absence of ceremony and prearrangement. The premier declared:

"We have no precise program, no definite plans and no established protocol. From what I know of the character of Mr. Hoover, and my own, I am confident that we will have advanced the respective needs of our countries."

The same informal spirit of the negotiators was indicated when the premier characterized his forthcoming conversation as a "tete-a-tete."

The French premier is a young man for such a high office. He is, in fact, the youngest man that ever directed the destinies of France from the high position of president of the council of ministers. He is a man of the people, still clinging to the familiar white loosely tied cravat that identified him when he was in the Chamber. His hair shows signs of being unruly, although it is kept in place and he is a habitual smoker of cigarettes.

He stood on the stairway in the Edge mansion last night with one arm around the shoulder of his attractive daughter, Josette, and posed for the photographers. The full glare of the Kleig lights was thrown on his swarthy face and he blinked under the glare and remarked:

"Is this sun bath for my health?"

Mlle. Josette, the premier's daughter, waited until the sound films had

Legislature Called In New Jersey

Successor to Ackerman Is to Be Sought for Coming Session.

Trenton, N. J., Oct. 22 (A.P.).—A special session of the Legislature was called today by Gov. Larson to revise the election laws so a successor to the late Representative Ernest R. Ackerman, Republican, may be chosen before the opening of Congress, December 7.

The special session, to be held Monday, will be asked to enact legislation permitting an election December 1. Under the present law a successor to Mr. Ackerman could not be seated until January.

The House now has 214 Republicans, 209 Democrats, and 1 Farmer-Laborite member. Five vacancies are to be filled before Congress convenes.

Williams Murder Jury Locked Up for Night

Augusta, Ga., Oct. 22 (U.P.).—The jury deliberating the fate of the Rev. James Monroe Williams, Methodist minister, charged with the "insurance murder" of his 19-year-old son, Grady, naval petty officer, retired for the night, at 11:30 p. m.

The State charged Williams lured his son home from his naval post on pretext of serious illness of the youth's sister and murdered him to get $2,500 insurance, with which the pastor hoped to pay debts incurred by losses in cotton futures speculations.

M. Laval Thanks America

Pierre Laval, president of council of ministers of France, last night gave to The Washington Post a statement expressing his gratitude for the reception accorded him in New York and Washington. It follows:

"Through The Washington Post, I wish to express my gratitude for the friendly reception which was accorded me today by the authorities and the municipality of New York and the American people.

"I have been profoundly touched by the repeated evidences of cordiality which I have received since my arrival in Washington.

"In your city, which was laid out by one of my compatriots (Maj. Pierre Charles L'Enfant), I feel thoroughly at home, and I have a sense of living in the atmosphere of old France."

PARIS IS HEARTENED BY LAVAL GREETING

French Authorities Think Peace Moves Will Go Long Way.

Paris, Oct. 22 (U.P.).—The welcome given Premier Pierre Laval in the United States and the speed with which he began conversations with American Government officials encouraged Paris tonight in the conviction that his mission would go a long way toward solution of world economic and peace problems.

It was said on good authority that Laval would be willing to promise President Hoover that France would waive part of her reparations claims on Germany in exchange for an American pledge to withhold financial and economic aid from any nation which might be declared an aggressor in event of war.

Recently there have been definite indications that France does not expect to continue full collection of reparations. The necessity of some kind of security agreement in return for disarmament has been emphasized by repeated declarations that any government failing to guarantee national security before reducing arms would be overthrown without delay.

It also has been made known that France is prepared to accept reparations in the form of deliveries in Time Here Will Be Virtually Her Own, Despite Aid to Premier-Father.

"I'm not sure yet just what there is to do, but whatever it is, it will be wonderful. Washington is wonderful. I loved New York—but here it is so beautiful."

Thus did Mlle. Josette Laval announce her readiness to welcome whatever events may transpire during her first visit to the United States, as she was whisked in one of the luxurious White House limousines yesterday from Union Station to the house on Eighteenth street loaned by Ambassador Edge to Premier Laval and his daughter during their stay in Washington.

A pretty, slender figure in blue tweed and tiny beret, Mlle. Laval is a diminutive, but important factor in the group accompanying Premier Pierre Laval of France, who arrived in the Capital yesterday for a four-day visit. Mlle. Josette annexed a great deal of the spotlight of attention yesterday as mounted soldiers endeavored to hold in abeyance the crowds who strove to catch a glimpse of the vivacious dark-eyed girl.

Determined to see and do everything, Mlle. Josette snatched eagerly at opportunity between 4:00 and 6:30 o'clock and made the most of the

Representative Hale Dies; Taken Ill on Ocean Voyage

New York, Oct. 22 (A.P.).—Representative Fletcher Hale (Republican), of the First New Hampshire District, died tonight at 10:45 in the United States Naval Hospital in Brooklyn a few hours after he had returned from a European trip.

Mr. Hale was taken ill two days after he sailed from London on the liner President Harding. His condition was so serious the steamship increased its speed from 18 knots to 21 knots, and arrived tonight 12 hours ahead of schedule.

The cause of death was given as pneumonia and cerebral embolism.

No arrangements for removal of the body had been made tonight, hospital attendants said.

Mr. Hale, with Representatives Andrew J. Montague, of Virginia, and Fritz G. Lanham, of Texas, Democrats, and Cyrenus Cole, of Iowa, Republican, had attended the twenty-seventh conference of the Interparliamentary Union in Bucharest.

He was taken off the President Harding on a stretcher and rushed immediately to the Naval Hospital, where at first his condition had been described as "quite ill."

Representative Montague remained in London due to an attack of acute

Pomp Attends Welcome of Premier's Party at Station.

DAUGHTER VANISHES, TO PURCHASE ROSES

French Journalists Amazed by Dearth of Greeting by Street Crowds.

By EDWARD T. FOLLIARD.

In the blue room of the White House, a room in which the world's great are formally received, two men, one the son of a blacksmith and the other the son of an innkeeper, grasped hands late yesterday, and thus opened what is expected to be an epochal chapter in international history.

The two men were Herbert Hoover, President of the United States, and Pierre Laval, premier of France.

Premier Laval, his celebrated white tie gleaming from his black formal coat, arrived here—the terminus of what he calls his first "grand tour"—at 3:15 o'clock.

He was the first member of the big French party to swing from the train. He had his silk hat in his hand. Except that he has a rich color, he is just as his photographs represent him—a man of less than medium height, swarthy complexion, and almost Oriental features, the most striking of which are his black, all-seeing eyes. His lip is adorned with a black moustache.

What the photographs fail to reveal, however, is his charm, his "Je ne sais quois" (I do not know what it is), as the French would say.

Daughter Accompanies.

With the French premier—who is called that despite the fact that his actual title is "President of the Council of Ministers of France"—was his daughter, Mlle. Josette Laval, a vivacious girl of 19.

Mlle. Laval, so the girl reporters said, was attired in a costume of blue corduroy, and wore a hat of the same hue.

That she is a cosmopolite was demonstrated not long after her arrival when she got into an automobile and set out all alone, for a destination not announced.

It later was learned that she had motored to a florist's on Fourteenth street to buy three dozen roses for Mme. Paul Claudel, the wife of the French Ambassador, whose guest she was at a dance last night.

With Premier Laval on his arrival was Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson, who had gone to New York to greet him.

Greeted by Compatriots.

As M. Laval swung from his train, Undersecretary of State William R. Castle rushed forward to grasp his hand. Then Mr. Castle introduced Lawrence Richey, secretary to President Hoover. By this time the French leader was surrounded with American and French dignitaries.

Gen. John J. Pershing stepped forward to greet him, and so did Marshal Henri Petain and other French celebrities who came over here to take part in Yorktown celebration.

With Secretary Stimson at his side, and escorted by the President's naval and military aids, Capt. Charles R. Train and Col. Campbell B. Hodges, the French premier walked through a lane of Fort Washington soldiers and out into the sunshine of a brilliant day.

As he reached the exit, the Army Bank struck up the Marseillaise, and the exciting notes of this great anthem reverberated in thunderous fashion through portico of the terminal.

Man Without Nerves.

Fifty cameramen were waiting to "shoot" the distinguished visitor. With Secretary Stimson, Ambassador Paul Claudel, of France; Gen Pershing and Marshal Petain flanking him, he posed with the nonchalance of a Hollywood veteran.

A cool individual, without nerves, is this man from Auvergne; one who would be hard indeed to stampede.

While the photographers were clicking and grinding, he looked

NEW YORK GREETS LAVAL ON ARRIVAL

Booming Guns Salute French Minister and His Chic Daughter.

New York, Oct. 22 (A.P.).—New York said "welcome" in hearty fashion to Premier Laval today as he hurried from the liner Ile de France toward Washington for his conference with President Hoover on the economic condition of the world.

Booming cannons, splashing fireboats, airplanes zooming overhead, and ticker tape fluttering over Broadway carried on the tradition of the glad hand, and applauding thousands lined the streets.

Greeted by Stimson.

Greeted by Secretary Stimson and a host of other dignitaries, including Mayor James J. Walker, M. Laval went to City Hall for a brief reception, during which he expressed the hope his errand would unite France and America in restoring "calm and equilibrium" to the earth.

"France is peace loving," he said "But we set great store by our security. Governments and peoples should understand that security can not be expressed merely in words of hope. It should be organized.

"If France and the United States can agree and unite in an ever-increasing cooperation, we may look forward to better things * * * you know how to put national solidarity into practice in a most generous way and you have many times proved it."

Loyal to Hoover.

Mayor Walker, in welcoming M. Laval, said regarding efforts for world peace: "We want you to know that the American people have one President and we are all behind him in that great personal endeavor."

Premier Laval's vivacious, 19-year-old daughter, Josee, whose dark eyes sparkled at the excitement, drew much attention especially from women interested in her chic Parisian costume. An ensemble of corduroy-ribbed wool of that brilliant hue called matisse blue was topped by a knitted beret of similar color."

brief interval to get a slant on American hustle and bustle.

Upon her arrival at the Eighteenth street house she had scarcely time to change from one blue ensemble to another before she was on her way to exchange bows with President and Mrs. Hoover and then to dash back to change for a dinner dance at the French Embassy, arranged by Mlle. Reine Claudel, daughter of the French Ambassador.

And in between times, she seized a spare moment to hurry to a florist's shop to order three dozen roses for Mme. Claudel. Nor did she neglect her father, for several dozen brilliant roses were sent at her request to the Eighteenth street home and arranged in the premier's study.

This gracious gesture, declare friends, is quite typical of Josette, who not only knows the "etiquet of courts" but possesses that rare charm of personality which knows just the right thing to do at the right time.

A brilliant smile has the gay Josette. Her eyes flash beneath the pert little hat she seems to affect and with a swift gesture she makes it evident that, although unofficially, she will be a hands-across-the-sea factor in the French visit.

In fluent English yesterday she explained that she was—and was not—her father's secretary. "Of course, when there is something official, confidential, you know, I am there to translate, but I'm really not his secretary on this trip.

"Yes, I am studying law—but just for a—what do you say—hobby. I like to ride and play tennis and embroider a little. Everybody over here seems to think I make my own dresses—no, no, I just design them, that is all."

Yesterday Josette wore a French gown, a Patou model of heavy white silk embroidered in navy blue. With it she wore a blue velvet jacket, which contrasted in striking fashion. Like Mlle. Claudel, who was in brown, and Mlle. Guinier, in black, she displayed the French chic in the smart silk and in the French blue suit favored for train travel.

The gaiety of last night's party will furnish the motif for the premier's daughter's visit. Although she will serve her father to some extent as interpreter and has several specific engagements to look after, her time will virtually be her own to do as she likes.

She presumably will be a guest at the embassy today at the informal luncheon planned by the ambassador and will spend one evening and night at the home of Secretary of State and Mrs. Stimson and tomorrow night will be a guest of honor at the dinner dance which Undersecretary of State and Mrs. Castle will give at their house.

She is expected to make some sightseeing tours and may visit the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier, although Mlle. Reine Claudel's bright roadster probably will buzz along avenues leading to other interesting sights. With them, of course, will be Mlle. Jacqueleine Guinier and probably a "trail" of young people.

Big New York Greeters Fumble Laval Reception

If French Newspapermen Send Caustic Dispatches to Paris It's Because Stimson Rode Behind Premier and Things Were Bawled Up.

The metropolis of New York, which prides itself on the big way in which it greets notables, evidently was somewhat below par in the greeting business yesterday.

In the course of the morning, so it was reported here last night, Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson, the President's representative in New York, was shunted to a secondary role, being placed in an automobile behind that of the French Premier; the master of ceremonies at the City Hall, Hector Fuller, introduced Premier Laval as Paul Claudel (the French ambassador), and the French newspapermen were subjected to some rough handling by the authorities.

This does not mean that New York was deliberately callous or apathetic. Premier Laval, in a statement to The Washington Post, said that he was extremely grateful for the reception he got there.

But there were others in his party who arrived here fairly boiling over the way the New York people had handled the arrangements.

The man in charge was William Deegan, a prominent member of Tammany and now commissioner of tenements. As chairman of the mayor's reception committee, he greeted Premier Laval upon the latter's arrival.

It was Mr. Deegan who was blamed yesterday for having placed Secretary Stimson in a car other than that in which Premier Laval was riding. Mr. Deegan himself rode with the French Premier—he and Mayor Jimmy Walker.

At the City Hall Hector Fuller, who used to be a star reporter on The Washington Post, and who consequently ought to know better, introduced Premier Laval.

"Mr. Mayor," he said, "I have the honor to introduce the prime minister of France, Mr. Paul Claudel. (Mr. Claudel is the French Ambassador to the United States.) No, I mean Mr. Pierre Claudel. No, no, no, I mean Mr. Pierre Laval."

This was pretty bad, and the newspapermen didn't think it was very—well, very fitting. But when the New York cops began to shoulder the French correspondents around and endanger their chances of going along with the party, this was too much. And so, if some rather caustic dispatches were sent to Paris last night, the reason might be that the greeting business in New York just happened to be below par yesterday.

PREMIER OF FRANCE ARRIVES FOR TALKS WITH PRESIDENT

around casually, taking in everything around him with his keen black eyes.

The trip from Union Station to the home of Ambassador Walter E. Edge at 1520 Eighteenth street, which is to be the headquarters of Premier Laval, was made in the automobile of President Hoover.

In the machine with M. Laval were Secretary Stimson and the President's two aids.

Street Crowds Small.

Only about 200 persons had gathered at Union Station to see the French statesman arrive. One or two loosed a "Vive," but on the whole it was a typical blase Washington crowd.

The curbs along Pennsylvania avenue were virtually bare of people as the caravan, escorted by 15 motorcycle policemen, swept up toward the Treasury. Here and there were a few knots of onlookers, but it was obvious that they had formed a moment before.

Passing dilapidated Chinatown, the caravan aroused two or three Chinese laundrymen, who stuck their heads out of windows and then quickly withdrew them.

The machines moved up Pennsylvania avenue, passed behind the Treasury, then turned north on East Executive avenue, and again into Pennsylvania avenue.

Here Premier Laval saw the magnificent park that was created to honor Lafayette and Rochambeau.

Cavalry at Edge Home.

Reaching the Edge home, Premier Laval found a crowd of about 150 gathered to greet him.

Here, too, was a squadron of Fort Myer cavalry and a mounted band. The cavalrymen saluted, the band played the Marseillaise, and then the French visitor went inside.

French newspapermen were appalled at the lack of enthusiasm shown over the premier's visit, and some of them were threatening to stress this lack in their dispatches.

For their benefit, it should be explained that Washington never gets excited over visitors, no matter who they are. Kings, princes, premiers and other celebrities have come here to find that out. Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald found it out, among others.

Producers of plays open new shows here because it is supposed to be a city most difficult to please. Actors say that the people here "sit on their hands." If a play gets over here it can't fail to succeed elsewhere.

Only one individual has aroused Washington in ten years—Charles A. Lindbergh. Two hundred thousand persons turned out to see him when he came back from France on the cruiser Memphis, in June, 1927, but even then there was not the hysterical enthusiasm that one finds in European capitals on such occasions.

These French newspapermen, the cream of the craft in France, no doubt have in mind the crowds that turned out when Premier Laval went to Berlin recently. There vast numbers of war-weary, debt-weary Germans gathered outside the French Embassy in the Pariser Platz and yelled "Down with war!"

Washington, with its big Federal pay roll, has felt the depression less than any city in the world. This does not mean that it is insensible to what is happening in other parts of the country and of the world. It probably follows economic and political conditions more closely than any other city in the United States. However, it simply does not go in for demonstrations.

Sleeps in White House.

For the benefit of the French correspondents, it should also be explained that when Premier Laval arrived yesterday, the Government departments had not yet let out.

Had he arrived, say, at 4:30, a goodly part of some 60,000 workers might have lined the Avenue to cheer him.

After resting and changing clothes, Premier Laval left the Edge house a few minutes before 6 o'clock and, escorted by motorcycle men, drove to the White House.

This, his first meeting with President Hoover, lasted but a few minutes. Tonight he and his daughter will pass the night at the White House, and the heavy part of the conversations between the American and French leaders will actually get under way.

Meets 100 of Press.

Returning from the White House, the French premier found an assemblage of nearly 100 newspaper men awaiting him. In the assemblage were men and women representing all the important newspapers and press associations of this country, as well as many of those abroad. Curt Sell, representative of the Wolff Agency, German press service, was among those present.

Presently Premier Laval came down the staircase. He seemed surprised to see such a gathering awaiting him, and the newspapermen—at least, some of them—seemed surprised when they saw his famous white tie. They discovered that the tie, which the Frenchman has affected since he was a young man, is a very ordinary thing, an inexpensive cravat that is almost as narrow as a corset string.

Mlle. Laval already was downstairs. Now she started up the stairway. Her father held her for a moment, there was a brief exchange of words, and then Robert Pell, secretary to Ambassador Edge in Paris, and now liaison man for Premier Laval, explained to the reporters:

Must Have Cigarettes.

"Miss Laval is going upstairs, so she is just going to say good night."

Mlle. Laval waved her hand, and, with a smile, said "Good night," with only a slight accent.

Her father continued to stand on the staircase, a cigarette dangling from his lips. He has forsworn liquor while he is in this country, but the conference between him and President Hoover might be seriously endangered if his cigarettes were taken from him. He loves them. Especially does he love American cigarettes. Last night he was "bumming" them from persons who happened to be around him, and he sampled various brands.

At the outset of the press conference, the cameramen turned their Kleig lights on the French premier and proceeded to make pictures of him.

When these had finished, he turned his attention to the reporters. He told them that he had come here for a "tete-a-tete concerning all international problems."

Correspondents Applaud.

After the press conference, a very unusual thing happened. The newspapermen applauded the French leader.

Going upstairs, Premier Laval then proceeded to change clothes for his next function—the dinner at the White House in honor of Marshal Petain and the other French notables who came to this country for the celebration of the 150th anniversary of the Battle of Yorktown, a battle which was won by the United States largely through French aid.

Meanwhile, Mlle. Laval went to the French Embassy, where, with her friends, Mlle. Rene Claudel, daughter of the ambassador, and Mlle. Jacquelin Guinier, daughter of a Paris publisher, she enjoyed her first dance in America.

The Lavals, though they live simply, brought ten trunks along with them. These were guarded on the way from Union Station to the Edge home by an agent of the French Surete Generale.

ST. JOHN'S COLLEGE HONORS HERO PETAIN

French Marshal Is Given Doctor of Science Degree; Late in Arriving.

Special to The Washington Post.

Annapolis, Md., Oct. 22.—Marshal Henri P. J. Petain, commander in chief of the French armies in the World War and hero of Verdun, was awarded the honorary degree of doctor of science by historic St. John's College on the occasion of his visit to Annapolis this afternoon.

The noted soldier was also scheduled to be the recipient of official honors at the Naval Academy, but he was delayed in reaching Annapolis, and for a time it appeared he would not get here at all.

Because of the lateness of his arrival, his contemplated visit to the naval institution and review of the regiment of midshipmen was omitted from the program.

Tenon Precedes Petain.

Preceding the marshal on the trip were Rear Admiral Des Cortes Tenon, commanding officer of the French cruisers sent to this country for the Yorktown celebration, and members of his staff.

With the arrival of Admiral Tenon and his party, President Douglas H. Gordon and officials of St. John's College went ahead with the program of ceremonies there, which included placing a wreath at the base of the French monument on the rear campus of the college, erected 20 years ago to commemorate the soldiers and sailors of France who fought with American troops in the cause of independence. This was to have been done by Marshal Petain.

In connection with this ceremony, William Franklin Paris, of the French Legion of Honor, delivered a brief address in behalf of the French delegation, and Gov. Albert C. Ritchie, former president of the board of governors and visitors of the college, responded.

Marshal Petain Delayed.

Just as these ceremonies got under way word was received from the French Embassy in Washington that Marshal Petain would be delayed in reaching Annapolis. Meanwhile, Admiral Tenon and the other French visitors were driven to the Naval Academy in automobiles, where they were received by Rear Admiral Thomas C. Hart, superintendent, and his staff officers.

A salute of thirteen guns was fired in honor of the French admiral. The official reception took place on Worden Field, where the regiment of midshipmen was drawn up at present arms and afterward passed in review of the visitors.

By the time the academy ceremonies were over Marshal Petain and his retinue arrived at St. John's College, and shortly before 5 o'clock the honorary degree was bestowed upon the marshal by President Gordon, with simple ceremonies, in historic McDowell Hall.

Laval Stirs Protest From Wine Growers

Paris, Oct. 22 (U.P.).—French wine growers protested today when it was announced that Premier Laval had not taken advantage of the diplomatic privilege of carrying wine in his baggage to the United States. They contended that the premier should have acted as an "ambassador for French wine," which he drinks moderately at home.

They said they hoped Laval would "make amends" by inviting President Hoover to dinner at the French embassy and providing him with choice French wines. Many letters were received by the government authorities asking if it were true that Laval would "go dry" on the American trip.

kind, that is deliveries of goods from Germany, and is willing to aid Americans in withdrawing short term credits now frozen in Germany.

In this connection, the journalist, Fernand de Brinon, who first suggested that Laval go to Washington, informed his newspaper, l'Information (financial daily), from New York that "there is the strongest reason to believe Mr. Hoover will offer, in case of war, not only a consultative pact, but economic and financial sanctions by America against an aggressor state."

"This would be equivalent to renunciation of the doctrine of freedom of the seas, which has been considered the foundation of American policy," the dispatch continued. (The question of freedom of the seas would be involved in case American ships were prohibited from trading with an aggressor state, thereby making them subject to restrictions in trade and presumably to search at sea to determine whether they carried supplies for an aggressor state.)

De Brinton, who is a close friend of Laval, said the premier would agree to budgetary reduction of arms if the plan for a consultative pact could be arranged. A consultative pact would merely provide for the United States to consult with other world powers in event of a threat of war, on the best means of maintaining peace.

Official Calls Listed In Premier's Program

Premier Laval's program for today follows:

10 a. m.—Visit to the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier.

11 a. m.—Call upon Vice President Curtis and Chief Justice Hughes at the Capitol.

12:45 p. m.—Lunch at the French Embassy.

8 p. m.—Premier Laval and Mlle. Josette Laval will have dinner at the White House, and will spend the night there.

been taken, then she waved an airy "Good night!" at the correspondents grouped below and disappeared upstairs to her private apartment.

Then the premier faced his inquisitors, in no way constrained or worried, and as calmly as though he had been going through the performance for years.

His tone went from the grave to the gay. He warned the journalists of their responsibilities in the work which he and President Hoover were about to understake, and then he made one final plea for the restraint of their imaginations.

Robert T. Pell, Ambassador Edge's secretary, accompanied the premier in the anomalous position as press attache for the French delegation. He stood on the steps with the premier and translated all questions and answers between the threescore of American correspondents that filled the entrance hall of the Edge mansion and the premier himself.

President Hoover will sit down with a man who has known how to conciliate the tremendously conflicting forces of the French chamber; a man who is winning, friendly, open, and at the same time with a keen sense of his political responsibilities that lay back in Paris.

Premier Laval at once announced that he would not and could not answer any specific questions. He asked deprecatingly:

"How can I answer you these questions which I have not even proposed to President Hoover yet?"

Then the premier continued:

"I have no long declaration to give you. The reception in New York from Mayor Walker was very satisfactory and I am sure that the friendship of our two countries will be sufficient guarantee for the success of our conversations."

Has No False Hopes.

That the premier does not intend to fondle any false hopes was evident when he declared:

"We will not solve every difficulty but we will know our respective positions. That is exceedingly important since America is far away from France and this remoteness has given rise to certain legends and certain misunderstandings with regard to the role of France in world affairs."

"France is pacific. The fact that I have come to Washington after a trip to London and after another trip to Berlin shows that. After the conversation in Paris, this Washington visit marks an important step in the solution of these international difficulties.

"I can affirm the desire of my country to take its part in the work of cooperation."

When some of the American correspondents pressed him for an explanation of the "misunderstandings" to which he had referred, Laval smiled and said:

"Don't you think I have given you enough for a long article tonight? That's enough for tonight. I imagine tomorrow I shall have something else for you and I shall be able to answer specific questions."

Will Discuss All Problems.

The president of the council then continued:

"It is my purpose to discuss with the President every problem that actually concerns the disorganized situation of the world in general." Some correspondent queried: "World problems or Franco-American problems?" and he continued, after flashing a smile on his interrupter:

"All problems in world affairs that are responsible for the present difficulties. The solution of a certain number of these problems will be the aim of the conversations with the President."

That the premier is keenly sensible of the role to be played in the discussions by the press was apparent from his appeal:

"I wish to address to you all a request. When the situation is as delicate as the impending discussions between President Hoover and myself, the press has a very important role to fulfill. I am sure I am not making this request in vain when I ask your cooperation and your discretion, which will do much to lighten the difficulties of my task."

Plans Press Contacts.

Then he added:

"If I am able to present to you the veritable sentiments of my country, I feel sure that some of the difficulties of the actual crisis will have been solved."

The premier intends to maintain the closest possible contact between the press and himself. He announced last night that there would be daily conferences with the American correspondents, as well as with the French newspapermen who accompany him.

NEW SECURITY IDEA ADVANCED BY LAVAL

Sees "Better Things" in U. S. and France Increasing Cooperation.

Premier Pierre Laval made a forthright explanation of his visit to the United States within fifteen minutes after he had landed on American soil. The premier declared in his city hall keynote address:

"If France and the United States can agree and unite in an ever-increasing cooperation, we may look forward to better things."

This cooperation, the premier indicated, would be predicated on a new conception of "security." He called this new plan "organized security."

Within this phrase is believed to be embodied the hopes of the French premier for a pact of some kind with France either "consultative" or "security." This would realize his ideals of "organized security."

The desires of France to maintain her international position with the second greatest store of gold in the world, could be accomplished under any formula ranging from a frank "security pact" or a "consultative pact" with perhaps the "implementation" of the Kellogg-Briand pact as a starting-off place, to the inclusion of either article 16 of the League of Nations or an agreement similar to the Four-Power Treaty with the United States, England and Japan for the Pacific Ocean.

Stimson's Words Recalled.

The delegation of Premier Laval is known to set great store by the statement of Secretary Stimson with regard to "consultative" pacts during the London conference. This view is still believed to be the expression of President Hoover and may well be invoked by the premier in his conversations as an indication of what France would consider in return for a decisive reduction of armaments. At the time of the London conference, Secretary Stimson said:

"America has no objection to entering a consultative pact, as such; on the contrary the United States is already a party to a number of treaties involving the obligation of consulting with other powers. It will not, however, enter into any treaty, either consultative or otherwise, where there is danger of its obligations being misunderstood as involving a promise to render military assistance or guaranteeing protection by military force to another nation."

This statement at the time it was made provoked considerable comment in senatorial circles, particularly those ruled by the "Die-Hard" element led by Senator William E. Borah (Republican), of Idaho. The chairman of the foreign relations committee referred to the consultative pact at that time as a "pious fraud." Other senators associated with him then in denouncing the pact were Senator Shipstead, of Minnesota; Senator Swanson, of Virginia, and Senator George, of Georgia.

Borah Maintains Stand.

There is every reason to believe that the attitude of the Senate on this point has not changed. Senator Borah himself has frequently stated he will denounce any international agreement made with France on the reduction of her war debts which does not take into full consideration the remission of an equivalent part of German war debts to France.

President Hoover has shown, however, that the considerations of economic readjustment which the United States can not undertake without the cooperation of France, may force a revision of the American point of view on this and similar points. Premier Laval realized this perhaps yesterday when he remarked in City Hall:

"I know the aspiration of the American people to be self-contained. It is a noble ideal for a country like yours, strong, rich in experience, which has enabled it to progress and to succeed."

"But progress itself which has never been more devotedly served than in the warm hearts of the American people, by reducing and suppressing distances between continents by amalgamating the interests of all nations, has laid down a new doctrine and imposed new duties.

Maintenance of Gold.

"You know how to put international solidarity into practice in the most generous way and you have many times proved it. In a world torn with doubt our two great democracies together must search for and apply methods which will restore calm and reestablish equilibrium."

The basis of French cooperation with the United States will probably be the understanding between the two great gold nations for the maintenance of gold as basis of international exchange. This is believed to be partly responsible for the tremendous interest in business men and bankers all over France, many of whom made the trip especially with the premier with the idea of seeing an effective Franco-American gold entente take place to solidify their international credit position.

Out of the gold understanding will naturally come further agreements between the United States and France, but all based on the preliminary economic agreement that will enable the two chiefs of State to erect a stable bilateral policy.

Departure From Custom.

With the United States and France possessing between them more than 70 per cent of all the gold in the world, it is believed that the French bankers who preceded and accompanied Premier Laval will make a gold entente with the Federal Reserve system to assure the maintenance of the gold standard in all international financial transactions.

The security pact proposal at the time of the London conference created considerable discussion because of the great interest attached to it as a striking departure from accepted American diplomatic custom. The feeling has been growing in official French quarters that the United States was prepared to make concessions on the maintenance of rigid nonparticipation in European affairs. Since the sudden appearance of the United States in the sessions of the League of Nations to solve the Manchurian difficulty between China and Japan this feeling has gained ground.

Thus Premier Laval will undoubtedly try to follow up the wedge he has found so conveniently to his hand with an American participating in the consultations of the council of the League of Nations for peace in Manchuria. If peace in Manchuria can justify American departure from her isolation, it is believed Premier Laval will demonstrate to President Hoover the economic necessity that forces a similar departure with regard to "security pacts."

Mme. Laval Will Await Husband's Return on Farm

Paris, Oct. 22 (A.P.).—Mme. Pierre Laval, facing the longest separation from her husband in 20 years of married life, has gone to their farm in Normandy to look after the flowers and stock, while the premier talks with President Hoover.

She is fond of flowers and always returns to their apartment in the ministry of the interior with an automobile load of them. She is a native of Auvergne, her husband's birthplace, sister of a former deputy, and has listened to politics since childhood.

Before M. Laval jumped into international prominence she entertained personal friends modestly in their Paris home. Now she must preside at official dinners and she demonstrated her qualities as a hostess at a luncheon given last July for Secretary of State Stimson, Secretary of the Treasury Mellon, Chancellor Bruening and then Foreign Minister Curtius.

She left for the country the day the premier sailed for the United States to dissipate her melancholy. She received daily radiograms from her husband during the voyage, reporting on his welfare and the behavior of their daughter Josette.

Friends call her "a good French housewife" because she supervises closely the Laval kitchen and provides a bountiful table for her family. She also spends much time with the needle and watches out carefully for her daughter. She has a dark complexion like her husband and is described as plump.

Citizens of Barranquilla Declare Holiday to Make Protest.

When Washington Was Younger—No. 83

THE boys and girls of yesteryear will remember this picture, for many a full-grown Washingtonian was entertained during his or her childhood days by the antics of "Dunk," the elephant at the National Zoo.

"Dunk" is no longer one of the attractions of the zoo, for he died in 1917, but his memory lingers on with many Capital residents, and those who visit the elephant house at the zoo may see the tablet erected to "Dunk's" memory by those who admired him during the 20-odd years he was featured among the animal collection.

Here is how the tablet to "Dunk" reads:

In Memoriam
The Good Elephant
DUNK
Who Died March 30, 1917.

Through subscriptions to a popular fund this tablet is here placed by the children of Washington, whose favorite Dunk was for more than a quarter of a century.

Calling One's Husband, Once Duty, Now an Art

—By JOHN J. DALY—

LEAVE it to America and the Americans to find surcease from sorrow, a way out of the complexities of real life. The Nation is now engaged in Husband-Calling Contests.

Each year it is something different. First came the bathing beauty contests. Then, the flagpole sitters. After that, the horseshoe pitchers. The miniature golf craze swept over the country like a prairie fire. Now, heading the hierarchy of diversion, come the husband-callers.

Japan and China find themselves in deadly conflict over the Manchurian question. European nations are on the qui vive because of the gold standard. America and France, through their chieftains, Hoover and Laval, begin a series of serious conversations in Washington; but in every other town and hamlet the husband-callers engage in their contests, oblivious of the problems of state and of the dial of life whose hands are moving ever forward recording the progress of civilization.

Those who have lived and suffered will readily understand why it is that America each year indulges in some new pastime. It is the inevitable search for happiness that prompts the human heart to forget the worries and cares of every-day existence. Why should the women of the Nation stop calling their husbands merely because M. Laval has come to America? Echo answers, why?

FORGOTTEN are the flagpole sitting champions of other years. "Shipwreck Kelley" the leader of them all. Gone is "Miss America," from the sandy stretches of Atlantic City to the musical comedy stage. Deserted are the miniature golf links, looking like so many summer resorts in winter.

There is a beauty which no eye has ever seen, and sweet music never heard by any ear. This is the great desideratum of humanity—to behold the fairest of the fair, to commune with the celestial choirs. In lieu of actual attainment, substitutes come into their own. So, husband-calling contests this season are the outstanding events.

In the long winter nights of yesteryear came echoes of the hog-calling contests that engaged inhabitants of the Midwest, while seaboard towns on both oceans engaged in competitive oyster shucking. Neither of these sports attained national recognition because of geographical difficulties: no oysters in the Midwest and few hogs in the Tidewater sections.

• • • •

WITH husbands it is different. There are husbands everywhere—and wives to call them.

Because this is a medium for the outlet of pent-up emotions, there is no doubt that husband-calling contests will prove to be the most popular diversion of all.

Self-sacrifice, renunciation and all the parasitic virtues have held high hand these many months, since the economic scale was tipped. As mankind was created to be happy, the time has come to get out from under the spirit of gloom. If it makes women happy to enter husband-calling contests, that's all there is; there isn't any more to be done or said. Meekly, all any husband can do is to answer, in the language of the idyllic song, "I hear you calling me."

Yet, to plague many men, the question remains, "What, in a husband-calling contest do they call their husbands?"

Arrests Looming In Border Dispute

Texas Rangers and Game Wardens Post Land in Arkansas Wrangle.

Texarkana, Ark., Oct. 22 (A.P.).—Texas rangers and game wardens today began posting "no trespassing" signs on a strip of land near here involved in a Texas-Arkansas border dispute and announced they would arrest any Arkansas game wardens who sought to enter the territory. The rangers said they were ordered to begin patrolling the land by Gov. Sterling of Texas.

State Representative R. M. Hubbard was designated today by Gov. Sterling to go to Little Rock tomorrow and confer with Gov. Parnell of Arkansas in an effort to reach an amicable agreement in the controversy.

The meanderings of the Red River are responsible for dispute.

WOOD ACCUSES NAVY MEN IN BUDGET ROW

Adams Backs Officers Held to Have Precipitated Fight Over Cuts.

(Associated Press.)

Thrust and parry in the Navy budget cut controversy yesterday saw charges that unnamed naval officers were "lying" countered by an expression of firm faith in their "integrity."

Emerging from a conference with President Hoover, Representative Wood, of Indiana, said some naval officials were spreading falsehoods in an effort to stir public sentiment against budget reductions.

"If I were Secretary of the Navy," Mr. Wood, chairman of the last House appropriations committee snapped, "I would find the men responsible and fire them."

Asked if he spoke for publication, the Indiana Republican shot back:

"You can make it as strong as you like."

Adams Reiterates Faith.

It took these remarks only a little while to get to the office where Charles Francis Adams has his quarters as Secretary of the Navy.

"I wish to emphasize," he said without hesitation, "that I have unshaken faith in the character and integrity of the officers of the United States Navy."

Mr. Wood said minor officials in the Navy had passed word out quietly that the recently rebuilt frigate, the famous Constitution, would be laid up, the Navy Band abolished and the Boston Navy Yard closed in the interests of economy.

"Such things as that," Mr. Wood added, "wouldn't save $1,000,000. It was done without the knowledge of their superiors, simply to arouse public opinion against cuts in the Navy budget."

Says Items Confidential.

Secretary Adams said that "certain items" mentioned by Mr. Wood could neither be affirmed nor denied because of the confidential nature of the budget estimates submitted to the President.

Mr. Wood said that President Hoover had "indicated" he would like to know the men responsible for starting stories in behalf of larger naval expenditures.

Belief on the part of the Chief Executive that certain Navy Department officials had taken their case against budget cuts to the newspapers aroused him recently. He let it be known he would take his views to the people if necessary.

A few days previously he had called for a reduction in naval appropriations by $61,000,000 from the original estimates of $401,000,000 submitted to him.

Mr. Wood also charged that certain naval officials had "fathered" a story that 6,000 sailors and officers would be dropped to reduce expenditures.

U.S. DENIES COTTON PARLEY TO EGYPT

State Department Rejects International Plan for Conference.

(Associated Press.)

America today wrote a large "no" across the face of an Egyptian proposal that the world-wide ills of the cotton planter be considered by an international conference.

The State Department rejected the proposition, saying that this Government had no authority to discuss with other nations such vital questions as compulsory acreage restriction or export limitations.

Egypt, one of the five largest producers of the staple, presented its suggestion last August when skidding prices and overproduction spread gloom across the Southern States.

The Farm Board, to which it was transmitted almost immediately, vetoed it. It had two reasons: One, an accord with such nations as Russia, India and China seemed highly improbable, and, two, belief that Government acreage reduction measures would be unconstitutional.

There appeared to be only one question, the State Department added in its rejection note, which this Government could discuss—stocks held by governmental agencies. Egypt has an agency somewhat similar to the Farm Board's cotton stabilization corporation.

Therefore, it was suggested that if Cairo cared to talk about the latter point it could send a representative to Washington.

The United States took part in an international wheat conference in London last May, but its delegates had no power to agree to export quotas, as sought by Russia, or compulsory limitation of acreage.

The Southern States raise more than 50 per cent of the world's cotton crop. The American price rules the world price. That is the reason Egypt was interested. It has cut its own cotton area this year by 19 per cent.

Meanwhile, Southern Legislatures have been moving to take cotton land out of production by law. Five States now have adopted restriction measures for next year. This action, plus the banker-Farm Board agreement to hold 7,000,000 bales from the markets, has added $50,000,000 to the value of cotton and boosted it from the 5-cent depths.

JOB INSURANCE HELD TRADE ILL SEDATIVE

Credit Pool and Laval Visit May Aid Recovery, Says Senate Witness.

(Associated Press.)

Two phases of the world's most pressing problem, better business, were studied yesterday by Senate committees.

The succession of witnesses who have told a special committee they favored some form of private employment insurance was broken by the testimony of Walter J. Kohler, of Wisconsin.

Kohler, a manufacturer and former governor of his State, said he believed such insurance was only a temporary sedative for business pangs.

After presenting a gloomy picture of economic conditions through statistics, Laurence H. Sloan, vice president of the Standard Statistics Committee of New York, said before the Senate manufactures committee an upward trend was in prospect.

Climb Expected Through Year.

Sloan said if the banking pool did what was expected of it and good results came from the visit of Premier Laval of France, he thought there would be a climb through the next twelve months.

He told the committee, headed by Senator LaFollette (Republican), Wisconsin, he was confident "the worst is past," but said it would be many years before prices climb back to the 1929 levels.

Sloan, before his note of cheer, said the national income in 1931 was 25 per cent less than in 1929.

Kohler said industry must stabilize itself through cooperation and that it could not get together as it should because of the antitrust laws.

$1,000,000,000 Is Hoarded.

At the opening of its hearing on a proposed economic council whose function would be to recommend solutions for business problems to the President and Congress, the manufactures committee heard E. A. Goldenweisser, research director of the Federal Reserve Board.

He said overproduction and the collapse of the exchanges in 1929 were two important factors in conditions today, and that recovery had been retarded by business conditions abroad.

Mr. Goldenweiser estimated that alarm over the situation had caused the hoarding of approximately $1,000,000,000.

D. A. R. Head Sees Red Threat to America

Charleston, S. C., Oct. 22 (A.P.).—Daughters of the American Revolution from five Southern States today heard their national leader sound a call to arms against the forces of atheism and communism. Mrs. Lowell F. Hobart, D. A. R. president general, addressing the Southern division congress of the society here, asserted that communists working hand in hand with atheists, are "determined to destroy all religions everywhere."

She said that a determined assault was being made upon the United States through the youth of the Nation, and urged the D. A. R. to take the lead in the battle against the "invasion of foreign fallacies."

CYPRUS REVOLTS; SEEKS GREEK RULE

Cyprus to suppress riots and to put down a well-advanced movement to link the Cyprian government to Greece.

Two cruisers, the London and the Shropshire, and two destroyers, the Achates and the Acasta, with more than 1,400 men and officers, were dispatched from the Mediterranean fleet base on the Isle of Crete after riots at Nicosia, capital of Cyprus, in the course of which Government House was burned.

Fifty soldiers were landed by airplane on the island, and six transport planes went from Ramleh to nearby Alexandria, prepared to take off at dawn tomorrow with additional troops. No machine guns were being taken, since there are plenty of Lewis guns on the island.

A company of the King's Rifles was sent to Port Said to proceed by trawler.

One report reaching Cairo was that the Greek Orthodox archbishop had proclaimed Cyprus united with Greece on the ground that the people of the island preferred that governmental alignment.

BEWARE THE COUGH OR COLD THAT HANGS ON

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold, no matter of how long standing, is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

JAPANESE TROOPS ADVANCE INTO NORTHERN MANCHURIA

nounced today that several Manchurian cities had been bombed by Japanese aviators yesterday and today. Five bombs were said to have been dropped at Kwangchengtze and six at Taoshing.

Tokyo, Oct. 22 (U.P.).—Japan will resign from the League of Nations if the league council adopts the resolution demanding withdrawal of Japanese troops from Manchuria, it was indicated today in usually reliable sources.

The government, however, was hopeful of a settlement of the crisis. Secret instructions were sent to the Japanese delegate at Geneva and it was believed Japan would make some concessions to the league demands, although it was not likely the government would consent to fixing a date for withdrawal.

Geneva, Oct. 22 (U.P.).—A resolution demanding complete evacuation of Japanese troops from Manchuria by November 16, was submitted to the League of Nations council today in a bold moye to meet the league's most critical test as a world peace organization.

Kenkichi Yoshizawa, the Japanese representative, immediately announced he could not accept a fixed date for evacuation, as provided by the resolution. Dr. Alfred Sze, the Chinese representative, asked for a delay to consult his government, and the council adjourned until 5 p. m. tomorrow, when it was proposed to act on the resolution. Other members of the council were understood to favor the resolution, which probably will be approved in modified form.

It was learned authoratively that the Japanese delegation, after studying the resolution carefully, considers it unacceptable, and plans to present a counter proposal demanding:

Demand Made.

1—Direct discussion of principles an dtreaty rights of the South Manchurian Railway;

2—A means of facilitating Japanese evacuation by assurances of Chinese goodwill;

3—Details of the administration of commercial and civil offices;

4—A program of evacuation in five stages until all districts have been made secure for Japanese nationals.

5—Commencement of direct negotiations for future Sino-Japanese relations in Manchuria.

"The resolution is the judgment of Solomon—fair to both sides and equitable in a solution under which two nations will not be obliged to make war," said Aristide Briand. He believes both Japan and China will finally agree to the demand.

"The league will never permit the Manchurian situation to go by default," said Lord Reading of Britain, describing the present session of the council as historical because of American participation.

The resolution provided:

1. Progressive evacuation of Manchuria, starting immediately, and to be completed when the council reconvenes November 16.

2. Adequate measures by China to protect Japanese interests in the evacuated territory.

3. Direct negotiations for a peace settlement to be inaugurated after evacuation, with China and Japan establishing a permanent conciliation committee to settle all of their differences.

As a result of the Japanese announcement, the league leaders may be forced to base their hopes for solution of the crisis on continued and steady withdrawal of Japanese troops, which would solve the question of Japan accepting a "fixed date" for evacuation if withdrawal is completed in the first two weeks of November.

In behalf of China, which has opposed direct negotiations unless Japan evacuates troops and recognizes China's claims for reparations, Dr. Alfred Sze asked the council for postponement of action on the resolution, scheduled for today, until Friday. He said he must ask the Nanking government for instructions, and he indicated that he might not be able to receive fresh instructions before 5 p. m. tomorrow, when the council reconvenes. All council members, aside from Japan and China, were said to favor the resolution.

Prentiss Gilbert, American Consul at Geneva, attended the council meeting. Yoshizawa announced that Japan maintained her legal objections to inviting a nonmember of the league to sit at the council table, but was now glad to welcome the United States delegate. Gilbert replied that he appreciated the position of Japan and spoke of the many years of cordial Japanese-American relations.

Occupied Territory.

Previously Japan had notified the council that all troops sent to Manchuria from Korea had returned to their garrisons. These forces totaled 4,000, leaving 10,400 troops in Manchuria. The Japanese also said they were occupying only Teichia, Tunk-Kirin and Hsinnim outside the railroad zone.

Tokyo, Oct. 22 (A.P.).—Japanese officials branded as "simply unthinkable" today the acceptance of China's demands for immediate withdrawal of Japanese troops from occupied areas of Manchuria, an inquiry by a neutral commission, and payment of reparations.

Press dispatches told of four basic principles advanced by the Chinese representative, Dr. Alfred Sze, to the Council of the League of Nations at Geneva. Officials here said three of the demands were entirely unacceptable as a basis for direct Sino-Japanese negotiations, but tentatively accepted the fourth, which suggested establishment of a permanent Sino-Japanese arbitration board to adjust differences of the two nations.

The other three principles were: Direct negotiations based upon Japan's immediate evacuation of occupied areas of Manchuria; appointment of a neutral commission to determine the extent of Japan's military activities in Manchuria, and payment of reparations by Japan for damages inflicted during the present occupation.

Miss Nesbit Better, Is Hospital Report

Daughter of Dead Banker Yet Unconscious From Wreck Injuries.

Condition of Elizabeth Nesbit, seriously injured in an auto crash which killed her father Wednesday, was reported as slightly improved last night at Casualty Hospital, although she has not yet regained consciousness.

Funeral service for her father, Harrison Nesbit, Pittsburgh banker, will be at his country home at Warrenton, Va., at 2 o'clock today. His body was sent from Washington yesterday.

Finding of a racing form on Nesbit's lap when his body was taken from the car after it hit a parked truck has given rise to the theory that the girl-driver's attention wandered from the road to the form, so that she did not see the truck in time to avoid it. So far investigators have not been able to question her. However, Judge H. M. Scott, of Laurel, has issued a certificate of accidental death in the case of Mr. Nesbit.

Song-Sheet Seller Arrested in Drive

Composers Society Seeks to End Practice by Test Case.

With the arrest of Bernard Simpson, 29, of 420 Sixth street northwest, charged with violating copyright laws, the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers, yesterday opened a campaign against selling of unauthorized "song sheets" on the streets.

Simpson was arrested by Detective Sergt. A. D. Mansfield, on a warrant sworn out by Harry Black, representative of the composers' society here. Department of Justice agents have been working on the case.

Pending the fixing of bond, Simpson is being held at the Third Precinct. A large bundle containing thousands of copies of the allegedly "lifted" songs was taken from the arrested man.

School Cadet Hit In Street by Auto

Youth Was Running to Avoid Being Late for Period of Drill.

The military code teaches promptness and George Senge, 13-year-old Western High School cadet, of 3643 Warren street northwest, has learned that lesson well. His zeal in avoiding lateness for drill yesterday, however, sent him to a hospital with slight injuries.

The boy was running across Thirty-sixth and R streets northwest to join his company, which was drilling at the high school. In his haste he did not see the automobile of Mrs. Adelaide Irving, 42 years old, of 4911 W street northwest, proceeding south on Thirty-sixth street.

The boy was knocked down as he ran into the side of the car, police say. Mrs. Irving took him to Georgetown Hospital. He suffered abrasions to his side and a sprained ankle.

Washington Descendant Expires in Connecticut

Norwalk, Conn., Oct. 22 (A.P.).—Mrs. Elizabeth Cardiza, 83, a descendant of the family of George Washington, died here last night.

Mrs. Cardiza for many years was treasurer of the Colonial Dames of Washington, D. C., and a member of the Daughters of the American Revolution. She was a great-great-great-grandniece of the country's first President.

CHINA THANKS U. S. FOR PEACE EFFORT

Nanking Government Replies to Note From State Department.

(Associated Press.)

China thanked the United States last night for the reminder that she and Japan had signed an antiwar pact in their argument over Manchuria.

The Nanking government was replying to a note America sent to both Japan and China recalling obligations under the Kellogg-Briand Treaty. Besides saying that the United States' message was "deeply" appreciated, China added that she had "been seeking, from the very beginning, a just and adequate settlement by pacific means."

"China has not adopted any measures of war, but has appealed to the United States of America, as well as the League of Nations, under the provisions of existing international agreements," said the Chinese answer.

Now that the league is approaching the problem under the provisions of its own covenant, the Washington Government feels it has no right to further participation. Its aloofness, however, is no indication of lack of sympathy with the peace making attempts now in progress at Geneva.

Officials at the State Department yesterday followed closely the league's efforts to arrange a basis for the withdrawal of Japanese troops from Manchuria and to bring about direct negotiations between Tokyo and Nanking.

In the absence of official reports confirming news of fresh hostilities in Manchuria and discouraging events at Geneva, optimism that war would be averted was undiminished.

Universal Prohibition Held Up as Goal at Atlanta; Liquor Sale Flayed.

Atlanta, Oct. 22 (A.P.).—Universal prohibition was held up today as the goal of Methodism.

The sixth ecumenical conference of the followers of John Wesley adopted a resolution committing the denomination throughout the world uneuivocally to a program of education, legislation and law enforcement to "protect society from the ravages of the liquor traffic."

Both the United States and Canadian sections of the conference presented separate reports on the subject, which, with the resolution, received unanimous approval by the conference.

Alexandrians to Argue For Widening Highway

Richmond, Va., Oct. 22 (A.P.).—A delegation from Alexandria will appear before the State highway commission here next Tuesday to present arguments in support of widening the Richmond-Washington highway from Fredericksburg to Alexandria.

State Highway Commissioner Henry G. Shirley said today that he had been informed of the delegation's proposed visit, but that it was his understanding it was concerned with a proposed cut-off road from the Mount Vernon boulevard to the Richmond-Washington highway.

Sumner L. Trussell, 70, Of U.S. Tax Board, Dies

Sisseton, S. Dak., Oct. 22 (A.P.).—Sumner L. Trussell, Minneapolis, 70, a member of the United States Board of Tax Appeals, died suddenly here today. He was appointed by President Coolidge to the Tax Appeals Board in 1924. At the expiration of his term he was reappointed for eight years.

Mr. Trussell made his home in Washington at Woodley Park Towers.

Burglars Loot P Street Store.

Forcing an entrance by smashing a rear window and cutting their way through a wall, burglars early yesterday morning robbed the store of William Jeweler at 1449 P street northwest of $12 in cash and two hams valued at $4 each.

Jahncke, Jr., Sent To Naval Hospital

Assistant Secretary's Son Is Confined to Bed With Broken Foot.

Ernest Lee Jahncke, jr., son of the Assistant Secretary of the Navy, last night was confined to bed in the Naval Academy Hospital, after he broke bones in his left foot in a fall down steps two days ago.

The Assistant Secretary of the Navy, who visited his midshipman son at Annapolis when he heard of the accident, yesterday said he is not worried about his condition. Physicians said he may be confined to the hospital six weeks or more.

Midshipman Jahncke was in formation, or at drill, when the fall occurred, although exact details could not be learned. X-ray pictures were taken immediately. Young Jahncke will graduate from the academy in June, 1933. He is being cared for by the regular academy physicans.

CHINESE FOES TRY TO UNIFY COUNTRY

Canton and Nanking Leaders Meet at Shanghai to Combine Power.

Shanghai, Oct. 22 (A.P.).—The unified, democratic China, for which Sun Yat-Sen, its first president, planned and fought, seemed nearer today as President Chiang Kai-Shek conferred with political adversaries who, until Japan's military invasion of Manchuria last month, were in active revolt against his government.

Simultaneously at Nanking, the capital, the National government made public its reply to the American note invoking the Kellogg anti-war pact. The reply promised to uphold the pact, expressing deep appreciation of "America's concern over Manchurian developments," and gratification that the United States should have cooperated with the League of Nations to promote a peaceable solution.

The peace negotiations here between the Canton and Nanking factional leaders probably will last several days. Then the delegates will move to Nanking, 93 miles northwest of here, for the formal peace conference.

President Chiang came from Nanking by plane, took up residence in the French concession, and immediately began conferences with Wang Ching-Wei, generally considered leader of the radical wing of the Kuomintang and brains of the Canton insurgency, and other South China leaders. Results of the conference were not disclosed.

The secrecy surrounding the peace negotiations is causing a bumper crop of rumors, mostly dealing with the political future of President Chiang, whose extensive powers have been the target for many Cantonese attacks upon the Nanking regime.

sciatica contracted shortly before the party was to sail.

Representative Hale was born in Portland, Me., 48 years ago. He was graduated at Dartmouth College in 1905 and was admitted to the bar three years later.

He was elected to the Sixty-ninth, Seventieth and Seventy-first Congresses.

Mr. Hale's death leaves 213 Republicans in the House of Representatives against 214 Democrats. There is one Farmer-Laborite.

His death was the second among Republicans in the last week, Ernest Ackerman, of New Jersey, having died Sunday. A special election will be held in December to choose a successor to Mr. Ackerman and five other House vacancies will be filled at the November general elections.

Representative Hale made his home in Washington at 2311 Connecticut avenue northwest.

TANNENBAUM HITS SYSTEM OF PRISONS

Wickersham Report Author Calls Document "Mild;" Starts Furore.

Baltimore, Oct. 22 (A.P.).—The Wickersham report on penal institutions, Frank Tannenbaum, of Washington, author of the document, said today was "a mild, friendly document, when it ought to be a severe and unrelenting indictment of the present penal system and all its doings."

Mr. Tannenbaum, speaking before the annual congress of the American Prison Association, disregarded the subject of probation that had been assigned to him to launch into a sharp criticism of prison conditions.

He mentioned by name four penal institutions—Clinton Prison, Dannemora, N. Y.; Ohio Penitentiary, Columbus, Ohio; State Penitentiary, Jefferson, Mo., and the State prison at Stillwater, Minn., and told of existing conditions that prevailed in them.

The congress today placed its approval on the Wickersham committee report by unanimously adopting a resolution in its favor prepared by two of its members.

The attack of Mr. Tannenbaum was described by some of the delegates as sending slightly awry plans of the association to forestall open controversy on the Wickersham report. They said it was followed by a furore that spent itself in anterooms and lobby groups and did not break out on the convention floor.

It was learned that Mr. Tannenbaum had not been invited to speak at the morning forum discussion of the Wickersham report.

sponsibility and in an irrational state or condition.

"I want to assure her that if this comes to her attention she will have every support and assistance I am able to give her."

Police believed Mrs. Judd was hiding in or near Los Angeles. They searched the canyon-like fastness of the Beverly Glen section, where a cabin of Mrs. Judd's brother, Burton McKinnell, is located.

A blanket and a small quantity of food was found today in one of several holes adjacent to McKinnell's cabin.

The theory of jealousy continued paramount throughout investigations. Authorities said they were undecided whether the jealousy arose through friendships with men or through an unnatural intimacy between the three women.

McKinnell and Dr. W. C. Judd, the missing woman's husband, were being requestioned by L. J. Andrews, Arizona County attorney.

ROCKVILLE WOMAN NAMED BY CLUBS

Mrs. John A. Holmes Indorsed for G.O.P. Committee Woman of State.

Special to The Washington Post.

Baltimore, Md., Oct. 22.—Mrs. John A. Holmes, of Rockville, was indorsed for the office of Republican national committee woman from Maryland during the tenth annual convention of the Federation of Republican Women's Clubs of Maryland at the Southern Hotel today.

Mrs. Holmes is the retiring head of the State federation, which she served as chairman for four years. The resolution suggesting her appointment as national committee woman was offered by Mrs. Arthur B. Bibbins, of Baltimore, and was unanimously adopted by the delegates to the convention.

Mrs. Lula E. Powell, of Baltimore, was elected president of the federation at today's session. Mrs. Holmes was honored with the office of vice president, especially created for her.

Mrs. Eva C. Chase, of Riverdale, and Mrs. Ida J. Curtis, of Ellicott City, also were chosen as State vice presidents.

Republican women of Maryland were told in an address by Galen L. Tait, chairman of the Republican State central committee for Maryland, "to look away from the shadows and face the bright sun of future days," under the leadership of President Hoover.

Other speakers at the luncheon which followed the convention's business meeting were former Mayor William F. Broening, of Baltimore, and Mrs. Virginia White Speel, Republican national committee woman of the District of Columbia.

Woman Overcome Preparing Dinner

Mrs. Bertha Verbeeck Is Found Unconscious by Husband.

Overcome when a jet on the gas stove in the kitchen of her home at 1905 M street northeast was accidentally opened while she was preparing dinner, Mrs. Bertha Verbeeck was in an undetermined condition at Casualty Hospital last night.

Mrs. Verbeeck had gone about the task of preparing the evening meal about 5 o'clock last night. Her husband, Gustave Verbeeck, happened to enter the kitchen some time later. He found his wife unconscious on the floor.

He called the fire rescue squad, which gave first aid treatment and took the woman to the hospital. While Mrs. Verbeeck's condition is considered serious, it was said at the hospital last night that she probably would recover.

Akron, Air Queen, Safe at Lakehurst

New Ship Comes Home to Dwarf Her Sister, the Los Angeles.

Lakehurst, N. J., Oct. 22 (A.P.).—A majestic new queen of the skies, slim, silver and graceful, came into her home port today in the pine friezed domain of the United States Naval Air Station. The U. S. S. Akron slipped into port bright with the gold of an October sunrise. Two hours after the first cable snaked down from her nose she was tucked in the station's hangar, dwarfing the Los Angeles. Her tail fin barely cleared the top of the hangar entrance.

Only a fleet of buzzing fighting planes convored her in. On Navy Day, October 27, however, the new queen will receive her full homage when she formally becomes a ship-of-the-line.

JEALOUSY BLAMED IN FIRING OF HOUSE

Two Die as Blaze Traps Them in Chicago Apartment.

Chicago, Ill., Oct. 22 (A.P.).—A plot of revenge by a jealous suitor was given by police today as the reason for the deaths of 5-year-old Doris Boehm and Aubrey Lay, 44, in an apartment house fire. Henry Thompson, 31, confessed, police said, that he hired two boys for $4 to set fire to the building because Mrs. May Boehm, 29, left his employ as housekeeper to work for Lay. Mrs. Boehm was near death from burns tonight, as were two other residents of the building.

"I told the boys to start just a small fire to scare them," police quoted Thompson as saying, "but I guess they made a mistake. Its too bad they had to die, but I did not mean it that way."

Several Are Rescued.

Flames were roaring through the building when police and firemen arrived early today. Several persons were carried from the building partly overcome by smoke, in addition to the dead and injured. Firemen said the building was a "fire trap."

Mrs. Boehm gasped from her cot in Henrotin Hospital the information on which Thompson was arrested.

"Mrs. Boehm left my home several weeks ago to keep house for Lay," Police Capt. Gregory Moran quoted Thompson as saying. "I went to see her last night while Lay was away and told her I was going to bomb the place. She begged me not to do it.

Started Big Fire.

"After leaving the place, I met two boys whom I had seen around the streets. I hired them to start the fire. Later I met them and asked them why they made such a bad fire, but they just laughed. I gave them $2 and promised them $2 more Saturday."

Police were searching for the two boys, whose names Thompson professed not to know. Authorities said murder charges will be filed against Thompson.

ROOSEVELT'S LAND PLAN HIT BY SMITH

Former Governor's Attack on Reforestation Seen as Break With Albany.

New York, Oct. 22 (A.P.).—In his first written political statement since his 1928 campaign for the Presidency, Alfred E. Smith today aimed more than 3,000 words of sharp criticism at the reforestation plan of Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt, who has been mentioned as a 1932 Democratic presidential candidate.

It was the second time in eight days the former governor had taken issue over the plan with the man he helped elect as his successor.

An address at a Tammany rally last Wednesday, in which Smith called the reforestation scheme a "reactionary proposal," immediately provoked published comment by many political observers interpreting Smith's action as a prelude to an open break with Roosevelt and consequent repercussions in the 1932 campaign.

No mention of national issues was made in today's 7,000-word statement, which dealt solely with six proposed amendments to the State constitution to be voted on at the November election.

The former governor used a long string of critical phrases in denouncing the proposed reforestation amendment, which has the full support of Roosevelt, and which the present governor has called "a liberal measure."

Smith said the plan was "unwise," "wrong in principle," "entirely without precedent," "wholly undesirable," "misleading," "confusing" and "badly drafted."

District Jobless Fund Is Planned

$300,000 or $1,000,000 May Be Asked of Congress to Relieve Problem.

Washington's unemployment problem will pass into history if the District employment committee is successful in efforts to obtain between $300,000 and $1,000,000 from Congress to find jobs for the jobless this winter, Chairman E. C. Graham said yesterday.

Chairman Graham seeks enough money to finance a comprehensive program under which every member of Washington's unemployed army would be given work. He said the plan is still in a formative state.

Lacking aid from Congress, the Capital will be unable to cope with distress likely to develop after cold weather sets in, he declared. He said the program as yet is so tentative that he does not know whether $300,000 or $1,000,000 will be required.

Backed by Progressives.

Assisted by the joint committee on internal revenue he has collected information on raising the inheritance tax and increasing the income tax in the higher brackets, along with the levying of a gift tax. In addition, he has looked into court decisions on big tax controversies with the intention of closing up loopholes in the income tax law through which evasions are possible.

The sales tax study of the Treasury is somewhat along the lines of the program submitted to the Progressives of both political parties recently by Representative LaGuardia (Republican), New York. In addition, however, LaGuardia would raise the income tax in the higher brackets, levy a gift tax and increase the inheritance levy.

Representatives Bachrach, of New Jersey, and Ramseyer, of Iowa, two tax legislation students on the last ways and means committee, also favor higher taxes on big incomes. Ramseyer is urging an estate tax to prevent the accumulation of wealth in the hands of persons who contributed nothing to its creation.

Some time ago, Senator Reed (Republican), Pennsylvania, suggested a general sales tax, but it met opposition among other Senate leaders of his party.

While no definite decision has been made as to whether it will be recommended to Congress, experts are carefully combing the field to see what articles could be included in the sales tax.

They have considered many articles and it has been definitely decided that no tax can be placed upon articles of food, rent, fuel or other necessities. Such articles as matches, automobiles, radios and perhaps cigarettes were considered as logical sources for bringing in additional revenue.

Taxes on such articles, officials believe, would largely be absorbed by the manufacturer and not affect the purchaser.

Automobiles formerly were taxed, but the tax was eliminated in the 1926 revenue act over the opposition of Secretary Mellon. Experts in going over the field have looked at the automobile tax from the standpoint that automobiles use the roads constructed by the Government and the States without paying any tax except a nominal license fee and a gasoline tax.

Howard H. Burr Wins Idle Relief Plan Medal

A gold medal was yesterday presented to Howard H. Burr, of 1522 Allison street northwest, as the winner of a contest sponsored by the District of Columbia committee on unemployment, in an effort to secure a suitable plan to relieve Washington's unemployed.

The presentation was made by George J. Adams, executive secretary of the committee.

COURT FREES MAN HELD IN ASSAULT

Disorderly Conduct Charge Against Hallidge Is Dismissed.

Alfred Hallidge, 30 yeears old, rental agent for the trustees of the Swartzell, Rheem & Hensey Co., yesterday won the first round in his skirmish with Policeman John W. Sheedy, of the Park Police, when a warrant charging him with disorderly conduct was dismissed by Judge Gus A. Schuldt.

The warrant had been sworn out by Mrs. Sheedy, who charged that Hallidge had been disorderly when he was in her apartment, at 705 Fourth street northwest, to inform her that she was no longer desired as resident manager of the building. At that time, Hallidge said, he was not given the account book and he returned for it later.

On his return, he testified, Sheedy, Edward R. Lee, his father-in-law, his stepson, George W. Lee, and a neighbor, Norman G. Henderson, assaulted him, some one jumping on him when he was down and fracturing several ribs.

The four accused were taken in on warrants charging assault, and through John P. Mullen, their attorney, they demanded jury trials. The date was set for October 28 by Assistant United States Attorney Wilbert McInerney, and the quartet was released on $200 bond each.

let's all go to Turkey

Where Turkish tobacco comes from Eastward ho! Four thousand miles nearer the rising sun—let's go! To the land of mosques and minarets—so different from our skyscrapers, stacks and steeples.

Let's see this strange, strange country. Let's see the land where the tobacco* grows in small leaves on slender stalks—to be tenderly picked, leaf by leaf, hung in long fragrant strings, shelter-dried and blanket-cured. Precious stuff!

Let's taste that delicate aromatic flavor—that subtle difference that makes a cigarette!

In every important tobacco-growing center of Turkey, Chesterfield has its own tobacco buyers on the spot

XANTHI . . CAVALLA . . SMYRNA . . SAMSOUN . . famous tobaccos!

*Turkish tobacco is to cigarettes what seasoning is to food—the "spice," the "sauce"—or what rich, sweet cream is to coffee!

You can taste the Turkish in Chesterfield—there's enough of it, that's why. Chesterfield has not been stingy with this important addition to good taste and aroma; four famous kinds of Turkish leaf—Xanthi, Cavalla, Samsoun and Smyrna—go into the smooth, "spicy" Chesterfield blend.

This is just one more reason for Chesterfield's better taste. Tobaccos from far and near, the best of their several kinds—and the right kinds. And pure, tasteless cigarette paper, the purest made. The many requisites of a milder, better smoke, complete!

That's why they're GOOD—they've got to be and they are.

WELCOME TO M. LAVAL.

Premier Laval of France, having intimated that he would be glad to visit the United States, a cordial invitation was extended to him by President Hoover. Accompanied by a distinguished party, M. Laval is now in Washington. No visitors from foreign shores could be more welcome.

The object of Premier Laval's visit is, of course, to bring about a better understanding between France and the United States for the sake of world welfare.

The difficulty of securing prompt action last June, following President Hoover's proposal for postponement of intergovernmental payments for one year, demonstrated that more harmonious cooperation between France and the United States was very desirable.

Germany was the crux of the situation last June, and Germany is the crux of the present international situation. M. Laval's recent visit to Berlin, while it was useful, does not appear to have changed the fundamental factors of the problem that now engages the attention of Messrs. Hoover and Laval.

The cooperation which the United States desires is wholly in the economic field. France finds difficulty in giving full economic cooperation because of political considerations.

Conditions in Germany seem to require further postponement of intergovernmental payments. The continuance of a government in Germany that will cooperate with other nations in working toward better conditions seems to depend upon further suspension of reparation payments.

Public sentiment in France strongly opposes further concessions to Germany. M. Laval is bound to represent the sentiment of his country.

In seeking a means whereby international economic cooperation can be obtained without sacrifice of French security, the suggestion is usually made that the United States can remove the obstacle by agreeing to political adjustments which would make France feel secure. It is suggested, for example, that the United States might agree to consult with the great powers in the event of threatened war, for the purpose of ascertaining the identity of an aggressor and making common cause against him.

Perhaps M. Laval has already learned that the United States will not attempt to solve world economic problems by entering into European political engagements. In that case he will not waste time upon this subject while in Washington.

While M. Laval was en route to Washington it was reported that he favored a plan for reduction of expenditures upon armaments. No doubt he and President Hoover will discuss reduction of armaments. Americans firmly believe that a reduction of expenditures for armaments by nations owing the United States should precede readjustment of cancellation of the debts. Since France is not disposed to ask for reduction of the debt if it involves reduction of German reparations, and since France is convinced that available armed strength is the only dependable security in the absence of treaties of alliance, it is almost too much to expect that the cause of reduction of armaments will be materially advanced by M. Laval's visit.

Much is said of a proposed international economic conference. Prime Minister MacDonald is feeding the hopes of British voters with his proposal to bring about such a conference, for the readjustment of war debts, the better distribution of gold and the scaling down of tariffs. The United States can not afford to enter such a conference. On this subject it may be that the two conferees at the White House will reach cordial agreement. Neither France nor the United States is in a position to buttress the British financial system with their gold, or to open their markets to British goods at the expense of domestic producers.

Americans are honored by the visit of the French premier and his party. M. Laval comes with good will, and he is welcomed with good will. On every side it is hoped that the conferences between M. Laval and President Hoover will be productive of benefit to all nations.

WAR CLOUDS DISPERSE.

The Sino-Japanese dispute over Manchuria is simmering down again to the status of a regional quarrel. It is apparent that the world has been unduly alarmed over the prospects of another great war growing out of this incident. No threat of war has been heard, except that of Chiang Kai-shek, president of the national government in China. Japan has repeatedly and emphatically declared that she has no intention of making war on China, or of extending her dominion in that war-torn republic. It is time for the international peacemakers to take cognizance of these declarations and to refrain from further impugning the integrity of Japan.

China's appeal to the League of Nations for aid against a Japanese invasion has been vitiated by the fact that evidence of such an invasion is lacking. Japan has treaty rights in Manchuria. There seems to be no doubt that those rights were ignored when Chinese troops destroyed a section of the South Manchuria Railway, which is under the complete administration of Japan. Under the circumstances the movement of Japanese troops into Manchuria are not an act of aggression. Any nation would have taken similar action to protect its nationals.

The League of Nations is not in a position to know what has been going on behind the scenes in Manchuria while it has been frantically trying to prevent a Sino-Japanese war. Apparently the council has now decided that there is no imminent danger of war, and has therefore centered its attention on the withdrawal of Japanese troops from northern Manchuria. At the same time Aristide Briand's resolution calls upon China to pledge its responsibility for safety to all Japanese nationals in the area to be evacuated. But China is not in a position to guarantee such protection. The hasty withdrawal of Japanese troops might only aggravate the situation. China and Japan are in a much better position to arrange these details between themselves.

It is now quite certain that the Kellogg pact does not apply to this case, because neither of the nations involved is making aggressive war. When it became apparent that the peace pact was not applicable the United States dropped out of the picture and is now accused of leaving the League of Nations in the lurch. The incident furnishes a good example of what happens every time the United States injects itself into the league's affairs.

ON BEARING ARMS.

A few months ago the Supreme Court decided that aliens who are unwilling to bear arms in defense of the United States can not become citizens. Last week the court refused to review that decision. All hope of the pacifists that they might break down the law at this point through judicial interpretation has failed. Now they are planning a legislative attack. A bill has been drawn up by one of the attorneys who argued these recent cases before the Supreme Court, and the Civil Liberties Union is planning a drive for its enactment in the next Congress.

This question goes to the root of citizenship and national security. Fundamentally, a nation is an organization of individuals for their common advancement and common defense. Citizenship is based on the obligation of every one who enjoys its benefits and protection to share its responsibilities. Foremost among those responsibilities is national defense. A nation could not exist at this stage of the world's development unless the people who compose it were willing to defend it, sacrificing their lives if necessary.

It is proposed that Congress should grant citizenship to aliens who decline on conscientious grounds to defend the country they wish to adopt. There are some would-be citizens, like Prof. Douglas MacIntosh, who believe in fighting only when they think the Government is in the right. Others who are knocking at the door of naturalization do not believe in defending their country with arms under any circumstances. The arguments of the first group can be dismissed as ridiculous. To the second group it can be said that since they do not believe in national defense they do not believe in nationhood and are therefore not fit subjects for citizenship. They wish to come into the national group, enjoy its benefits and protection, without sharing the responsibilities.

Nothing could be gained by extending citizenship to such individuals. On the other hand, one of the strong ties of national unity and common interest would be broken down. Citizenship would become meaningless. America has no place for those aliens who are so holy that they will not fight to defend the lives of their families and their homes, but who are nevertheless base enough to seek protection at the expense of citizens who are more courageous.

HOW THE STATES RANK.

Ever since former Senator Grundy, of Pennsylvania, suggested that "backward States" should speak small on important matters, there has been much interest in the relative standing of the States. In recent months the American Mercury has made a comprehensive survey of the States on the basis of wealth, education, health, public order, population, birth rate, religion, debts and taxes, newspaper circulation, &c. For the most part these extensive statistics confirm the general informed opinion as to the relative progress of different sections of the country.

Pennsylvania ranks high, of course, in population and manufacturing; but, measured by the criteria of wealth, education, health and public order, that State has only an average standing, being twenty-first on the list. Such "backward" States as Minnesota, Iowa, Oregon, Washington, Wisconsin, Nebraska, Utah and Kansas rank ahead of the enlightened Commonwealth which produced Senator Grundy.

Charles Angoff and H. L. Mencken, who conducted this research, conclude that Massachusetts and Connecticut are the most fortunate States in the Union. Massachusetts heads the list, being first in education, fifth in wealth, second in health and fourth in public order. Connecticut is among the first six States in each of the four classifications. New York takes third place, followed by New Jersey, California, the District of Columbia, Minnesota, Iowa, Illinois and Oregon.

On the whole, New England ranks considerably above the rest of the country. Since the natural resources of New England are not exceptional, one is led to infer that its advanced position is due to the fact that it has been settled for more than three centuries by industrious and intelligent people.

No one will be surprised to find the cotton-belt States at the bottom of the list. Mississippi assumes the title role in this study of "the worst American State." Mississippi is last in per capita wealth and last in education and public order; and only Georgia is less healthful. Alabama occupies second place from the bottom; then South Carolina, Georgia, Arkansas, Tennessee, North Carolina, Louisiana, Kentucky and New Mexico. Maryland, which occupies twenty-eighth place, Virginia, Florida and Texas seem to be the most progressive Southern States.

Mississippi's unfortunate position is due, according to the authors, to lack of natural wealth, bad climate and backward population. It is notable that Mississippi was the heaviest loser in proportion to population in the 1930 reapportionment of seats in the House of Representatives.

The District of Columbia occupies an extremely favorable position. In the "average rank" column it takes sixth place. In wealth it is fourth; in education, second; in health, eighteenth, and in public order, seventeenth.

Ramsay MacDonald's campaign address at Chotton was halted by booing and shouts of "You're a liar." It must be comforting to Ramsay to know that he will have some interesting memoirs to write if he is defeated.

Five million American automobiles will be driven across the Canadian border in 1931. Ah, the beauty of the North, aged in the woods!

Dear Uncle Sam: I can't pay my income tax because I didn't have any money, except what I lost at the races—Al Capone.

We whipped the redskins to get this country and the redcoats to keep it. Now we run at the mere mention of reds.

How can we prevent China and Japan from fighting when we can't settle the Army and Navy football scrap?

With the restored frigate Constitution in hock, the Navy ought to be able to save another $3.12.

Congressmen once sent seed to their constituents. Now the constituents send the Seed to Congress.

FUTURE OF TELEVISION

From the New York Times.

Such has been the progress made in television that at the opening of the recent radio show Mr. David Sarnoff predicted that next year would witness the establishment of what he termed "the theater of the home." What we shall see on the screen of the partially darkened living room will be a living image about 6 by 8 inches in size and about as well defined as a newspaper half-tone picture. Synchronized with the broadcast voice, the electrical counterfeit presentment will sing, talk and smile.

Surely, these small images will but whet the appetite. A performance of "Parsifal" at Baireuth visible and audible in New York, with singers as large as life—why not? Television lends itself to such imaginings. No engineer will deny that ultimately they will be realities. But give him time. Consider what television means even on a small scale, he reminds us.

In a motion picture theater we see a dozen whole pictures in a second, and because our eyes can not separate one from another we obtain the illusion of continuous motion. But a televised image consists of points of light alone. Several hundred thousand of these must be assembled every second to fool the eye into accepting them as a whole. The more points the better the picture. A million a second would give us the detail of a good photograph.

It is hard enough to obtain these many brilliant points on a small screen to reproduce only the head and shoulders. To see the full figure on the distant stage there must be more intense light than the engineer can now generate, and a more flexible distribution of it. There must be something far more sensitive than the photoelectric cell or "eye" of today which converts the points of light at the transmitter into electric impulses and reconverts these at the receiver into an image. There must be an optical system more effective than anything thus far devised to collect and concentrate light rays. Ordinary broadcasting is child's play compared with television on such a scale.

State the problem and its solution seems impossible. Yet the history of invention is full of "impossibilities." The television of today was just such an impossibility only ten years ago. With a half dozen research organizations here and abroad devoting their energies and technical resources to electrical communication, who will deny that we shall see across space as effectively as hear across it, that we shall be electrically present at great public festivities of the future, that the chief dramatic and operatic performances of New York, London and Paris will be retailed, as it were, to 50,000 theaters scattered throughout the world for the benefit not of a few fortunate travelers but of whole nations?

A Somewhat Peculiar Position.

POST HASTE.

Maybe Mlle. Josette can tell us a shorter name for the President of the Council of Ministers of France.

If Secretary Hurley has discovered a way for us to lose the Philippines without being charged with abandonment, his fame will rival Dewey's.

Fortunately the American gold reserve is ample to support the dollar in its impregnable position, and also to pay off all foreign gold deposits on demand.

The Geneva cavalcade appears a bit skeptical as to whether Uncle Sam, as an outrider, will keep up with the procession if it marches on Manchuria.

The unusual quiet of the Capital is due to the fact that no one for three days has demanded a special session of Congress.

Why attempt to tag the Vice President as a petroleum czar? He is neither an oily politician nor a gusher.

The Mexican Ambassador's newspaper says the new envoy to Washington "does not feel it right to impose on any guest a forced attitude of antialcoholic puritanism." Will his receptions be boycotted?

If the whole question of a security pact for France has to be thrashed out again M. Laval will have to prolong his stay.

The President said we must become the keepers of our unemployed brothers. The I. C. C. tried to pass the principle on to the prosperous railroads, but they are flirting with wage cuts.

An investigation doubtless will be necessary soon to determine whether it is an entirely moral and legal demand that causes a constantly increasing output of manufactured ice, notwithstanding the prevalence of mechanical refrigerators.

Both saved from the scrap heap, it is now in order for the Navy Band to serenade "Old Ironsides."

M. Laval was doubtless more impressed with the amount of woods and uncultivated land on the road to Washington than he was with New York's tall buildings.

Secretary Hurley's first meeting after landing was with his fellow statesman, Will Rogers. He wanted to brush up both on the news and the American language.

JUST FOLKS

WINNING THE YOUNG.

Were I a minister I think I'd waste
no time on gray-beards old Whose lives are fixed and settled sure and could not fit a new shaped mold.
They've wearied of the world and sit contented with their bit of truth.
But if I dreamed of nobler things I'd seek to catch the ear of youth

And if I wished to lead a charge against the shame and wrong men see,
I should not ask the smug-content to take up arms and follow me.
Old men with all their battles done, who've given the world long since their best,
Are satisfied with glories past and like too well their evening's rest.

I'd try to share my dreams with youth, for they are pliant, strong and bold,
And they are not afraid of change, and not too fond of customs old.
Their hopes are fresh, their aims are high, they're eager for adventures new;
And he who wins them for the Right real service to the world will do.

The old may sit and nod their heads, but all the sermons preached are vain.
They can not change their ways of life; as they are now they must remain.
But youth the higher realms may reach; young minds to splendor can be won,
And he who leads a lad to truth the noblest work of man has done.

It Is a Strange Charity That Offers Bread Only to Those Who Kneel

By ROBERT QUILLEN

BIG towns and little towns all over America, faced with the problem of unemployment, are trying to find the solution that will afford the greatest measure of relief without encouraging leeches, injuring honest pride or breaking independent spirits.

Those who have not learned by experience can learn from history, ancient and current, that the only solution free of faults is found in the age-old truth that the bread man eats must be earned by the sweat of his brow.

Following the great war, when the Near East relief organization was caring for adults as well as children, the derelict company that depended on its bounty included numerous Russian noblemen. These at first accepted charity with reluctant shame, but within a year they were content to fatten in dependent idleness and were suspiciously resentful of any effort to make them self-reliant and self-supporting. Their case affords sufficient proof that unwise charity can break proud spirits.

Last winter, when generous Detroit provided millions of dollars to support the destitute jobless, hundreds of men who had both work and money stood in line with the hungry to impose on the city's bounty, and one shrewd scamp somehow made himself rich at the city's expense. Detroit's experience, and others like it, afford proof enough that honorless men will become leeches when charity is too easily obtained.

And the common experience of all benevolent organizations affords sufficient evidence that the most needy and the most deserving often endure the pangs of hunger rather than suffer the greater hurt to their pride inflicted by the role of mendicant.

To eat unearned bread is to violate nature, and no good can come of it. "But," you say, "the idle heirs of the rich eat bread they do not earn." What does that prove? Are they examples of excellence? Does unearned bread make them good citizens, keep them free of vice or strengthen their moral fiber?

Trace it where you will, the bread that isn't earned does more harm than good.

It doesn't follow that the helpless are harmed by charity. Their very helplessness earns a share of the world's abundance. They are like children, whose inability to help themselves gives them natural title to share the earnings of the strong.

But the sound and whole who are in need must be helped without hurt to their pride or sacrifice of their manhood. If there is no other work to do, the rock pile will save the self-respect of those who have any and expose the fraud of those who haven't.

PRO AND CON

Press Comment Upon Acts and Actors in the Great American Show, "Politics."

Al Smith vs. Roosevelt.

New York Herald Tribune.

The annual campaign "whoopee" in Tammany Hall was significant more for its hidden bearing on the Presidential situation than for the cut-and-dried eulogies of the few candidates running for office in an off year.

Former Gov. Alfred E. Smith was there.

It is no secret that Mr. Smith looks with less than little favor upon the Roosevelt-for-President boom. It was not by chance that he took occasion to array himself forcefully and squarely against one of the governor's pet projects—a constitutional amendment to carry out his plan for reforestation. The governor has made much of this in his various speeches. Mr. Smith declared it had "wicked features" and should not go into the constitution. He intimated he would campaign to bring about its defeat. That would bring about a sharp division between the friends of the governor and those who for years have followed the advice of Mr. Smith.

The "Victory Fund."

Philadelphia Public Ledger.

About $400,000 of the $1,500,000 Democratic "victory fund" which Mr. Jouett Shouse and his associates have undertaken to collect with the aid of a firm of professional money-raisers is to help in paying for the 1928 campaign that resulted in defeat. However, hope springs eternal in the Democratic breast, and calling it a "victory fund" may possibly stimulate a loosening of purse-strings. Hitherto the only conspicuously liberal, if not wholly cheerful, giver has been Mr. Raskob, who yesterday contributed $100,000 to this latest fund with the remark that it was his "final" donation.

If everybody who voted for former Gov. Smith in 1928 gave a dime, the $1,500,000 would be raised in a jiffy. But the rank-and-file has never contributed to the party. It has preferred to let Mr. Raskob bear the burden. The belief that it will now cheerfully "chip in" is based on an optimism to which the Democratic leaders have long been strangers.

No Hope for Pinchot.

New York Times.

Gov. Pinchot and the Progressive Republican senators with whom he has been discussing the prospects of defeating President Hoover for renomination must know how overwhelming are the odds against them.

Even though it is decided in January to concentrate on Mr. Pinchot and contest twelve States, Mr. Hoover need not worry about a renomination. Political history and common sense combine to demand renomination unless, as Hayes did, the President declines a second term while campaigning for the first; or voluntarily retires from the field. It was clear in 1912 that Mr. Taft would be defeated. But the organization renominated him because he wanted to be. Already Postmaster General Brown has solidified the Southern delegates for Mr. Hoover, and the great Eastern States would probably rather go to defeat with him than to victory with a Progressive.

The Money Question.

Philadelphia Public Ledger.

The monetary question is of tremendous importance for France and the United States. It lies with these two countries to check the movement away from the gold standard and they should work in close cooperation. If the visit of the French statesman with President Hoover has no other result than to help bring the rest of the world back to a saner conception of currency and monetary values it will have been worth while. No problem that the world faces today, perhaps, is more important.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

An Attempt to Change Law on Alcoholic Content Would Leave Country at Mercy of the Liquor Interests.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The eighteenth amendment forbids the manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquors, and the Supreme Court has held that Congress can define what constitutes intoxicants. There seems to be no question, however, that if Congress should attempt to legalize the sale of intoxicating beverages the Supreme Court would hold that it did violate the Constitution and would declare the law invalid.

If the wets were able to force through Congress an amendment to the Volstead act allowing a higher alcoholic content in beverages, Federal officers would be unable to enforce any law. State officers would be thrown back upon State laws, and for a time there would be general chaos, in which many abuses might arise. The amended law would, of course, be instantly attacked in the courts, but it might be years before a final decision could be had from the Supreme Court because of the complicated questions involved and the legal delays which the wet lawyers would interpose. In the meanwhile the country would be flooded with alcoholic beverages contrary to the intent of the Constitution.

After the Supreme Court had declared this wet law unconstitutional, a very peculiar situation would arise. There would then be no law whatever specifying the alcoholic content of beverages. In fact, the situation advocated by the wets would come about and the eighteenth amendment would become entirely inoperative until new legislation had been passed.

The effect of such action upon the country can hardly be exaggerated. The liquor power would be wholly unchecked and the Nation would be plunged into an orgy of drunkenness.

Public Asks for Better Music, Rendered by Living Artists.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: May I through this column thank a friend, whom I may or may not know, as he has seen fit to call himself "Old-Timer?"

It would be a real pleasure, I am sure, if he be unknown by me, to make his acquaintance, standing as he does with an experience of 50 years in theatrical and musical endeavor. His article exposes a deplorable situation. Have we a remedy?

The orchestras in our Washington theaters, reduced as they now are to a minimum scale, are giving inferior performances. Why? Is it the fault of the musicians, their instruments or their employers? Can 15 or 18 men fill a theater intended for 32? Can we supplant the symphony or concert orchestras, as we had them a few years ago, with the so-called "shorts" now used to fill in time?

Music is the finest of recreations. It is a common bond linking together all mankind.

To all whose privilege it is to select amusements for the theater-going public we ask, in the name of many, that you consider the ones yearning for good music rendered directly by living artists.

ANN HANLY.

Detroit Man Holds Up Senator Moses as a Horrible Example of Intemperate Speech.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Thoughtful citizens will find much to cogitate upon in the deliverance of United States Senator George Moses, of New Hampshire, as he emerged from the White House a few days ago, following a conference with the President. The senator expressed the opinion that "2.75 beer would not satisfy the appetites of American drinkers." He suggested "they would prefer muriatic acid."

Mr. Moses is a very militant personage. He is high in the counsels of his party and President pro tempore of the Senate. But it will be interesting to follow the effect of such "acid" speeches both upon himself and his party in the coming campaign. Sardonic humor, veiled insults, and inflated truculence form an incendiary mixture in view of the present state of mind of all the people. Temperateness of speech in the existing national crisis is vastly more constructive and statesmanlike than scalding irony. It is more sorely needed than temperateness in conviviality, and never so much needed as now in the utterances of our public men.

HENRY B. SULLIVAN.

Fed Up on Bernard Shaw—Americans Have Toadied to Him Too Long.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The American people have received exactly what they deserve at the hands of George Bernard Shaw. They have toadied to him for years, in face of the obvious fact that his egotism is exceeded only by his bad manners. It is to be hoped that they will now proceed to put him in his place. His work deserves no such adulation as has been given it, since it has always decried the better and finer sentiments of life.

A Correction.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The Post in the item published on page 13 of Thursday's issue, "Colored Nominees Picked for Council," places me in the light of giving out a list of nominees in which my own name appears, but which list does not include the name of the editor of the Washington Tribune, also a nominee. The Post's statement—"made public last night by Woolsey W. Hall, corresponding secretary of the Federation of Civic Associations"—puts me in an embarrassing position as a candidate by appearing to be advertising my own candidacy. If the public could be informed that I did not give out such list The Post would do me a kindness.

LINDBERGHS' PLANE REACHES WYOMING

Hope to Resume Journey Eastward Early This Morning.

Rock Springs, Wyo., Oct. 22 (A.P.).—Speeding homeward after an aerial vacation trip that took them from New York to China, Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh landed here late today in a borrowed airplane and remained for the night. Arriving early today at Victoria, British Columbia, by steamship, the Lindberghs took off at 9:22 a. m. (Eastern standard time) and made stops at Seattle, Wash.; Nampa, Idaho; Salt Lake City and Rock Springs.

Fog, rain and head winds were encountered by the six passenger plane as it winged eastward toward Englewood, N. J., where Senator Dwight Morrow, Mrs. Lindbergh's father, died during the flying couple's absence.

Mrs. Lindbergh's sorrow at the expected homecoming was tempered somewhat by her eagerness to see her baby son, Charles A., jr.

"When we left home he was just starting to walk and stand on his feet," she explained at Victoria. "He is just 15 months old and we are anxious to get home and see him."

Col. Lindbergh said he will leave here as early in the morning as weather conditions permit. There was mist at Rock Springs tonight.

Cosmopolitans Hear Sea-Going Minister

The Rev. E. A. LeMoyne, rector of St. Columbus Episcopal Church, who spent many years at sea before he became a minister, yesterday described life under the rule of a "bucko" mate on the old square riggers, in a talk before the Cosmopolitan Club at the Carlton Hotel.

He told vivid stories of how crews were "shanghaid" by boarding-house "crimps" and how they were whipped into line by the mates. Yankee and "Bluenose" or Nova Scotian square riggers were the "hardest" in those days, he said.

They met the ambassador and his family during the summer, when the Mays were established in a cottage near Annapolis, where Mr. and Mrs. Rich and the former's brother cruised frequently aboard their yacht.

On Wednesday evening Ambassador May was host at dinner to prominent officials, entertaining in honor of the former Belgian minister of finance, M. Emile Francqui. Mrs. Hoover Plants Tree in Playground

New White House Social Secretary Accompanies First Lady.

On her first secretarial mission with Mrs. Hoover, Miss Doris Goss, of New York, former social secretary to the late Mrs. Whitelaw Reid, accompanied the First Lady to the Mitchell Playground yesterday afternoon, at Twenty-third and S streets, where Mrs. Hoover planted a tree. Asked to follow a precedent and plant a tree on a public playground, Mrs. Hoover thought it appropriate to choose Mitchell Park, just across the street from her former residence in S street.

Miss Goss has just arrived at the White House to take over her new duties. Mrs. Hoover met her for the first time while visiting at Ophir Hall, White Plains, N. Y., residence of the late Mrs. Reid, where the King of Siam and members of the royal party were visitors during their recent sojourn in the United States. Miss Goss is filling the vacancy created in Mrs. Hoover's secretariat by the former Miss Ruth Fessler, who gave up the position to marry Mr. Robert Lockwood Lipman, and is now residing in San Francisco. After the resignation of Miss Mary Randolph, who served as social secretary to Mrs. Coolidge, and later Mrs. Hoover, Miss Fessler and Miss Mildred Hall carried on the work at the White House alone for several months. Miss Randolph resigned about eighteen months ago.

Miss Goss is Mrs. Hoover's third secretary. The others are Miss Mildred Hall and Mrs. Frederick B. Butler, an old friend of Mrs. Hoover.

Col. and Mrs. Wrisley Brown have as their guest for a week Capt. Alan H. d'Egeville, of Lucerne-in-Quebec, Canada, widely known artist and writer and a fellow of the Royal Geographic Society. An authority on skiing, Capt. d'Egeville's recent book has been a joy to American devotees of skiing in Switzerland and Canada. He also contributes to several English magazines, including Punch, Sketch and Tattler. Several entertainments will be planned in his honor.

Mrs. M. de Clare Berry has returned to Washington from Yorktown where she was a guest at the pageants and luncheons of the commission and the governor and Commonwealth of Virgina and of Marshal Petain on board the French ships.

Mlle. Laval Is Honored by Dinner Dance

Mlle. Reine Claudel Is Hostess at French Embassy.

Mlle. Josette Laval, daughter of the French premier, spent her first evening in the American Capital at a dinner dance last night at the French Embassy, where she was the central figure in a group of young people, a chattering, gay crowd of Mlle. Reine Claudel's, daughter of the Ambassador of France and Mme. Claudel, who gave the party in her honor.

Everything had been planned by Mlle. Claudel while the daughter of the premier was en route on the Ile de France. With her was Mlle. Jacqueleine Guinier, daughter of the publisher of Le Journal, of Paris, who also was at the party.

Although Mlle. Renee Claudel, younger daughter of the Ambassador and Mme. Claudel, arrived also on the ship yesterday and came with the gay group to Washington, she did not attend the party last night, as she was thought too young for such festivities.

The dinner, at 8 o'clock, brought together about 30 young friends of Mlle. Claudel. Chosen to escort Josette was Count Francois de Buisseret, Second Secretary of the Belgian Embassy. Handsome, stalwart and a blonde, Count de Buisseret is the youth who helped keep Prince Charles of Belgium incognito during his visit to Washington.

Mlle. Beatrice de Buisseret, sister of the count, also was among the brilliant company. Mlle. Claudel's partner was Nobile Carlo Andrea Soardi, secretary of the Italian Embassy, who, by the way, is a dashing young Fascist.

For Mlle. Guinier had been selected Mr. Thomas Wolcott Waggaman as escort for the dinner. The other guests were Count di Gropello, assistant naval attache of the Italian Embassy, and Countess di Gropello; Mlle. May, daughter of the Belgian Ambassador; Miss Brown, Miss Kate Carlisle, Miss Helen Robbins, M. and Mme. Patenotre, the former a son of the former Ambassador of France, and Mr. and Mrs. Jay Pierrepont Moffat.

Also M. J. Parmentier, of the ministry of France, and a group of French aids, M. Jacques Ruess, M. Bacques Bizot, M. Pierre de Pasquier, M. Adodart Boissard, M. Louis Aubert, M. Albert Buisson. The embassy was represented by M. Pierre Henry de la Blanchetai, first secretary of embassy; M. Claude-Achille Clarac, attache, and M. Paris, attache of the embassy.

Women Writers To "Cover" Laval.

With the correspondents here in the wake of Premier Laval during his brief stay in town is a trio of women writers from France who, it goes without saying, will let nothing slip through their fingers. They are Mlle. Louise Weiss, of the L'Europe Nouvelle Magazine; Mme. Robert Taubois, of Le Petit Gironde, and Mme. Vlaenten Thomson, of the Provinciale Consortium, and they are all established at the Carlton Hotel.

Niece of former Ambassador Cambon, Mme. Taubois is conceded one of the cleverest women journalists of France. Mme. Thomson represents a syndicate of newspapers throughout France and knows well the demands of the fourth estate. And Mlle. Weiss, agent of the important French magazine, writes not only feature articles for the provinces, but is rated an authority on government affairs and on matters of finance.

That they will "sit in" on the important conferences between the President and Premier Laval is probable, as the three women are among the ranking journalists of their country.

Turkish Ambassador Plans Reception.

The Ambassador of Turkey has sent out invitations for a reception on Thursday, October 29, from 4 until 7 o'clock, at the embassy in celebration of the anniversary of the proclamation of the Turkish republic. The ambassador went to New York yesterday to meet his son-in-law and daughter, the Turkish Ambassador to Japan and Mme. Nebil, and the group will return to the embassy on October 26 after the arrival of Ambassador and Mme. Nebil's children from Turkey. After a visit here they will proceed to Japan.

Representative Fletcher Hale, of New Hampshire, and Mrs. Hale, Representative Cyrenus Cole, of Iowa, and Representative A. J. Montague, of Virginia, and Mrs. Montague will be among those who will arrive in New York this morning aboard the President Harding from Europe. Mr. Arthur D. Hall, secretary of the Interparliamentary Union, and Mrs. Theodore Coggswell, of Washington, are also among those arriving on the ship today.

Miss Betty West and Miss Dorothy Randolph will leave today for Princeton, N. J., where they will attend a university dance today and tomorrow will attend the Navy-Princeton football game.

The Marquis and Marquise de Chambrun were the guests on Wednesday evening of Mrs. Henry Alvah Strong, at the Mayflower. The marquis and marquise are here from Paris with the French delegation, which attended the Yorktown ceremonies. Mrs. Strong will have as her guest the latter part of the week Capt. Roger Brunschwiz, of New York, who will attend the reception tonight at the Mayflower in honor of Marshal Petain.

Wives of Tomorrow

FRANCES M'DONALD

Detour!

DEAR Frances McDonald: Do you think there is any hope for a case like mine? I am a poor hard-working, 24-year-old girl. I have struggled hard to get a high school education at night. I worked that I might some day be able to enter a training school for nurses. This has been my life's cherished dream and ambition. Three years ago I met a man, a year older than I, in the same school. We developed a strong friendship, and then came love. I loved him and still love him more than life. The result is after I graduated from high school, I gave up everything for this man, and to my horror I found out at the last moment he had only given me evil deception in exchange for pure devotion. He left me alone to bear disgrace. And worst of all he was married to another girl a year ago. I feel the only way out for me is death. I stood by him through thick and thin. I fed him when he was hungry and gave him money when he was out of work. I have a great faith in you, Miss McDonald. That's why I have come to you in this dark hour. Please answer me.

FLORENCE.

Listen, child, have you ever started out in a car for a given destination and for some reason found one road after another marked—detour? Of course, you have. Every one has. Well, you did not give up and turn back, did you? And you did not say, "It is no use, I can not get there." Certainly not. You just said, "Such luck," and took the next best road. And eventually you got there! And when you did you forgot all about the delays and the annoyances and the dust and the bumps. In fact you felt an added thrill over all that you had overcome in making that trip. Well, that is just what life is for every man, woman and child of us. We start out with such gusto. And what do we find? Road closed. Detour. Every bedevilment imaginable. Do we quit and just sit by the road helpless and spiritless? A few may. But the men and women you met, have all time and again just gritted their teeth hard and stepped on the gas. No going back for them. No, sir. And soon only the broad highway, clear and smooth ahead. We look at them then sailing along and think how fine they are getting on. Well, it was not always thus. They have had to get out and push. They have been in the ditch with no help in sight. But it is all in the past. And forgotten—except for the sense of power and the confidence that comes from the battle won.

Start now to look into the future instead of into the past. Start now to make for the broad highway that is waiting just beyond the last detour. It will be all the more smooth for the bumps you have known. And as people look at the sweet-faced nurse in Dr. Blank's office they will wish that they had studied nursing and could be so calm and confident. That is how life is. The day will come when the misery that fills your heart today will be as forgotten as the tears you shed in babyhood. You will yet look out upon the world with calm eyes, and glad smile. While the highway stretches smooth and straight ahead. So, cheer up, Florence, and step on the gas. And let me hear from you again.

What Today Means to You

"LIBRA."

IF October 23 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 10:10 a. m. to 1:05 p. m., from 4 p. m. to 6:10 p. m., and from 9:20 p. m. to 11:10 p. m. The danger hours are from 7:40 a. m. to 9:30 a. m., from 2:20 p. m. to 3:40 p. m., and from 7 p. m. to 8:55 p. m.

The planetary aspects of October 23 are complex, but in the main beneficial. An optimistic frame of mind should be cultivated, as the stellar influences make for unnecessary worry and vague fears. Various changes, as well as advantages, are denoted. Financial difficulties will disappear. Those, however, of the home and of a personal character will be accentuated.

A child born on this October 23 will, as a result of its temperament, form permanent habits in early life, and as the years roll by, will at no time show adaptability. It will be set in its ways. It will be steady and ploddingly persevering and will often be successful where others more impulsive would fail.

You, if born on October 23, are fond of travel—and this is the most distinguishing characteristic of your nature. No description—either printed or oral—of other places will ever satisfy. You must actually see them yourself. This same spirit is indicative of your general attitude toward life. You take little or nothing on faith, and "have to be shown." You are, by no means, an adventurer. You do not allow your wanderings to interfere with your career, and use them as an aid, rather than allow them to be a deterrent to success.

You are materialistic, and are not naturally religious—or, at least, not orthodox. You evince a natural interest in science, particularly in those outlying fields which contain phenomena of an unsettled and unknown character.

If a woman, you possess strong intuitions and powerful emotions. You are, too, quite impressionable, and take instant likes and dislikes to people. Your temper is rugged and uncertain.

Men and women born on October 23 are all capable of a strong and passionate love, tinged with jealousy. They rather incline to what is mystical, and are superstitious beyond the average. Their horoscope, in a general way, indicates extensive travel, happiness and unhappiness in about equal proportions, and rewards commensurate with their intelligence.

Successful people born on October 23:

1—Frederick S. Bigelow, editor.
2—Sarah Bernhardt, actress.
3—Sally O'Neil, film star.
4—James W. Denver, statesman, pioneer.
5—William M. Taylor, clergyman, author.
6—Francis H. Smith, engineer, artist, author and lecturer.

Dare Interprets the Mode

Schiaparelli fashions a swanky suit from novelty jersey, the coat red and green and the trouser-skirt brown and red, and fastens it smartly with S-shaped buttons. The blouse is dark red silk, lightly figured.

New York, Oct. 22.

IF you'd attain the latest fashions in a hurry, take a train! Not just any kind of train, of course, but the right kind—the kind that spells chic for autumn evening wear!

For honestly, now, bustles have had their little day and subsided rather reluctantly to back-peplums—basques, don't we call them? And these back-peplums, usually of stiff material, or material artificially stiffened to hold them out with the proper air of jauntiness, have been getting longer and longer until they provide interesting and smart trains which are, above all, graceful! And as the bustle just wasn't graceful, no matter how you looked at it, and as the peplum shared the bustle's fault of bulkiness, we should be grateful indeed to the train, which is a charming adornment to the grace of the gown.

Apron trains which extend from the waist in a downward direction, fishtail trains which sweep far out behind Miladi Moderne as she walks and spread at the end into a definite fishtail-shaped fan, panel trains which extend from the shoulders in a stately and sweeping fashion, split trains which drape about the hips on either side and join at about the knees into one train, and side trains which trail on the floor on both sides—these are just some of the latest developments in trainland. All they all share equally in an old-world glamorousness that's at once smart and becoming!

If there's one smart autumnal trick that Schiaparelli has missed in the creation of this swanky sports suit, I don't know what it is! You can see from my sketch that the suit consists of a plain short coat and a trouser-skirt, but it'll probably be news that the coat is of green and red novelty jersey, and the trouser-skirt of the same jersey, only of brown and red! What with its interesting falling autumn leaf coloring, its smart tailoring and its gold S-shaped buttons, it has just about all the qualities necessary to make a success of autumn sports wear.

• • • •

For that football game, for instance, wouldn't a chic, warm suit of this sort be a welcome change from the all too present fur coat idea?

And lest we forget that blouse—it's of dark red silk, lightly figured, the front and sleeves being cut in one piece, and with a scarf-neckerchief arrangement which informality.

• • • •

Have you ever wondered, when you saw a play of fairyland on the stage, how the Queen of the Fairies kept her wings on through thick and thin? And have you tried to make a pirate of Junior for the class masquerade, only to meet defeat when it came to the hat? Or have you tried in vain to give that authentic look to your witch's hat and cat when Halloween came around? I thought so! And so I gathered together a whole leaflet full of these tricks just in time to make your way easy for this Halloween. So better hurry and send your stamped, self-addressed envelope off to the Dare department of The Post for this leaflet, hadn't you, and be on time to get ready for all the fun?

Au revoir!

CULBERTSON ON CONTRACT

By ELY CULBERTSON

World's Champion Player and Greatest Card Analyst

BUILDING UP A BID.

THE business of bidding implies two separate processes—the correct interpretation of one's own cards, and the drawing of correct inferences as to the cards held by one's partner. These processes, however, are interdependent. Partner's bids are based, in their turn, on inferences drawn from one's own; thus at each stage, in the building up of a declaration which will best suit the two hands, the accumulated facts and inferences already disclosed are taken into account.

For example, I am Dealer, and I open the bidding with one heart. Partner registers at once the following facts:

"Culbertson has 2-½ honor-tricks at least. Hearts is his best suit. He has either five hearts to the K or Q J, or four to (at worst) the K Q 10. If hearts are trumps his hand is worth at least 4 playing-tricks."

My left-hand adversary now passes and partner bids two no-trump. I thereupon say to myself:

"Partner has in all about 2-½ honor-tricks. He can not have fewer, or he would have bid one notrump. He can not have more because he would have made a Forcing Takeout or bid three notrump.

"Probably he does not care about the heart suit. If he holds adequate trump support, the distribution is such as to cause him to believe that it would play better at notrump than at a suit.

"It is improbable that he possesses a good biddable suit of his own, although that is not impossible. He might have such a suit and be able only to overcall, whereas the bid of two notrump, if less informative, is better calculated to encourage further bidding than a mere overcall in another suit, which I might interpret as a denial of my bid."

My right-hand adversary passes, and it is my turn to bid again. I now say "three spades."

From this bid my partner draws the following inferences:

"Culbertson's hand is probably above a minimum. He is showing me, by his bid, slight additional honor values and a second suit. His spades are not as strong as his hearts, since he elected to bid the lower-valued suit first; he has probably five hearts and four spades.

"His hand is worth probably about 3 honor-tricks but he shows a willingness to play the hand for game, with the decision as to what that final game contract shall be left to me."

My left-hand adversary again passes. And this time partner says "four spades." My deductions are now these:

"Partner has no new honor values to show me; he told me about those on his first bid. But spades, unlike hearts, suits his hand. With the added information disclosed by my second bid, he can count enough supporting-tricks — if spades are trumps—to give us a reasonable chance of game."

The hand is thus played at a four spade declaration. By the exchange of facts and inferences—inferences based each time upon the facts and inferences already exchanged—the most satisfactory final bid is found; the antiphonal conversation between partners is resolved in a harmonious climax. There is an esthetic as well as an intellectual satisfaction in determining in this way how best to reconcile the possibilities of the two hands.

Here is the deal upon which the above conversation is based:

South—Dealer.
Neither side vulnerable.

	♠ 10 8 6 2 ♡ 9 4 ◇ A Q J ♣ A 6 4 3
♠ 7 4 3 ♡ A Q 6 2 ◇ 8 6 4 ♣ 10 9 2	N W E S	♠ K 9 ♡ 7 5 ◇ K 10 7 5 2 ♣ Q J 8 5
	♠ A Q J 5 ♡ K J 10 8 3 ◇ 9 3 ♣ K 7

The Bidding:

South	West	North	East
1♡	Pass	2NT	Pass
3♠	Pass	4♠	Pass
Pass	Pass

South makes his contract, in spite of the fact that two out of three finesses are against him.

TODAY'S POINTER.

Response of Five to an Opening One-bid.

This, in a major suit especially, is a slam signal. It shows about 7 supporting-tricks and, generally, control of two suits. If Opening bidder has ½ trick over his minimum, there will be probabilities of Slam.

EXAMPLE:

Opening bid is one spade:

Honor-tricks		Playing-tricks
1-½	♠ A Q 10 2	2-½
0	♡ 9 8	0
1	◇ A 5 4 3	1-½
0	♣ 10 8 7	0
2-½		4

Response is five spades:

Honor-tricks		Supporting-tricks
½	♠ K 8 6 4 3	2
1-½	♡ A Q 4	1-½
0	◇ 7	2
1-½	♣ A Q 9 3	2
3-½		7-½

In this case, as Opening bidder has only his minimum honor values, the Slam invitation is declined.

GARDENS

PLANTS IN THE HOUSE.

IN order to grow flowers well—and the true lover of flowers will not be satisfied to grow them in any other way—we must understand their habits and requirements. Unless these are understood the cultivation of flowers will be largely experimental in its nature, and we will never feel confident of doing the right thing in the right way at the right time. The experiment may prove successful, but in many instances it will result in failure.

The general principle upon which successful floriculture is based is very simple. Much of our information must come from a study of the plants we are growing. There are, however, a few basic principles that every one growing a plant or a vine or two should understand.

We must not attempt to grow all plants after the same plan. Plants differ in their natures, so we must vary or modify any general rules that may be laid down and suit the treatment to each plant rather than oblige all plants to respond to a particular kind of treatment.

We must not attempt more than we can carry through. Better have one well-grown specimen than ten dejected-looking ones. A common geranium well grown will be more satisfying than the rarest orchid poorly grown. Aim to develop all the plants' possibilities. Plants are as responsive as children and will unfurl their loveliest tints and tones for those who love them.

Plants in the average house have a struggle for existence even under the best conditions. So when choosing plants for our home we must select only those with ironclad constitutions that will be able to withstand lack of humidity, warm, dust-laden air and sudden changes in temperature. Keep in mind that blooming plants require sun at least five hours a day and that foliage plants are only ones that will exist in sunless rooms.

If plants turn yellow it is usually due to too little or too much water, lack of food, standing in jardinieres with what the florists term "wet feet" or the presence of insects on the lower side of the leaves. If plants drop their leaves they are getting too much water and too little sunlight.

All readers' questions on growing and care of indoor and outdoor flowers and floral decorations for social functions will be answered by Miss Kift, directly in this column if addressed in care of The Washington Post, or directly to readers if a self-addressed stamped envelope is supplied.

DO YOU SUFFER FROM WOMAN'S WEAKNESS?

Cumberland, Md.—"About two years ago my entire system was very much run-down. I had no ambition, felt all tired out and very nervous, hardly able to do my work. Suffering from woman's weakness no doubt caused this breakdown," said Mrs. Ethel Shoemaker, of 233 Paca St. "Mother urged me to take Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. I had taken only half a bottle when I noticed a great change, but kept on taking it until I was not only the picture of health but also was in perfect health."

MAKING BOTTLED WATER SAFE.

BOTTLED mineral spring waters are safe, at least so far as water-borne diseases are concerned. There are several reasons for this. One is the fact that both the water, as it is sold in bottles, and the springs from which it flows, received a certain amount of attention from the Federal and local governments.

The control of bottled mineral waters that go into interstate commerce rests in the food and drugs division, United States Department of Agriculture. This organization picks up waters as they are found on sale and makes analysis of them. In addition, they inspect some of the springs which produce these waters and the plants in which they are bottled. The State governments, usually through their health or food departments, analyze samples found on sale, and examine the springs and bottle plants as to sanitation. In some cases this is also done by the local departments.

The Department of Agriculture has a working arrangement with the various State departments through which there is exchange of reports of sanitary engineers, chemists, and bacteriologists. The standard required of bottled waters is that set for public water supplies and is, therefore, more stringent than is necessary for safety.

Practically speaking, there is very little danger that a bottled water will carry the bacteria of water-borne disease, since these microbes do not survive long in unnatural surroundings. If the water contained such bacteria as it came from the spring it could be expected to be free from them within a week, or at least incapable of doing any harm. Bottled mineral waters are generally much older than that when they reach the consumer. In addition, the minerals and gases in most of the waters help sunlight, time and the other agencies in killing off the bacterial life. A very considerable experience with bottled waters shows them to have bacterial counts that are very much lower than those of public water supplies.

Supplementing all this, the industry generally has its product checked by its own bacteriologist and engineers.

PIGMENTATION.

Mrs. M. F. writes: What is the cause of pigmentation of the skin, and what can be done for it?

REPLY.

If you ask what is the immediate cause of normal pigmentation of the skin, the answer is: The deposit of certain colored chemicals in certain cells of the deeper parts of the skin. If you ask what are the exciting causes of abnormal pigmentation, the answer must be incomplete.

Excess light is the cause of tanning and of some kind of freckles. Certain parts of the light ray act on the pigment cells of the skin. A skin fungus akin to ringworm causes some patches. Tuberculosis of the adrenals causes the pigmentation of Addison's disease.

BLOOD PRESSURE FOOD.

V. A. S. writes: Will you suggest a list of foods that a person with high blood pressure should eat?

REPLY.

The control of blood pressure covers much besides diet. In fact, dieting is in the second rank as a means of controlling high blood pressure.

Do not eat heavy meals. Do not gorge with food. Eat meats and eggs in moderation. Live principally on bread, cereals, vegetables, fruits and milk.

Do not tolerate constipation. If there are heart and kidney complications and dropsy is present, limit sharply the amount of salt eaten.

I have a booklet on abnormal blood pressure which you can get by sending 10 cents and a stamped, addressed envelope.

by police to have been with the liquor thieves.

Information unearthed by Detective Sergts. Joseph Waldron and Thomas Sweeney has it that Talley Day, who had access to the automobile owned by Bryant McMahon, a doorman at a resort near the District line, drove McMahon's automobile.

Before the assault upon Dr. Leiva, Achilles Orphanos, night manager of the Shoreham delicatessen, near the legation, observed several men making telephone calls. These calls were to the legation, it was decided, in an attempt to learn whether any one was at home. Dr. Leiva was visiting friends on that night.

Orphanos became suspicious and took the number of one of the automobile license tags, which was the number of McMahon's car. After the assault, Detective Sergt. Larry O'Dea went to the resort and found the motor of the automobile was still warm. McMahon, the detectives learned, worked from 8 p. m. to 4:30 a. m. on that day, and after being held for two days was released. Talley Day was also held but later released.

Plans for the theft of the liquor, as uncovered by Detective Sergts. Waldron and Sweeney, went awry when the truck which was to cart it away broke down. This delayed removal of the liquor which had been stacked in the rear of the legation.

While the men were awaiting the truck Dr. Leiva returned and encountered two of them in the hallway. One pulled a gun. Several shots were fired and Dr. Leiva was struck on the head with a gun.

When the other members of the gang heard the shots in the legation they waited only a few minutes for the two who were inside. Only one appeared and with him the rest sped away. The second man in the legation, after he had broken away from Dr. Leiva, waited for the automobile to return. Detective Sergts. Sweeney and Waldron learned.

The automobile circled the block several times, but missed the assailant of Dr. Leiva. He then got in a taxicab and was taken to the home of another member of the gang, where he obtained money for taxi fare.

One member of the group who is still at large is hiding from the wrath of Baltimore thieves because he informed police on men who staged a holdup there two years ago.

After the assault the men stayed in "hideouts" for several days. It was in search of them that four headquarters detectives staged a series of sensational gambling raids while "looking for a couple of fellows."

Six days after the attempted legation robbery, Jack Cunningham, who is supposed to have had knowledge of or participated in it, went to the First Precinct to turn over to police a gun which had been used in a shooting affray on Twelfth street.

On his way to his home he was fired upon from an automobile in an alley near Fourteenth and I streets. He died from the wounds. The bullets which killed him were the same, Lieut. Fowler said, as those fired at Dr. Leiva. The gun believed to have been used in both cases was found May 21 on Lincoln road near Trinity College.

It is the theory of police that Cunningham's visit to the First Precinct was misunderstood by participants in the legation entry as a move to inform upon them and that, fearing the consequences, they killed him.

Although Talley Day was believed to be connected with the legation job his death in a speakeasy argument over a card game is not an aftermath of the attempted liquor theft. Elmer "Bulldog" Sweeney admitted to police he shot Day in self-defense in a card game argument.

After coming from cover the men who are suspected of the legation job and the Cunningham killing, were traced to Long Island by Detective Sergts. Sweeney and Waldron. There they joined William Mayor Humphries, 47 years old, international confidence man and wire tapper, who was arrested here September 15, 1930, on a charge of defrauding the Royal Bank of Montreal of $136,000 on a spurious draft.

They later went to Canada. On several occasions the men are reported to have announced their intention of surrendering to police, but never appeared.

Adventists Face Modernist Fight

C. W. Irwin, Capital Head of Church's Education, Urges Changes.

Omaha, Oct. 22 (A.P.).—Delegates to the annual world conference of the Seventh Day Adventists' Church today heard a special report, which, if passed, would radically change the educational policy of the church.

The report, submitted by C. W. Irwin, of Washington, D. C., head of the educational department of the church, tonight will be placed before the convention for discussion. In effect, it will be a grapple between modernism and fundamentalism as applied to the church's educational system.

Irwin recommended that two of seven Adventist senior colleges be reduced to junior colleges, and that instructors be sent to universities for advanced degrees, at the same time assisting their colleges to gain accredited standing.

The five institutions to remain senior colleges include Washington Missionary College at Takoma Park, Md. F. M. Wilcox, of Washington, editor of a church publication, opposed the measure.

ZIONIST CONFERENCE TO REORGANIZE AREA

Midyear Conference Will Be Held in Washington Sunday.

Plans for the reorganization of the Seaboard Zionist Region will be submitted at the midyear joint conference of the region at the Jewish Community Center this Sunday, it was announced yesterday.

These plans to be submitted by Harry T. Kellman, of Baltimore, honorary president and chairman of a committee on planning, are expected to result in the inauguration of a series of activities that will reach out to all communities regardless of size. These activities, it was said, will culminate with the annual regional conference to be held some time in February. Time and place of the conference will be determined at the meeting here.

The outstanding feature of Sunday's meeting will be the presidential message to be delivered by Rabbi Edward L. Israel, of Baltimore, president of the Seaboard Zionist Region.

Decisions affecting the Zionist National Convention to take place in Atlantic City the first week in November will be considered at the meeting here and the region will make known its position on many important Zionist problems, it was announced.

Jewish organizations to be present at the regional session include the following: Hadassah Seaboard Regional Unit, headed by Mrs. Israel Shapiro, of Baltimore; Junior Hadassah, headed by Miss Sylvia Coplon, of Norfolk, Va.; American Palestine Campaign Committee, headed by H. L. Caplan, of Baltimore, and the Jewish National Fund Regional Committee, headed by Israel Silberstein, of Baltimore.

The Junior Hadassah will have a separate meeting in the Washington Loan & Trust Building Sunday morning, but will join the regular session of the region Sunday afternoon.

Washington representatives of the administrative committee of the Seaboard Zionist Region are Isidore Hershfield, who is vice president of the committee; Paul Himmelfarb, John M. Safer and Mrs. John M. Safer. Mr. Hershfield and Mr. Himmelfarb are also vice chairmen of the American Palestine Administrative Committee. Mrs. Safer is a member of this committee.

WAY PAVED NOW FOR RAILROAD POOL

the grave legal obstacles offered in the I. C. C. plan. No legal formula for diverting a portion of one road's income to the treasury of a less prosperous system could be found, and there always hung over such an arrangement the threat of injunction proceedings by stockholders of some of the stronger roads to prevent any contribution to the pool. Further, the original pool involved, as many rail heads saw it, an enlargement of the Government's direct part in railway management and a consequent weakening of responsible control.

Rate increases which the commerce commission estimated would net between $100,000,000 and $125,000,000 annually in new revenues were offered in Tuesday's decision. Formal agreement next week between the commission and rail executives' subcommittee on the details of the credit pool would make possible the application with the new tariffs within perhaps 30 days.

Until the subcommittee reports upon its conferences with the commission, the problem of wage adjustments and other possible reductions in operating costs will not be considered further.

ABOUT THE SHOWSHOPS

With NELSON B. BELL

ONE of the keen disappointments of the early season is the cancellation of the Sunday night engagement of Maurice Browne in "The Unknown Warrior" at the Belasco. A brief note from Mr. L. Stoddard Taylor, manager of the Belasco, states that although the Sunday evening performance is canceled, there is a strong probability that Mr. Browne will be seen here later in the year in the famous war drama.

It is not impossible that the revamping of "The Improper Duchess," in which Mr. Browne presented Irene Bordoni here some weeks ago, may have had something to do with the alteration of the plans for the transcontinental tour of Mr. Browne under the auspices of James B. Pond.

It was the original plan to take the "Duchess" into New York for a run long before this. The alterations suggested as necessary by the Washington engagement, however, have taken longer to make than was anticipated and it is now the outlook that the James B. Fagan play will not reach Broadway until late in December.

In the meantime, the piece is being thoroughly rewritten and recasted, with the net result that when it does reach Broadway the probability will be that only Miss Bordoni of the original cast will remain.

The more I see of her, the more convinced I am that Miss Estelle Taylor, who completed a week of personal appearances at the Fox last night, is a most remarkable young woman.

When I dropped by her dressing room to bid her goodby last evening, it came about that I had to confess having given her a none too good notice for her work with Ronald Colman in "The Unholy Garden," a most unholy picture, if you ask me. Greatly to my surprise, I learned that Miss Taylor's appraisal of her work and my own are identical—she hated the role and hated the tempo in which she was made to play it by George Fitzmaurice the director. Instead of giving me an argument, she agreed that it was all wrong from start to finish. It is the only picture by the way, toward which she has ever held any such feelings of resentment.

A very refreshing young person in all her honesty and frankness.

Yesterday afternoon at the Mayflower, Walt Disney, creator of "Mickey, the Mouse," most celebrated of all the cartoon comedy characters, and of those convulsing "Silly Symphonies," held open house for the dramatic desks of the Capital.

Those who had always looked upon the manufacture of a cartoon comedy as just so much joyride, discovered their mistake when Mr. Disney related the com and per plexities with which any organization finds itself confronted when attempting to transfer to the screen the drawn antics of a humorous character. Thousands of drawings are necessary to accomplish the laughable action Mickey performs on the screen. Before a Mickey Mouse subject is begun, story conferences are held, just as though a full-length feature picture were to be put in production. As the "shooting" progresses, revisions are made and new ideas substituted for old, provided they seem to be funnier than those originally mapped out.

The public approval that has greeted this minutely painstaking method of popularizing an inanimate figure has rather more than compensated those concerned for their trouble.

The cotton guessers can now go to it with all the vigor they can muster. The bale of cotton that will win a round trip by air to Atlanta and back with a companion is now on view in the Fox lobby. All you have to do to grab the award of first prize is to guess nearer than anybody else just how much the bale weighs in pounds and ounces. If you care to heft it and maybe hold it out at arm's length as a means of estimating its total poundage, I assume that that will be okay with the management.

It has now been definitely determined that William Haines, the screen star, is to make a week of personal appearances at the Palace Theater in this city, although the precise date of the booking has not been made known even to the local management. Neither is it certain that the appearances will be in conjunction with first Washington showings of "The New Adventures of Get-Rich-Quick Wallingford," although it is more or less taken for granted that such will be the case.

Speaking of the Palace, the advance week booking by a last-minute shift has been changed to "The Cuban Love Song," in which Lawrence Tibbett is star, supported by Ernest Torrence, Lupe Velez and Jimmie "Schnozzle" Durante. This is much the same cast as appears in "Wallingford" with Mr. Haines.

The service organizations of the Capital are doing their duty by Mme. Ernestine Schumann-Heink, appearing as Katisha in "The Mikado," at the Belasco this week. Last evening Capt. Fred Kochli, who lost an arm in the Argonne and wears both the Distinguished Service Cross and the ribbon of the French Legion of Honor, presented the diva with a huge basket of flowers on behalf of the Disabled American Veterans. Mme. Schumann-Heink has frequently sung at their national conventions.

Yeah, that sure thing out at Laurel was just about as sure as they usually are!

ALEXANDRIA MASONS ARE HOSTS TO RITE

Supreme Council Orator, Louis Block, Speaks at Reception.

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU.
907 Prince St., Alexandria, Va.
Phone Alexandria 523.

Alexandria-Washington Lodge, No. 22, of Masons, with the master, E. L. Skidmore, presiding, at the meeting last night entertained at a reception for the members of the Supreme Council of Scottish Rite Masons, who are holding their biennial session in Washington this week.

The principal address was made by Louis Block, of Davenport, Iowa, the inspector general of Iowa. He is regarded as the outstanding orator of the supreme council.

During the reception the offices of the lodge were filled by the following thirty-second degree Masons, all of this city: Percy E. Sherwood, junior steward; Samuel W. Pitts, treasurer.

One hundred members of the Five Points Club, of the Interstate Commerce Commission, Washington, were present, arriving in Alexandria at 5:45 and being entertained at dinner at the George Mason Hotel prior to attending lodge.

Alexandrians who have just returned from the annual celebration of William L. Elkins Lodge, No. 646, Philadelphia, on Monday night last include Worshipful Master E. L. Skidmore, Dr. S. $20,000 Damage Suit Against Bus Line Opens

The case of Miss Marie Duehring, of Livingstone Heights, Arlington County, against the Washington-Virginia-Maryland Coach Co., for $20,000 damages, alleged to have been sustained in December, 1930, opened before Judge Walter T. McCarthy in the circuit court of Arlington County yesterday.

The case grew out of injuries claimed to have been suffered when an Army truck is asserted to have crashed into the side of the bus at the intersection of K and Twenty-first streets northwest.

Race for Arlington County Sheriff Is Old-Time Fight

Younger Voters Remember When Fields and Clements Began Battling Over Post as Campaign Looms for Coming Term.

By J. B. McDONNELL.

Back when a considerable number of the younger voters of Arlington County were wearing kneepants, Sheriff Howard B. Fields and Andrew Cornelius Clements began fighting over the job of county sheriff and the end is not yet, for they are the leading candidates before the voters, who will settle the dispute for another four years on November 3.

Mr. Fields was first elected sheriff in 1915. Mr. Clements ousted him in the next election in 1919, winning by a very few votes. Thomas Lee also was a candidate in that year, but withdrew at the last minute and, so the Fields supporters claim, that cost the sheriff reelection, for 486 ballots were thrown out because they had the names of both Lee and Fields unscratched.

Four years later, in 1923, they went at it again and this time Mr. Fields won. In 1927 they fought the battle once more and Fields was reelected over Mr. Clements and four other candidates. Now they are at it again, with three other candidates, Z. O. Kines, Edward Duncan and Carl Arthur Schulze, adding to the excitement, especially Mr. Duncan.

Mr. Duncan is chairman of the county board of supervisors, which goes out of existence at the end of the year and whether he is elected sheriff or not he is making himself heard. There is more liquor and bootlegging in the county than ever before, Mr. Duncan said. You'll tell that to the grand jury, the sheriff promised, and subsequently served him with a summons to do so.

Under the administration of Sheriff Fields there has been a radical reorganization of the county police force. There has been organized a traffic force of fourteen men, twelve of whom are on full-time duty and all of whom are on salary instead of being paid by fee for the arrests they make.

It would be difficult for any one to convince many teachers of both public and private schools that the sheriff's traffic squad isn't all right.

Oh, yes, the sheriff's opponents admit, his police force is popular; that's the trouble, it is too popular. Arlington County is cleaner today than ever before, the sheriff replies.

The fight over the sheriff's office is sharing the spotlight of public interest in the county political campaign with the battle for the post of Commonwealth's attorney.

There are five candidates for that office also, with William C. Gloth having the advantage of holding office, with the other four not only having to beat him but also their brother stormers of the job. Lawrence W. Douglas is said to be the man Mr. Gloth will have to beat, but the supporters of Amos C. Crounse and Clarence R. Ahalt, Republican nominee, of course, do not admit any such thing and the friends of Emery Holmes, the other candidate, are hopeful.

John Warwick Rust, attorney, of Fairfax, who defeated Senator Frank L. Ball for the Democratic nomination in the primary race for State senator, is believed to have the edge on his three opponents at this stage of the campaign. If the fight were to be decided on strictly party lines it is possible Mr. Rust might suffer more than his Republican opponent, because L. C. Painter is running as an independent Democrat. Mr. Painter has more than his independent Democracy to offer and is running on a single-tax platform. William L. Norford, of Alexandria, is carrying the Republican banner. Not conceded even an outside chance of victory, but carrying on determinedly, is Mrs. Julia Morgan Jones, of Alexandria, who is running as a Socialist.

Hugh Reid, Democrat, has only one opponent, J. Foster Hagan, Republican, in his fight for reelection as delegate to the General Assembly. Unlike the purely county offices, terms of which run for four years, the term of State senator and delegate runs for two years.

Mr. Reid has been elected the last two terms. In the last election he polled 3,065 votes, defeating Will W. Douglas, president of the Arlington Trust Co., who ran as an Independent, and polled 1,616 votes, and Louis A. MacMahon, newspaperman, who was the Republican nominee, and polled 1,038 votes.

There were four candidates for Commonwealth attorney in the last election, which was won by Mr. Gloth with 2,069 votes. In that election Walter U. Varney received 1,731 votes and Mr. Crounse, who is back again this year for another try, got 1,373 votes, and Edgar W. Pumphrey received 646 votes. Mr. Gloth, who fell into some criticism as a result of purely personal difficulties, is believed to have overcome whatever damage was done him among the voters and even to have gained ground among the women voters.

Eight gentlemen of the bar are fighting for the office of trial justice, another new office created by the law reorganizing the county government. B. M. Hedrick, who is a member of the board of supervisors, which passes out of existence at the end of the year, is the Republican nominee. Other members of the passing board of supervisors, incidentally, are seeking other offices.

The new county organization act abolished eleven offices and replaced them by the job of trial justice. Naturally enough some of the justices of peace whose office is abolished do not take kindly to the idea and are seeking the post of trial justice. Among these is Bryan Gordon, of Jefferson district, who was identified with the klan in the public mind in the last and former elections, and who has practiced law since 1896 except for six years in the income tax division, which he left in 1924.

Another justice of the peace who wants the trial justice job is Hugh M. McCaffrey (Republican), running as an independent. Melvin G. Ely set out early to get the post. He was one of the principal candidates before the Republican convention in July. The convention, however, selected Mr. Hedrick as the party nominee.

Mr. Ely complained about steamrollers and other things and when it came time to file notice of candidacy, he tossed the verdict of the convention overboard and filed.

William Thomas French is seeking the place as a Democrat. Walter U. Varney, who bolted the party and was one of the hardest workers against Al Smith in the last presidential election, also is running as a Democrat. H. W. Dudley, another Democrat, and J. Hammond Brewer, jr., a member of the Democratic party county committee, also is fighting for the place.

Harry K. Green (Democrat) is seeking his fourth straight term as commissioner of the revenue, with C. W. Clever (Republican) opposing him. In the last election Mr. Green received 4,790 votes, while his Republican opponent, C. Eugene Doyle, received 1,051 votes.

E. Wade Ball (Democrat) has no opposition to his reelection as county treasurer.

VOTERS' SENTIMENT IS SOUGHT BY GROUP

Arlington Committee Sends Out Questionnaire on Three Offices.

ARLINGTON COUNTY BUREAU OF THE POST.
Tel. Clar. 509. Clarendon, Va.

In an effort to obtain a cross-section of the sentiment of the voters of Arlington County on the candidates for the offices of Commonwealth's attorney, sheriff and trial justice, Arthur Orr, representing a group of civic leaders consisting of the Rev. Perry L. Mitchell, A. Dexter Davis, Walter H. Handy, C. K. Lewis, Joseph Haley and Monroe H. Stockett, who style themselves "The Cross-section Ballot Committee," issued the following statement yesterday:

"With eight candidates for trial justice and five candidates for each of the offices of Commonwealth's attorney and sheriff, we believe it is possible that the successful candidates may be elected by a plurality vote, rather than by a majority vote. The sole purpose of this move is to preserve the principle of majority rule in government, which we feel is being jeopardized by the large number of candidates for the offices named.

"Ballots have been sent to over 200 of the leaders in all phases of public life in the county, requesting them to indicate in order of their preference as to all the candidates for Commonwealth's attorney, sheriff and trial justice. As soon as the ballots have been returned the committee announces that they will be opened and counted in the presence of the public and the results announced."

Attacking the plan of Mr. Orr and his supporters, L. C. McNemar, chairman of the special committee on elections of the Arlington County Civic Federation, said:

"This is clearly the most nonsensical proposition that has yet been offered to even a limited group of voters of this county, and is merely another gratuitous insult to their intelligence. It, of course, offers another excuse for certain individuals to see their names in print under the guise of a supposed service to the voting public."

Election Meeting Arranged.

With the view of giving Mrs. Elizabeth B. Magruder and John G. Call, candidates for the county board at the coming county election in Arlington County an opportunity to meet the voters within the Ballston Precinct, Mrs. Catherine M. Rogers announced last night that she has arranged a meeting at her home in Ballston for tonight.

MARYLAND MAN GUILTY OF THEFT

Jury, However, Frees Him on Charge of Receiving Stolen Goods.

A Prince Georges County jury yesterday found James Heile guilty of stealing an automobile worth $50 from David Venesky, of Hyattsville, but cleared the prisoner on charges of receiving stolen goods.

Private Samuel Young, of the first inspection district headquarters here, testified that Heile walked into the police station and confessed that he had taken the machine in order to go to Philadelphia, and the confession was verified by a deputy sheriff who returned the prisoner to the county. Heile said that he was out of work and hungry, and was attempting to reach his family in Pennsylvania, it was testified.

Guilty pleas were entered by Robert O. Atwell, Robert E. Standee, Perry A. Cannon, and Leonard O. Baldwin on indictments for larceny of a number of lamps, clocks and cameras from Jack Kirk, of Mount Rainier. The articles were taken from Kirk's store after he had been arrested for permitting gaming.

Attorneys J. Wilson Ryon and Albert R. Hassal presented a number of petitions for mercy signed by neighbors of the boys and also testimony as to their good character. Those signing the petition for the Baldwin boy included Judge Robert E. Joyce, Mayor John F. Beall, of Mount Rainier, and three other town councilmen. Sentence on the youths will be pronounced Tuesday.

George E. Elgin was found guilty when tried before the court on a charge of nonsupport, and was sentenced to pay his wife $9 per week. This case, including pleas to the court, took less than 20 minutes to try. A nonsupport indictment against Herbert Brown was nolle prossed by State's Attorney Alan Bowie.

Mr. Curry was appointed on recommendation of the juvenile court committee for the county in accordance with an enabling act passed at last session of the General Assembly. No salary figure is named, as this is a matter for county commissioners to decide in making arrangements for the new court.

New York Banker Dies; Overwork Is Blamed

New York, Oct. 22 (A.P.).—Wallace T. Perkins, 55, vice president and director of the Chatham-Phenix National Bank & Trust Co., died last night of overwork, the bank announced today. He once was connected with the National City Bank of Chicago.

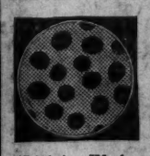
His widow and a son, Clifford L. Perkins, of Chicago, survive.

"clear road ahead!"

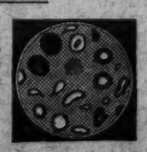
It's great to feel that way . . .
and you do . . . when the blood has the "feel" of enough rich red cells

Why you should be interested in your Blood Count

It is a great protection to health and physical well-being to keep the red-blood-cell count up to normal. These cells build and sustain—they also remove impurities.



(Left) Microscopic view of healthy red-blood-cells. The blood stream should contain about 5,000,000 of these cells to the cubic millimeter. They carry nourishment and oxygen to every part of the body—they also remove impurities from the tissues.



(Right) Weak red-blood-cells—only 60 per cent of normal strength—they lack the power to resist infection and disease or to rebuild flesh and to carry away the impurities. Such a condition is often responsible for body weakness, paleness, sallow complexion, pimples and boils.

Don't let them count you out!

REGARDLESS of age—be fortified with plenty of "red blood." That s-p-e-l-l-s happiness.

So frequently work, worry, colds and sickness reduce the red-cell count in the blood . . . then our spirits go down as the blood cells are lowered.

The process may be so gradual that we wonder "what is the matter" with us.

It is well to give thought to those invisible—yet precious red-blood-cells—the "ships," if you please, that "sail" in the blood, carrying nourishment to all parts of the body.

"That tired feeling" may be a warning . . . so are pimples, boils and paleness.

Why not take steps to overcome this trouble? A general run-down condition means a lack of normal resistance to infection and disease. A lagging appetite often leads to underweight and ill health.

You cannot be low in strength and be happy—let's be happy.

For generations S.S.S. as a tonic has been helping people gain New Strength, better health and happiness. Its successful record of over 100 years in restoring strength and vitality to the blood surely warrants your giving it a good trial.

You should know that S.S.S. has the distinct advantage of being composed of fresh vegetable medicinal ingredients in concentrated form . . . it is Mother Nature's formula.

Why not start taking S.S.S. today?—the larger size represents a price saving.

STOCK PRICES DROP IN LIGHTER TRADING

Average Loss on Leaders Is 2.8 Points; Attempts to Rally Fail.

New York, Oct. 22 (A.P.).—Stocks declined slowly today, more because buyers were unwilling to reach for them than because of unfavorable happenings in the news. The market was dull, stock sales totaling only 1,387,188 shares.

The dollar's position against several foreign currencies improved, while for the first time in several weeks there was a net gain in gold. Financial circles, inclined to sit back and await the Hoover-Laval conferences, were hopeful that the Washington discussions would accelerate whatever improvement has already appeared in world confidence.

Share traders tried to stir up a rally via the copper group, basing their optimism on the prospective meetings of the producers, as well as reports that the supply of 7 per cent metal had dried up. Their efforts were in vain, however, for the market as a whole refused to be lured. Rails drooped, but so did the industrials and utilities, and offerings were light all around.

Average Loss Small.

The average loss in stocks was 2.8 points. United States Steel and Bethlehem, on the eve of the semiannual meeting of the institute, at which the industry's affairs are discussed, were off about 2 points net. American Can, General Electric, General Motors, Montgomery Ward, Woolworth, International Telephone, American & Foreign Power, Union Carbide and Westinghouse drifted 1 to 1¾ lower.

American Telephone was considerably softer, off 4¼, while North American and Consolidated Gas lost 3. National Biscuit and Case were down 3. In the rails, New York Central recovered part of a 4-point dip. Atchison yielded 4 and Union Pacific slightly more.

Baltimore & Ohio and Southern Pacific sagged nearly 3.

Money circulation increased $31,000,000 in the week ended October 21. Comparison with the two preceding weeks, when gains of $42,000,000 and $185,000,000, respectively, were shown gave grounds for encouragement, indicating that the nerves of currency hoarders were being soothed.

Reserve Demands Drop.

Demands of the Reserve System were less severe during the week, which witnessed a slackening in the outward gold movement, and the increase in bill purchases and discounts were much smaller than of late. Thus it became apparent that the central bank was largely confining its operations to counterbalancing gold losses and was not flirting with inflation. Government security holdings were virtually unchanged.

France took no gold today. Earmarkings rose $3,706,800 and actual withdrawals for export only $803,400, divided among Holland, the Free City of Danzig, Switzerland and Holland. Receipt of $7,642,000 at San Francisco from Japan and China gave Uncle Sam a net balance of $3,490,200. With foreign exchanges easing—the French franc was heavy in common with Dutch and Belgian currencies—the probability of further large losses is reduced.

Sterling dropped to $3.93 compared with yesterday's close of $3.93½, and the final rate was $3.94.

Commodities edged off, wheat losing ⅝ to ⅞ on large Russian exports, rain forecasts and the heavy stock market. Corn closed half a cent lower and cotton was down 65 to $1.05 a bale.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

Chicago, Oct. 22 (A.P.).—Reversing the conditions which had prevailed of late, sellers outnumbered buyers in all the grain pits today. The wheat market appeared unable to digest freely the immense load of profit-taking sales put forward in the last week. Besides downturns of securities, together with Russian wheat exports larger than expected, gave at least a temporary advantage to bears.

Wheat closed unsettled, ⅝@⅞ cents lower; corn, ⅜@⅝ off; oats, a shade to ¼@⅜ down, and provisions at 2 to 5 cents advance.

In the face of predictions of a great decrease in Russia's outboard wheat shipments, the trade received a jolt from the announcement that the total this week had proved to be an actual increase over last week. The shipments aggregated 4,040,000 bushels, compared with 3,408,000, a showing not offset by statements that current offers of Russian wheat were light and that the quality now available of Russia was poor, indicating a short crop. Meanwhile, North American wheat export business today was too moderate to be much of a market factor, being estimated at but 500,000 bushels, chiefly Canadian.

About the best buying of wheat future deliveries was done on a trade report that for the first time in some years the world's wheat available supplies had fallen below those of the corresponding period of the year previous. An increase of only 165,000 bushels in September was indicated, against 37,293,000 bushels increase during August and 74,818,000 bushels increase a year ago. Advices that by the end of this month Italy was expected to allow millers to use 25 per cent of foreign wheat compared with the present 5 per cent was almost entirely lost sight of.

Corn and oats receded with wheat. Corn traders said an increasing amount of new corn was being shipped on consignment, and that Chicago arrivals of the new crop today were about 25 cars.

Provisions responded to firmness of hog values.

FOREIGN BONDS GAIN; OTHER ISSUES LOSE

Treasury Loans Are Higher as Rails and Utilities Join Downward Trend.

New York, Oct. 22 (A.P.).—The bond market fluctuated with considerable irregularity today. Domestic corporate issues closed irregularly lower, although some of them scored temporary gains. As a whole the market was less active than on Wednesday.

Liberty and United States Treasury loans were generally higher. Most of the more active issues gained.

The strength in foreign obligations was impressive because of its uniformity and the size of many of the individual gains, notwithstanding the rather meager trading in some of them. Net gains of 1 to 3 points were numerous and a few advances were even larger. Australian, Latin-American and German loans were generally higher.

Encouraging developments in the rest of the list were rather few. As a whole domestic corporate issues drifted to lower levels, and some of the more speculative loans scored sizable losses.

As a group railroad issues were weaker than either the industrials or public utilities. St. Paul 5s of 2000 and of 1975, Chicago & Northwestern 4¼s of 1949, Erie 5s of 1975, Missouri Pacific series I 5s, New York Central new 4½s of 2013, Nickel Plate 4½s of 1978, Southern General 4s, Southern Pacific 4½s of 1981 and St. Louis-San Francisco 4½s of 1978 closed from 1 to 3 points lower after a heavy turnover. These losses were more extreme than many of the rails experienced.

Industrial loans were less active than the rails, but they provided a number of large losses also. Texas Corporation 5s, United States Rubber 5s, Armour 4½s and 5½s, and International Match 5s of 1947 were among the larger losers.

Public utility loans were moderately active. The decline in them was narrow and irregular. At times this group showed a rising tendency.

MRS. HAYNES AND MRS. MORROW GAIN GOLF FINAL

Putting Touch Fails Mrs. Meckley

District Champion Is Beaten, 4 and 3, in Mid-Atlantic.

Mrs. Nicholson Bows by 2 Up Despite Brilliant Finish.

By HENRY LITCHFIELD WEST.

THE final round in the women's championship of the Middle Atlantic Golf Association will be played this morning on the course of the Indian Spring Club between Mrs. J. Marvin Haynes, former District champion and Columbia Club champion, and Mrs. E. Boyd Morrow, Elkridge, who has twice won the Middle Atlantic championship and was runner-up last year. In this match history will repeat itself, for Mrs. Haynes and Mrs. Morrow played against each other in a final round for the Middle Atlantic championship five years ago, Mrs. Morrow winning, 3 and 2. Since that time the two players have not met in competition.

The semifinal round yesterday between Mrs. Haynes and Mrs. Betty P. Meckley, Beaver Dam, District champion, attracted the largest gallery of the tournament, not only because of the prominence of the contestants, but because in their last match against each other, the final round for the District championship on the Chevy Chase course last spring, Mrs. Meckley was the winner. Yesterday, Mrs. Haynes defeated Mrs. Meckley, 4 and 3, but until the very end the contest was close enough to interest the spectators.

Mrs. Meckley's Putter Fails.

Mrs. Meckley's defeat was due almost entirely to the fact that her putter proved a most unreliable club. She took three putts on the fourth green, compelling her to be satisfied with a half instead of a win, and on the seventh green she missed a 10-footer that would also have been a win if it had dropped. On the ninth green, she three-putted again and lost the hole, being 1 down at the turn.

The eleventh hole was won by Mrs. Haynes after Mrs. Meckley had shanked an approach shot from the rough into a trap, but Mrs. Haynes lost the twelfth, slicing her third into a trap guarding the green. Mrs. Meckley's three putts lost her the thirteenth, so that she was again 2 down. Mrs. Haynes became 3 up at the fourteenth, when Mrs. Meckley encountered a trap, and on the fifteenth and decisive hole Mrs. Meckley took three strokes from off the green and lost.

The cards:

Out—
Mrs. Haynes.. 5 5 5 6 5 3 6 5 4—44
Mrs. Meckley. 5 4 5 6 5 5 6 5 5—46
In—
Mrs. Haynes.. 4 5 6 4 3 5
Mrs. Meckley. 4 6 5 5 4 6

An equal interest was shown in the semifinal round between Mrs. Hugh L. Nicolson, Washington, many times District champion, and Mrs. Morrow, especially when Mrs. Nicolson staged a remarkable comeback. She was 3 down at the turn and then was 5 down and 5 to play. Then, however, she won the next four holes in succession and, therefore, was only 1 down at the eighteenth tee. On the home green she made a gallant effort to hole a 30-foot for a par 4, but missed when her ball stopped three inches on the left of the cup, so that Mrs. Morrow, easily negotiating a 5, halved the hole and won the match.

The cards:

Out—

The final rounds in four flights and consolations will be played today. The fifth flight was decided yesterday, being won by Mrs. Gilbert Hahn, Woodmont, with Mrs. Jesse Miller, Woodmont, runner-up. The fifth consolation was won by Mrs. Dewitt Mulligan, Manor.

NEW CHARITY GRID PLAN FAILS

Maryland U. Spurns G. U. Game With D. C. Sharing.

A PROPOSAL of a Maryland-Georgetown football game, the proceeds of which would be divided evenly between District and Maryland agencies for unemployment relief, was spurned yesterday by Maryland University.

This latest of a series of efforts on the part of George J. Adams, executive secretary of the District committee on employment, to raise funds for local charity, was initiated early yesterday in a telegram to H. C. Byrd, athletic director of Maryland University.

Replying to Adams by telegraph, Byrd cited the decision of the Maryland Athletic Board to adhere to the Maryland custom of not participating in post-season games, and in respect to the suggestion of dividing the proceeds with relief agencies of the State of Maryland, the Old Line official stated:

"If one of the agencies for the relief of unemployment in Maryland requests us to play a game to aid such relief, we shall be willing to designate for this purpose one of the two games that we already have scheduled in Baltimore, and the relief organization may take all of the proceeds and not a part." The two Baltimore contests mentioned are scheduled with Johns Hopkins, on Thanksgiving Day, and Western Maryland, on December 5.

Earlier Proposal Rejected.

An earlier proposal by Adams for a Maryland-Georgetown game, also rejected by the Old Line institution, incorporated terms that would have turned over the proceeds entirely to District of Columbia relief. In explaining his new proposition, Adams states:

"The first telegram which was sent Maryland, urging that the game be played solely for unemployment in the District of Columbia, perhaps did not take into consideration the fact that there were unemployed persons in Maryland, especially in Baltimore, as well as in Washington."

A game between Maryland and Georgetown in Griffith Stadium on December 12 would net $50,000 for unemployment relief, Adams estimated. Apprising William J. Casey, leader in charity relief work in Baltimore, of the second proposal, Adams received from the Baltimore official the assurance that half of the sum anticipated, or $25,000, would be warmly welcomed and used to great advantage in the Monumental City.

Landis Extends Limit For Charity Ball Games

Chicago, Oct. 22 (A.P.).—Participation in charity baseball games by the major league players was sanctioned up to November 15 by unanimous vote of the clubs, Commissioner Kenesaw M. Landis said today.

"In view of the existing conditions," Landis said, "the major league clubs' unanimous vote have suspended the major league rule against exhibition games after October 31, to authorize their players to participate after October 31 and to and including November 15, in any exhibition game of which the entire receipts go to relief or charity funds."

Mack's Son Denies Connie Will Retire

El Paso, Tex., Oct. 22 (U.P.).—Reports that Connie Mack intended to pass the managership of the Philadelphia Athletics to Eddie Collins next season were denied here today by his son, Earl Mack.

"My father has no intention of retiring," the son said.

Mack's all-star major leaguers dropped an exhibition game 3 to 2 to an all-star El Paso nine this afternoon.

Special to The Washington Post.

RALEIGH, N. C., Oct. 22.—That quarter back Charley McVean, a Washington boy and one time Gonzaga High School football sensation, may prove the Catholic University "ace in the hole" in tomorrow night's game against North Carolina State here, was divulged by Head Coach "Dutch" Bergman today.

In recent workouts McVean has impressed with his long distance punting; consequently, as play progresses tomorrow night, the District lad will be called upon to match the touted spirals of Gurneau and Dellinger, star Wolfpack kickers.

Getting off some beautiful boots against Gallaudet recently, McVean since has been secretly drilled for the impending contest. Under pressure, Bergman declares, Charley is good for distances ranging from 45 to 55 yards.

"Johnny Oliver is to start at quarter back and De Mello will handle the booting when play gets under way."

McVean to Get In Game.

Bergman declared tonight. "As play moves on, however, McVean will be substituted and entrusted with the task of punting. Recent workouts have convinced me that he is our very best bet."

An optimistic note was sounded last night when it was revealed that "Whitey" Ambrose, veteran center, likely will show in his team's starting order. Originally supposed to give way to Edgar White due to a lame shoulder, Ambrose yesterday was examined and pronounced fit.

The Cardinals went through their final floodlight drill at Raleigh Stadium early tonight. They appeared perfectly at home in the arc light setting, going through their paces with smoothness and precision. Having lost three of its four starts to date, the Wolfpack nevertheless hopes to attract 10,000 to tomorrow night's contest. Reduced admission rates and the Catholics' first appearance in this section likely will figure in a sizeable turnout.

Texas Eleven Drills En Route to Harvard

Indianapolis, Ind., Oct. 22 (A.P.).—The University of Texas football squad, 32 strong, stopped in Indianapolis today for a long workout before continuing to Cambridge, Mass., to play Harvard Saturday.

The aggregation brought its own drinking water, two physicians and a host of rubbers and trainers. Clyde Littlefield is the coach.

Littlefield renewed his friendship while here with Dave Allerdice, Indianapolis business man who formerly was coach at Texas. Littlefield played on the Longhorn team while Allerdice was coach there.

Notre Dame-Detroit Charity Game Sought

Detroit, Oct. 22 (A.P.).—A proposal that the University of Detroit and Notre Dame play a postseason football game in Detroit December 5, the proceeds to go to charity, was made to Notre Dame officials and the mayor of South Bend, Ind., today by Mayor Frank Murphy.

The mayor's telegram stated that the University of Detroit had agreed to such a game.

Star Stable Awaits Rowe's Successor

New Trainer to Be Selected This Winter; Hopkins, Healy Mentioned.

New York, Oct. 22 (A.P.).—The man Mrs. Payne Whitney selects to succeed the late James Rowe as trainer of her Greentree Stable will face the 1932 racing season with one of the turf's greatest collection of thoroughbred stars.

Rowe's successor probably will not be named until some time during the winter, but, according to those best informed, the new trainer of Twenty Grand and his stablemates will be either Big Jim Healy or Freddie Hopkins. Both are members of the younger group of trainers. Hopkins received his training under Rowe's father, who died two years ago.

Healy conditioned A. C. Bostwick's Mate for his two triumphs over Twenty Grand and now is in charge of Mrs. John Hay Whitney's small but growing stable. Hopkins trained the second division of C. V. Whitney's stable. He conditioned Equipoise, the winter book favorite for the Kentucky Derby which went wrong on the eve of the race.

Before his death yesterday, Rowe announced Twenty Grand would be raced next year. Already winner of $259,925, the champion 3-year-old may pass the mighty Sun Beau as the world's leading money winner of all time. In addition to Twenty Grand, the Greentree Barns house St. Brideaux, outstanding candidate for the $15,000 Maryland Handicap and the $25,000 Latonia championship; Surfboard, Checkerberry, Anchors Aweigh and several promising 2-year-olds.

The current year was Young Rowe's first with Mrs. Whitney's horses, but already their 1931 purses have exceeded the stable's 1930 earnings. Last year, the stable won 111 races and $208,611. This year the earnings total $296,245, of which Twenty Grand won $218,545.

MILLS SEES DEFEAT OF HILLTOP

Crippled G. U. Team Leaves for Mich. State Game.

GEORGETOWN will use the same line-up that faced Duquesne in the game with Michigan State at East Lansing, Mich., tomorrow, Coach Tommy Mills announced yesterday as the Hilltoppers departed for the scene of battle. Several of the players still are nursing injuries but lack of capable reserves has forced him to keep these men in action, Mills stated.

Ray Hudson, right end, will return for service despite a knee injury sustained in the Duquesne contest. Joe Alenty, right half back, and Leroy Bordeau, full back, are others slated to perform under similar handicaps.

Hilltop Line-Up Named.

Georgetown seldom before has been so unfortunately situated as regards injuries. The two best running backs, Ben Gellis and Wilmer Bradley, are being left at home with wounds, as is one of the leading reserve ball toters, Russ Danieu, who reinjured his knee in practice two days ago. Mack Stanley, best punter on the squad, also is unable to make the trip to East Lansing due to an ailing shoulder.

Coach Mills does not expect Georgetown to win. In his own language, it "will be a miracle" if the Hilltop stops the rugged Spartan eleven, which is conceded to possess one of the greatest sets of backs in the country.

A workout today on the Michigan State Field will conclude Georgetown's preparation.

Canzoneri-Chocolate Sign for Bout Nov. 20

New York, Oct. 22 (U.P.).—World's Lightweight Champion Tony Canzoneri, of Brooklyn, and Kid Chocolate, of Cuba, signed articles today for a fifteen-round championship contest at Madison Square Garden, November 20.

Canzoneri's junior welterweight title also will be at stake if Tony successfully defends it in his "tune-up" contest with Phil Griffin, of Newark, at Newark, October 29. If Canzoneri makes 130 pounds for the Chocolate bout he will have an opportunity to win the Cuban's junior lightweight title. Neither of the "junior" titles are recognized by the New York Athletic Commission, but Canzoneri and Chocolate are recognized as champions of these divisions by the National Boxing Commission.

OLD BONFIRE WILL BURN TONIGHT

St. John and Hopkins Students Riot at Annapolis.

Special to The Washington Post.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Oct. 22.—College spirit flamed hot here tonight, but the St. John's College students who meet Johns Hopkins University in mortal gridiron combat Saturday kept their pregame bonfire from flaming the same way. This was accomplished only after a bitter street battle in which a fireman was injured seriously and six students were badly beaten up.

A dozen more students were occupying cells at the police station with indications that more would keep them company before morning.

For two days the St. John's students have been collecting boxes and wood for the huge fire. They intend to light it tomorrow night on the eve of their most bitter game with their Baltimore rivals.

Johns Hopkins students, however, decided tonight to light the fire for them, and in automobiles, about 150 strong, they descended on the Johnnies' campus. Word of their comnig had preceded them. Some of the cars were met on the outskirts of town and fist fights ensued by the roadside.

Most of the cars broke past the outer guard and reached the campus at College avenue and North street.

Thompson to Risk His Crown Tonight

Brouillard Foe in Fifteen-Round Bout at Boston; Sell-Out Expected.

Boston, Oct. 22 (A.P.).—Champion Jackie Thompson today completed his preparations for his welterweight title bout with rugged Lou Brouillard, of Worcester, at the Boston Garden tomorrow night, in such impressive fashion that he forced those who wager on such events to make him an even choice.

The contender had been a favorite since the day the pair started training for their fifteen-round battle, the first bout of such length held in this State since Calvin Coolidge, then Governor of Massachusetts, signed the bill that legalized boxing.

Their bout will be the first championship affair put on in Boston since Johnny Wilson gained the middleweight crown by outpointing Mike O'Dowd eleven years ago and the first welterweight classic since the homebred Honey Mellody won the title from Joe Walcott, the famous "Black Demon."

Brouillard, a strong youngster, who has yet to travel the fifteen-round distance, was made an early favorite because of his previous victory over Thompson here several months ago and the "jinx" that persecutes boxing champions in Boston. At least a half dozen titleholders in several divisions have met ignoble fates in the Boston Garden ring within the last two years. All of them, however, were appearing in nontitle bouts.

Boston Garden officials boasted of a large advance sale and confidently predicted the bout would draw $60,000, almost a sell-out, at their price scale.

Rudy Dusek Uses Head To Win

3,500 Watch Gardini Bow Before Butts of Nebraskan.

O'Shocker and Jones Battle to Draw; Hill Beaten.

By BOB CONSIDINE.

BADLY worsted in the earlier stages of a mauling rasselfest last night at the Auditorium, rough Rudy Dusek, who gets along in the wrestle industry armed with a good left hook and an ungodly holt called a rocking cradle, came back in the final period yesterday to score a touchdown on the fine old Italian shoulders of Renato Gardini. The match lasted 37 minutes and some 3,000 fans were unanimous in their decision that Dusek, the former white-haired boy of local wrestling, had fouled the stanch and virtuous in order to do him under.

Mr. Gardini had the best of it all the way, which is a rather foreboding state of affairs in wrestling, since the early leaders always seems to get nicked at the tape by the half-unconscious opponent. But as the evening whiled away and Gardini continued to heckle Dusek with all the holds in the books, including good headlocks, arm strangles and body flips, not to mention telling uppercuts to Mrs. Dusek's boy's jer, it looked like Dusek was about to go down to defeat on a local mat for the first time, overlooking, of course, his three tiffs with Londos.

Dusek Mounts Bicycle.

But Dusek rallied gamely, after bicycling away from Mr. Gardini's rushes to good effect. Many of his strongest supporters fled from his temple last night, and many were the cries that Joe Turner install banked turns in the ring so that Dusek could make better time on the curves. But as was intimated earlier, our Mr. Dusek rallied. Going off his feet, all 218 pounds of him, in the middle of the ring, Mr. Dusek catapulted his frame through the smoke-filled air and rammed, in ice breaker fashion, Mr. Gardini in that section of his chassis due south of his equator.

Mr. Gardini was not much after that. He lasted long enough for Mr. Dusek to clamp on his patented hold and when "Cyclone" Burns, the best rassle umpire in this section, counted 1—2—3 Gardini arose unsteadily, holding his lower tummy, and leaned very sorrowfully against the ropes. It looked very much like Mr. Gardini was hurt and thinking at the same time.

"Friends, Romans, Countrymen."

After Dusek had stalked away from the ring, Mr. Gardini approached the center of the mat, held out his arms in the manner of Demosthenes, and spoke to a hushed audience.

"Pleesa be kwat, my frans," he started and then went on to say that Mr. Dusek was an old nasty and should oughta give him wan more metch. It was the feature of the evening. Mr. Gardini lost two falls to Kid Mixed Metaphor, and was badly mangled between two ragged split infinitives.

Other results:

Pat O'Shocker and Admiral John Paul Jones, 45-minute draw; Dick Daviscourt tossed George Hill, 15 minutes, body slam; Carl Pojello took 18 minutes to beat Benjamin T. Ginsberg, with a double hammer, and Our Own Big Tiny Roebuck rassled Mr. Kirilenko to a 30-minute draw.

Announcement that next week's wrestling show would be staged for the benefit of the District of Columbia Committee on Unemployment, met with unqualified support at last night's bill. In a short speech from the ring, Matchmaker Joe Turner stated that he would secure the best possible material for the bill.

Turner, it was learned last night, is in the care of a physician. Stomach trouble may cause an operation at any time, but he will continue his work of lining up the principals for next Thursday's show.

PERRONI IS WINNER.

Dover, Ohio, Oct. 22 (A.P.).—Patsy Perroni, of Canton, light-heavyweight, tonight knocked out Primo Ubaldi, of Italy, in the eighth round of a scheduled ten-round bout.

This Morning with Shirley L. Povich

MARYLAND UNIVERSITY is beholden to the State of Maryland for its very existence and maintenance. That's a strong argument for the Old Liners in their refusal to play Georgetown for the benefit of the District of Columbia unemployed fund, although the Maryland Athletic Board chose instead to find the excuse in Maryland's custom of not playing post-season games.

But a counterproposal that Maryland meet Georgetown with the proceeds to be divided evenly among Maryland and District of Columbia charities was rejected flatly by the Old Liners yesterday. Instead, Maryland expressed its willingness to designate one of its Baltimore games as a charity affair, with the proceeds devoted exclusively to State of Maryland unemployed relief.

That decision was tantamount to a disavowal of Washington interest in the University of Maryland. The fact that a goodly share of Maryland's best athletic talent hails from Washington schools and that the bulk of the patronage at Maryland contests hails from the District of Columbia appears to have been overlooked by Old Line authorities.

It is agreed that Maryland provides Washington fandom with some of its best football attractions. The recent Maryland-Navy game, which drew 20,000 persons to Griffith Stadium, is in point. Washington is indebted to the Old Line institution for many of its "big" games. But with tickets selling at $2, $3 and $4 for the Navy game, Maryland's action in bringing Navy here was not altogether samaritan or sporting. Washington fans paid the freight and paid handsomely.

But Maryland is in error if it is the Old Liners' belief that the Washington patronage at their contests is not essential. As it happens, the Old Liners are riding the crest of a wave of successful teams. Georgetown's home football schedule has not been attractive. But George Washington has implanted itself firmly in the competition for football crowds. Among Maryland, George Washington and Georgetown games, the choice of District fans will be easy to make as a result of the Old Liners' apathy toward the starving and the freezing of the District of Columbia.

CHARITY A LA MARYLAND.

"Our friendly neighbor, Maryland University, declines to be our friendly rival. In a statement issued to the press yesterday the neighboring university embarrassed the prestige of College Park by an elaborate explanation of the devious difficulties and subtle obstacles that encumbered the easy path to a prompt and sportsmanlike acceptance of the District Commission's invitation to play a football game for charity after the close of the regular football season.

"In justification of their refusal, the Maryland athletic authorities have advanced the tradition and precedent in vogue at College Park in virtue of which postseason football games must be frowned upon and earnestly avoided. No just critic will fail to appreciate what spirit of generosity there is behind the accompanying offer to devote the proceeds of any regularly scheduled game to the unemployment fund, the opposing team being willing. Nor, of course, will any thinking man fail to realize the tremendous financial assistance to the unemployment fund which would undoubtedly accrue from a Maryland-Georgetown game, in comparison with which the normal proceeds of any regular game appearing on the present schedule would seem rather insignificant in prospect.

"Maryland itself can not fail to understand how much more charity would be aided by a courageous acceptance of the District Commission's invitation than by such ill-timed subservience to a precedent that was not formed for times as unusual as is the present economic depression. When many of our fellow countrymen living in our own city are in dire need of financial assistance to carry them through this period of unemployment, should ultraconservatism be allowed to forestall the fullest, most courageous cooperation toward this end, in any patriotic and truly charitable institution of American men?

"For many years even casual observers could not fail to have noticed the almost universal interest that was manifested by the residents

Harvard Upheld in Claim It Has Nothing in Common With Army—Or Humanity

By WESTBROOK PEGLER.
Special to The Washington Post.

NEW YORK, Oct. 22.—As one reason why football relations between Harvard and the United States Military Academy should not be continued, the Harvard Crimson states that Harvard and the Military Academy have nothing in common. In view of Harvard's attitude toward the Harvard charwomen and toward Owen D. Young's appeal to the colleges to play football games for the benefit of the unemployed, the Crimson might have taken in much more territory. The Crimson might have added, without fear of successful contradiction, that Harvard has nothing in common with the human race.

It is hard to argue against the Harvard Crimson. The facts are on the Crimson's side. The Military Academy rushed in this year and voluntarily waived a feud as sacred to the Military Academy as the Princeton feud is to Harvard, not merely agreeing to a game with the Naval Academy but actually proposing such a game for the benefit of people who might otherwise die.

Harvard not only was guilty of no impetuous rush to raise a few dollars for the starving and freezing, but, when Mr. Young finally made a formal appeal in the name of the Nation, refused to sanction a benefit game. This, Harvard explained, would be to commercialize the Harvard football team, from which I infer that the regular Harvard football receipts are noncommercial receipts. These receipts are used to support the Harvard tennis courts, the crew, the polo and baseball teams and all other sports which can not earn their way.

It is a fine discrimination which perceives something degrading and sordid in commercial receipts intended to succor the starving and something elevating and noble in noncommercial receipts intended to support a lot of well-fed and altogether healthy young men in their hours of relaxation at school.

It may be argued that the Harvard Crimson does not speak for Harvard University, but I am not sure this is so. The Crimson is a not half-bad sort of newspaper for the school it

BALKO EQUALS RECORD IN LAUREL 6-FURLONG VICTORY

Weight Fails To Handicap Winner

Balko Off Badly But Beats Con Amore in 1:11 1-5.

Pairbypair Is Winner Over Dr. Syntax in Fourth.

By J. B. SNODGRASS.
Special to The Washington Post.

LAUREL RACE TRACK, Oct. 22.—Mrs. Charles Amory's Balko, at his best, king of sprinters, made an impressive comeback in the Tuscarora Handicap, feature here today, and in winning equaled the track record, 6 furlongs in 1:11 1-5, carrying 126 pounds, top weight by a wide margin.

J. W. Y. Martin's High Cloud filly, Con Amore was second, beaten a length, and was first off from the barrier. W. R. Coe's Masked Ball was third, and the other starter was Repentance.

Balko, 6-year-old son of Omar Khayyam, was off badly, but Bejshak bided his time, gradually improving his position, and, rounding the stretch turn, rushed to the front and was drawing away at the end. The black horse recently showed signs of regaining his old form, and proved again today that he is ready to resume his position at the head of the handicap sprinters. He was slight favorite, and paid $5.70 to win.

Repentance, close to Conamore's pace to the first turn, weakened in the stretch drive.

Pairbypair Wins Blanket Finish.

There was a blanket finish in the Lothair Handicap, for 2-year-olds, in which Mrs. J. D. Hertz's Pairbypair held out to win from J. E. Widener's Dr. Syntax. Max Hirsch's filly, Blue Damsel, was third.

Steffen rode Coltiletti close to the rail in the stretch, the Schorr colt being forced to come around to the outside. Fredrick had led to that point, but when Pairbypair got on even terms with him he began bearing in. Then Dr. Syntax made a rush, getting the place a short length back of the winner, and a half length back Blue Damsel was third. The winner paid $4.80. The time was 1:13.

A. L. Aste's Shan Tung, a Rancocas-bred horse, won the third race, leading most of the way. Five Oaks, an outsider, was second and Baritone third. W. Nertney, who rode the winner of the first race, had the mount on Shan Tung, which ran his total winning mounts of the meeting up to fifteen, to twelve for Mack Garner. This was another victory for a favorite, Shan Tung paying $5. The time was 1:47 3-5. Five Oaks closed fast and was gaining on Shan Tung, but the winner held the race safe by a half length. Five Oaks paid $17.40 for place. Baritone suffered interference. Black Patricia was a close contender to the far turn.

Bubola Again Wins Over Trice.

C. O. Ferguson's Bubbling Over filly, Bubola, won her third race in a row when she got a head decision over Trice in the second race. Bubola was well ridden by A. Prain, the stable jockey. Sun Thorn was third. Bubola was the favorite and paid $7.60. The time for a mile and one-sixteenth was 1:47 1-5, slow for this track. Sun Thorn was the early leader, with Tantalizing and Trice close up. At the far turn Angry Plume was in front. In the stretch it was the winner and Thrice, and the finish was the same as in their previous races, Bubola first and Trice second.

Mrs. H. L. Ughetta's Dustemoff, a Whitney cast-off, making many attempts, finally graduated from the maiden class in the opening race for 2-year-olds, and with W. Nertney to aid him, had a length margin over the Justa Farm's Justa Peak. Dustemoff is the well-named son of Mad Hatter—Cobwebs, and he ran six furlongs in 1:13 2-5. Stuart, almost equal favorite with Dustemoff, was third, beaten a head for place. The winner paid $5.

Quarterdeck Repeats In Sixth Race.

Quarterdeck won his third race of the meeting by taking the sixth today and ran a mile and 70 yards in the exact time in which he ran the distance in his last sart, 1:43. Mouthpiece was second and Frumper got the show money.

The delay of 13 minutes at the post caused the barring of Tancred and Essare for the meeting. They refused to enter the gate. After the start Tancred and Meridian Queen set a fast pace, but the Man o' War colt, Quarterdeck had little trouble leading the field home. The winner was favorite and paid $5.50. J. Renick rode the winner.

C. Harvey Pierce's strong chestnut mare, Putter, justified his favoritism by winning the seventh race in a rousing finish with Make Haste and Grand Prince. Jockey W. Nertney again made a good showing, speeding his mount up to wear down Make Haste in the final sixteenth, gaining a margin of a head. The winner paid $4.50 in the $2 mutuels.

DUSTEMOFF raced CLEAR KNIGHT into defeat in the first half mile, withstood a stout effort from STUART and had enough left to stall off JUSTA PEAK. Latter improved his position on the outside and closed resolutely through the home stretch. STUART, rated within striking distance of the leaders, secured racing room on the inside to reach the winner, but faltered when kept in the deeper and loose footing next the inner rail. BILL SOUTHAM, slow to get going, made up a lot of ground in the final half mile. CLEAR KNIGHT quit badly in the final drive. HOW went evenly. The others were never factors.

BUBOLA, sent into a contending position at once, reached the leaders when leaving the back stretch, slipped through on the inside of ANGRY PLUME to assume command and, under strong pressure, outstayed TRICE. Latter worked his way up on the outside, circled his field and closed with good courage. SUN THORN held on gamely after speaking off TANTALIZING. BRICK KILN finished with good speed. TANTALIZING weakened from his early efforts. ANGRY PLUME squatted when the break came, reached her field rapidly to take command, but went very wide into the home stretch.

THIRD RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1,300; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good from stalls. Won ridden out; place, driving. Went to post at 2:51. Off at 2:53½. Winner, A. L. SHANGTUNG raced into a brief lead early while under steadying restraint and Nertney picked the best footing, was shaken up when straightened into the home stretch and held FIVE OAKS safe under urging. BARITONE, with the best turn, secured racing room on the inside when making his effort and continued gamely in the final test. BLACK PATRICIA forced a steady pace, but faltered in the final drive. TINITA, prominent all the way, lost ground when entering the home stretch. SKIRT could not reach the pacemakers. WANDERING GOLD tired, as did ROYAL DOULTON.

Latter, favored by improved handling, swung to the outside after being outrun early and was gaining steadily approaching the finish. BLUE DAMSEL, under urging from the start, finished stoutly on the outside. FREDERICK, hard ridden from the start, was unable to recover when impeded nearing the final furlong pole. Two-dollar mutuels paid—BALKO, $5.70, $3.10, out; CON AMORE, $2.90, out; MASKED BALL, out.

BALKO, following the leaders closely, moved up stoutly midway of the turn to join the leaders, swerved to the inside when taking command nearing the final furlong pole, continued stoutly and held CON AMORE safe. Latter outbroke her field and was rated in front under slight restraint, was bothered when the winner moved during the stretch turn, recovered and outstayed MASKED BALL. Latter weakened during the final quarter mile. REPENTANCE had a rough trip until reaching the home stretch.

SIXTH RACE—Mile and seventy yards. Purse, $1,300. The Trappe Claiming Handicap. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stalls. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 4:31. Off at 4:43½. Two-dollar mutuels paid—QUARTER DECK, $5.20, $3.20, $2.30; MOUTHPIECE, $4.70, $2.70; FRUMPER, $3.10.

QUARTER DECK, as usual, outpaced early, responded stoutly when shaken up, received racing room between the leaders when entering the home stretch and, withstanding a stiff drive willingly, outstayed MOUTHPIECE. Latter, rated along close to the pacemakers, finished in determined fashion in the concluding test. FRUMPER improved his position steadily during the last half mile and was waiting the first two down nearing the finish. TANCRED weakened after racing MERIDIAN QUEEN into defeat. Latter displayed splendid early speed, but could not keep pace for the final test. SOLACE had no excuses. ESSARE was outrun after breaking slowly.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1,300; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good from stalls. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 5:10. Off at 5:11½. Winner, C. Two-dollar mutuels paid—PUTTER, $4.50, $2.80, $2.40; MAKE HASTE, $13.00, $6.30; GRAND PRINCE, $2.70.

PUTTER worked his way up on outside when moving into the back stretch, entered contention rounding the far turn and, finishing in resolute fashion, wore MAKE HASTE down nearing the finish. MAKE HASTE, well placed in the early running, wore the leaders down when entering the home stretch and fought it out stubbornly thereafter. GRAND PRINCE held on stoutly after racing HOLD into defeat. WRACKELL finished courageously. SUN FRIAR was held safe throughout. RAIN OR SHINE quit.

TECH, UNBEATEN IN 3 YEARS, MAKES SERIES DEBUT TODAY

Western Test For Hardell Eleven

5 All-High Choices on 1931 McKinley Grid Squad.

Red and White Hopes Lie in Powerful Back Field.

THE greatest succession of scholastic football teams in the history of the sport in Washington will show its latest edition today when the 1931 Tech High squad steps on the field for its first test in the current high school series. On the receiving end of Tech's power today will be Western, the surprise team of the schoolboy league. The tussle starts at 3:30 o'clock at Central Stadium.

Made up, as it is, of a precision-trained outfit of more than 40 huskies, Tech's limitless reserve strength and the caliber of its first team gives it a fancy edge over the bigger Western team today, but the Georgetown squad will put up a battle. Coach "Hap" Hardell, having thoroughly scouted Western, knows it would not be surprising if Tech is held to a meager score throughout at least the first half and possibly more of the game.

Victory Streak Reaches 14.

Swinging down the halls of high school grid history on the end of a series-winning streak extending to fourteen victories and three years of undefeated teams, Tech has a worthy outfit to carry on its best traditions today. Back from the 1930 team is George Sachs, Steve Hatos, Al Gormley, Carlton Edwards, Jack Baxter, Jack Rhodes, "Liberty" Bell, and Al Meikeljohn. Sachs, Gormley, Baxter, Rhodes, and Meikeljohn are all-high.

Sachs, captain and quarter back, is one of the greatest leg-driving backs in high school history, and Gormley is recognized as last year's best blocker. All the others deserved their all-high rating.

Western has no all-high appointees within its ranks, but several hot nominees. Laurence Buscher and Bill Greve are outstanding linemen. Weighing around 200, they have enough sinew to make the Western line a wall which Tech's spinner plays will find it difficult to puncture.

Weste n's Strength In Back Field.

It is in the back field, however, that Western's full strength is unfurled. Hilleary, Reynolds and Everett Buscher are a trio of big rough boys, noted for their drive and willingness to mix in the pile-ups. Lynham, half back, is the shiftiest high school ball lugger.

The Tech Band will proffer its several selections, and will have something to toot about if Tech is able to storm over Western as it hurled its way through the teams in the series last year.

MET COURTMEN DRILL.

The Petworth Mets Court Team will hold its first drill of the season tonight at 8:30 o'clock at McFarland Junior High School. Manager Ray Stackhouse requests all of last year's players and any new candidates to report promptly.

Michigan May Face Illini Minus Captain

Ann Arbor, Mich., Oct. 22 (A.P.).—Coach Harry Kipke and a University of Michigan footbal squad of 33 men entrained tonight for Chicago on the first leg of a journey to Champaign, where Michigan engages Illinois Saturday. The squad will drill on Stagg Field tomorrow, moving on to Champaign Saturday just in time for the game.

COLUMBIAS MEET.

All members of the Columbia 150-pound grid team are requested to report on the Brookland field, at Michigan avenue and Monroe street northeast, at 2 p. m. Sunday. At 3 p. m. they will play a Capital City League game.

STRANGE AS IT SEEMS —By John Hix

THE sun is closest to the earth in January, and at its greatest distance from the earth in July. Winter is colder than summer because the sun's rays are not as direct. The seasons are caused by the inclination of the earth's axis. In winter the Northern Hemisphere is tilted away from the sun, so that the rays have to penetrate a greater amount of atmosphere. In summer the Northern Hemisphere is tilted toward the sun so that although the sun is farther away at that time it is more directly overhead. Thus, when it is summer in the Northern Hemisphere it is winter in the Southern Hemisphere, and vice versa.

Silk hose are one-third tin, as far as weight is concerned. In its raw state silk is yellow and has a harsh feeling, caused by a gummy substance with which the silk is covered. When this gummy substance is removed, the fiber loses about one-third of its weight. To bring the silk back to its original weight it is "loaded" with tin phosphate. Most of the tin used for the loading process is obtained from old tin cans.

G.W. VARSITY AND FROSH BATTLE

Intra-School Contest Booked Tonight at Griffith Stadium.

WHETHER or not the Colonials of George Washington have recovered from the shock of their setback at the hands of Tulsa last week ought to be gained tonight when Coach Pixlee sends his charges into a regulation game with the George Washington Freshmen in Griffith Stadium, beginning at 8 o'clock.

In practice this week, the Colonials have exhibited plenty of enthusiasm, their actions having bespoken a desire to get back into winning form. The line-up has been changed to some extent with the choices hinging on the player's mental attitude, and consequently followers of the team are looking for an impressive performance tonight.

Cubs to Put Up Strong Fight.

The Baby Colonials are determined to put up a strong fight. They hold no fears of their older schoolmates. Jean Sexton is coaching the cub outfit.

Should the varsity emerge victorious, it will go a long way toward restoring its confidence and build up a stanch frame of mind with respect to the Iowa game, the biggest on its schedule, to be played in Iowa City a week from tomorrow.

In all likelihood, Coach Pixlee will use a majority of his players, in many instances to secure an accurate line on their worth as reserve men. The Iowa game, he feels, will require a dependable force of reserves on G. W.'s part.

COLLEGE STUDENTS RIOT AT ANNAPOLIS

There the embattled students met in force. The entire police department, ten strong, including chief, was called to the scene and in turn sent in a fire alarm.

A fire engine shrieked to the scene and began spraying cold water to quench heated college spirit. The police department soon rounded up a dozen Johns Hopkins students, and departed with them to the police station.

This was a strategical blunder and the St. John's forces were quick to take advantage of it in one sweeping charge on the fire department. They captured the hose line and returned their water to them with enthusiasm. In the melee, some one hurled a brick which struck Fireman Edward Mitchell above the eye, injuring him seriously.

Reinforcements were called from the fire department, but before they could swing into action, President Douglas Huntley Gordon, of St. John's, who has been on the job only a short time, came on the scene and ordered his fighting students to the back campus. They obeyed the voice of authority and things calmed down considerably. Outposts were still patroling the Baltimore boulevard, however, and pickets guarded the campus. Police said they expected trouble throughout the night and probably would fill their barracks with prisoners before dawn.

PENNANTS IN DRILL.

The Petworth Pennants will drill tonight at 7 o'clock on the Iowa Avenue Playground. All players are urged to report as a hard game is expected from the Brentwood Hawks in the Capital City League Sunday.

AMERICAN U. TO MISS PARKE

Illness to Keep Star Out of Shenandoah Game.

OUTWEIGHED seven pounds as a team and conceding 24 pounds to the man in the back field, American University's eleven realizes how tough a game it is facing with Shenandoah College tomorrow on the new American University field. With the additional handicap of being without the services of Ed Parke, husky full back and chief offensive threat, the Eagles have planned to fight it out in the air.

While Shenandoah has set no worlds afire this season and looked anything but powerful against George Washington here several weeks ago, the Eagles expect a strenuous afternoon. They will be seeking their first victory of the season after three successive defeats. Victory by a narrow margin will be gratifying.

Young Forced to Shift Line-Up.

As Parke has been on the sidelines with a throat infection this week, Coach Walter Young has been forced to revamp his line-up somewhat. He has moved John Mohr from center to full back to take Parke's place on the defense and in the offensive line-up has given Parke's post to Fred Johnson, with George Bowers getting Johnson's half back position. Johnson, on defense, has been shifted to center.

HARVARD IS GUILTY, NOT ARMY—PEGLER

represents. It is a fairly good reflection of Harvard, and whatever one's sentiments may have been at the time the Crimson revealed the social disorder attending the national convention of the American Legion in Boston last year, competent newspaper makers had to admit that the Crimson had seen and had told a news story which the adult newspapers and press associations had suppressed as being something the people ought not to read.

Crimson Represents Harvard Opinion.

The Crimson is a good paper, and when it states that Harvard and West Point have nothing in common it speaks as a true representative of Harvard opinion. Will Bingham, graduate manager of athletics, who is necessarily in the show business and also a member of the Harvard diplomatic service, has social and professional relations with such charming diplomats as Maj. Phil Fleming, Army's graduate manager, and Capt. Walter Wells, the West Point intelligence officer, and, like so many American diplomats who have served abroad, he may have been contaminated by alien interests. His Harvardness is less intense than that of the more insular Harvards, who have been trying to sever entangling relationships with other schools and go it alone in a policy, not of Harvard against the world but of Harvard from the world apart.

I hear many expressions of admiration for Harvard's pluck in daring not to join in a great popular campaign to raise money for the unemployed by means of postseason football games. Fourteen years ago Eugene V. Debs evinced the same sort of pluck in behalf of a view directly opposite to Harvard's present one.

All But Harvard Out of Step.

Of course, the Military Academy can go along playing football long after Harvard. The fulfillment of the English house plan of social and athletic relations has withdrawn into a phase of competition which has been consummately described as the Pancreas versus the Epiglottis. The other schools, and even the human race, are falling more and more out of step with Harvard, but West Point marches well.

There has been some puzzling lately at Harvard over appropriate coats of arms to inscribe in stone over the doors of the new Harvard Harkness houses. It was desired to adorn these doors with legitimate American coats of arms and mottoes, but it was discovered that only one American family had a legitimate right to a coat of arms and a motto. In view of Harvard's refusal to play for the unemployed, they might ponder long and find a less appropriate phrase than "Let Them Eat Cake."

Of course, the receipts from all the charity games which will be played this fall will be only a few pennies on the dollar of the required total to care for the poor. Harvard's refusal is not so important financially as socially, and the West Point cadets may be permitted a sense of pride rather than humiliation in the statement of the Harvard Crimson that the two schools have nothing in common.

of Washington and nearby Maryland and Virginia in the possibility of a football contest between the Varsities of Maryland University and Georgetown. Georgetown has never retreated from the suggestion of such a meeting, ever willing to welcome any contest which promised to be an interesting display of sportsmanship, and confident of her own ability to preserve her prestige, admirable in victory or admirable in defeat. On the contrary, when this issue has been broached our friendly neighbor, whom we would rejoice to call in truth our friendly rival, has always sidestepped, evaded and left the question always a remote possibility.

"We respect what generosity the College Park athletic authorities have displayed in their recent offer to unemployment. Perhaps they sincerely value a conservative subservience to precedent and custom in this matter more than an opportunity to outdo themselves in the cause of charity. But certainly no one who has the real interests of the unemployed in the District at heart, and no one of those countless thousands who rejoiced until yesterday in the prospect of such a fine display of sportsmanship at a Maryland-Georgetown game would have been can put from his mind without an effort the thought that behind Maryland's refusal to play the proposed game lay too much reverence for tradition, a certain timorousness, and perhaps an unworthy repugnance to possible defeat.

Hitting —The— Head Pin

RAY FARMER established a new high individual game mark for the season in the Commercial League rolling for the Daily News at Convention Hall last night. Farmer downed 156 pins as his team swept its match with Occidental Hotel. His teammates chimed in on the chorus and made it a perfect night by hanging up a new team high set for season with a score of 591.

Murphy's Jewish All-Stars displaced French's as leader in the Congressional League by whitewashing City Cab at the Capitol Hill drives last night. The victory gives the All-Stars a record of nine wins and three losses.

Carroll Daly came into his own at Convention Hall last night as the Lucky Strikers smeared a 2-1 defeat on the home aggregation. Daly had the pin boys hopping for shelter when he caught 173 pins flatfooted. He finished with a set of 400. Incidentally, he also established a new District record by scoring five consecutive strikes. The Luckies were obliged to come from behind to win after dropping the first game.

Mary Cox and Alice McQuinn were the leading ladies in the Ladies' Federal League matches rolled at Arcadia last night. Miss Cox equaled the high set mark of 341 established by Miss McQuinn earlier in the season as her team, Labor, took two from Commerce. The Laborites also enjoyed a high team game of 538. Miss McQuinn, aiding War in its three-game victory over Agriculture, rolled a flat game of 94, which is the best game of this kind recorded this season.

Agriculture's defeat knocks it out of the leadership, which is now shared jointly by Treasury and Veterans' Administration. In the other matches Treasury took the odd one from Commerce Juniors, and Veterans' Administration did likewise to Census. Internal Revenue, Interstate and Commerce Comets shutout Economics, G. A. O. and G. P. O., respectively. Marines bested Bureau of Mines by one game.

A "blind pig" mixed doubles sweepstakes will be rolled at Arcadia every Saturday night, starting tomorrow, according to an announcement issued last night. This event, which was very popular last year, is again expected to attract a large number of duckpin enthusiasts.

The Maccabees, sporting a 37-pin handicap, swamped Union Wall Paper at King Pin last night in a Business Men's League match. The Wall Paper crew simply could not get out from under the heavy handicap imposed upon them.

A twelve-pound turkey will be awarded the bowler rolling the highest score each hour at the Temple alleys tomorrow, October 31, and November 7, 14, and 21. The Temple officials also gave away turkeys last season to

PINEY BRANCH R

INDICTED POLICEMEN ARE TO BE ARRAIGNED ON CHARGES TODAY

Eighteen Will Make Pleas to Charges and Trial Dates Set.

Reorganization Will Begin When Gen. Glassford Begins Duty.

Members of the District Police Department, who were indicted after an exhaustive grand jury investigation into alleged police brutality, will be arraigned in Criminal Court No. 1 today to plead to the indictments. In all, eighteen policemen will face the court.

Other developments during the day in the police situation were:

The committee of lawyers, investigating the alleged "framing" of former Patrolman Orville Staples, were reported in readiness to submit their findings to the Commissioners, which are rumored to be a decision on their part that Staples was not framed.

Parade Continues.

The parade of policemen, over 55 years old, before the Board of Police and Fire Surgeons, continued yesterday when 43 policemen, including several ranking officers, were examined.

Inspector Louis J. Stoll, who is scheduled for retirement, is to be examined today, with a group of 42 policemen.

Justice James M. Proctor will preside over the arraignment of the eighteen policemen indicted on the "third degree" charges. The task of formally arraigning the policemen is the first step in the actual prosecution.

Trial Dates to Be Set.

Trial dates will probably be fixed next week. The first case to come to trial is that in which it is charged that five policemen, stationed at the First Precinct, beat James Henry Harker, which was told exclusively by The Post and which precipitated the inquiry.

District Attorney Leo A. Rover, who presented the evidence to the grand jury, is expected to prosecute the Harker case, while the rest of the trials are expected to be handled by his assistants.

Results of the examination of 107 policemen, who have appeared or are scheduled to appear before the board of surgeons, is expected to be made public Saturday. Several men, including Inspector Stoll, and possibly Inspector Headley, are scheduled for retirement for physical disability. Inspector Stoll, if he should pass the physical tests, is likely to be retired by an order of the Commissioners.

Detective Sergts. Eugene Davis and Charles Mullin are reported to have been found physically unfit to continue work. They appeared before the board of surgeons on Tuesday. The Commissioners have announced that no steps are to be made in the reorganization of the department until Gen. Glassford takes office on November 16.

Officials denied that any change will be made in the procedure of selecting officers to replace those who will leave the department as a result of the wholesale retirements. The promotions will be made by civil service rules as a result of examination taken by candidates for advancement.

New Probe Is Begun.

Corporation Counsel William W. Bride yesterday afternoon started investigation of the 56 "third degree" cases submitted by the Department of Justice as not sufficient to cause indictments. As the cases go back as far as nine years, Mr. Bride will ask the Commissioners whether they want all of them investigated or only those for the last two or three years.

Meanwhile Maj. Henry G. Pratt, who eased out of the department as part of the bargain made by the Commissioners in return for the aid in holding Congress from making an inquiry, began the removal of some of his personal belongings from headquarters to make room for his successor, Brig. Gen. Pelham D. Glassford.

Two captains appeared before the medical board yesterday. They are Capt. C. L. Plemmons of the Twelfth Precinct and Capt. John E. Howers of the Fourteenth Precinct. Others examined are:

Lieuts. James W. McCormack, W. H. Carlin, McGill Grove, and Harry R. Lohman.

Detective Sergts. Frederick Sandberg, Lawrence A. O'Dea, Henry A. Cole, and Robert A. Sanders.

Sergts. John R. Hood and Minor E. Furr.

Pvts. Charles E. Addison, Richard A. Allen, Ray C. Ault, Archie Baker, Benjamin J. Batson, James Bigham, Enoch S. Bradshaw, Edward H. Braxton, Alfred V. Brown, Abram Buckingham, Ambrose E. Dierkoph, John J. Donovan, Leonard E. Drager, Owen E. Duvall, John E. Edwards, Joseph L. Farmer, Henry H. Frye, Cornelius T. Gibson, Albert M. Haycock, and David O. Hayes.

SMALL LOAN FIRMS PLEDGED TO BACK AID FOR JOBLESS

Members Will Help Program Through Department of Labor.

1,200 MEMBERS PROMISE TO SUPPORT MOVEMENT

Conference Is Held Over the Need for Loan-Shark Restrictions.

Aid in relieving the unemployment situation was offered to Secretary of Labor Doak last night by the American Association of Personal Finance Companies, which adopted a resolution pledging the services of the 1,200 members of the organization to be utilized through the local agencies of the Employment Service of the Department of Labor in whatever manner may be deemed most helpful.

The resolution pointed out that "those engaged in the personal finance business are brought into intimate contact with the financial problems of wage earners and have first-hand knowledge of the sufferings and losses resulting from unemployment."

Osborne Elected.

L. K. Osborne of Columbus, Ohio, was elected president of the association. Other officers elected included W. G. Wood, of Providence, R. I., vice president; T. J. Harrison, of Waterloo, Iowa, treasurer, and Edgar F. Fowler, of Washington, secretary. The association also voted to add six new members to its board of directors, making the total number of directors now 21. Washington is not represented on the new board.

Addressing a round-table conference yesterday at the Mayflower Hotel, Thomas Cameron, assistant corporation counsel for the District, declared that Washington authorities now are convinced that a small-loan law for the District is the only corrective for "deplorable conditions" disclosed in the expose of loan-shark activities conducted by The Post a year ago and followed by investigations of the situation made by the corporation counsel's office.

Pointing out that within the past 20 years credit business has increased from less than 10 per cent of the total volume of retail sales to more than 50 per cent of the total at present, James R. Hewitt, chairman of the legislative committee of the National Retail Credit Association, declared that it is not credit itself which is responsible for present conditions, but rather inefficient methods of credit-business administration.

Cites Loan Firms.

John J. O'Connor, manager of the finance department of the United States Chamber of Commerce, stressed the opportunities presented to men engaged in small-loan lending to become acquainted with the habits, peculiarities, prejudices, elements of strength and weakness, and other characteristics of small consumers, and expressed regret that in spite of this knowledge the business continues to be confined to an uncommonly narrow and costly segment of the whole consumer finance field.

"Purely for its suggestive value," he remarked, "I would like to put forward for your consideration possibility of extending the scope of your service until it would be in a position to carry on for other types of business the distinctive kind of transactions which grow out of intimate dealings with people of moderate means."

John Marrinan, editor of Personal Finance News, pointed out that "Consumer credit is not a field for exploitation, but one in which the chance for wholesale promotion, orderly expansion and sound development are unexcelled."

ANTIMERGER LAW INVOKED AGAINST GAS FIRM'S DEAL

District Heads Order Suit Started Naming Chicago Corporation.

VIOLATION IS CHARGED OF LA FOLLETTE ACT

Illegal Control of Capital Utilities to Be Alleged in Litigation.

Corporation Counsel William W. Bride yesterday was instructed formally by the District Commissioners to file suit against the Central Public Service Corporation, of Chicago, for alleged violation of the La Follette antimerger law in acquiring control of the Washington Gas Light Co.

The Commissioners advised Mr. Bride to include the Public Utilities Commission as a coplaintiff if he considered it necessary, although the law states that the Commissioners or their attorney shall bring such suits when there is evidence that a foreign corporation holds more than 20 per cent of the stock of local utility.

Provisions of Act.

William A. Roberts, assistant corporation counsel, and People's Counsel Richmond B. Keech will prepare the bill of complaint for filing in the District Supreme Court within the next few weeks.

The La Follette act specifically prohibits purchase by foreign public utility or holding corporations of stock in local public utility companies.

Following extensive hearings last month on charges that the Chicago organization owned 84 per cent of the stock of the Washington Gas Light Co., the Public Utilities Commission concluded evidence warranted action.

Corporation Contention.

It was the contention of counsel for the Chicago concern that true ownership was vested in the Washington and suburban companies, and that the Westfield Trust of Illinois owned the latter.

The commission sought to show a long course of management of local public utility affairs by the Chicago corporation. After the hearing the Public Utilities Commission forwarded the file to the Commissioners, that suit might be brought.

"CHRISTMAS LANE" PLANS COMPLETED

Central Business Men Favor Special Lighting on Fourteenth Street.

A brilliantly lighted "Santa Claus Lane," extending from K street to Newton street on Fourteenth street northwest, was made probable last night when the Central Business Men's Association voted to cooperate with the Columbia Heights Business Men's group in its annual five weeks' Christmas shopping season street display.

The association also went on record as favoring a low, flat zone rate for taxicab operation, indicating that the charges should be regulated so as to provide a reasonable livelihood for both drivers and owners, while at the same time providing reasonable protection for the public. Leo Brill, president of the Bell Taxicab Co., and a member of the organization, advocated a rate of 25-50-75 cents in the respective three zones as a fair basis.

The Central Business men voted indorsement of the Santa Claus idea after George Ford, of the Columbia Heights group, had explained the neighboring business men's annual custom.

A. C. Smith, president of the group, and J. Nelson Anderson, general counsel, were named delegates to the Federation of Business Men's Association, now in process of organization, and Leo Brill and H. B. Chase were named as alternates.

Edward H. Young, secretary, of the body, was authorized to bring before the Public Utility Commission a proposal that the street car companies adopt a system of universal transfers from Fourteenth street cars coming south to cars running east on G street from Fifteenth and on Seventh street cars coming either way to the same line. This was advocated as making it much easier for shoppers to reach the Center and Terminal markets.

Anderson, as counsel for the group, reported that 50 per cent of the property owners on Rhode Island avenue, between Fourteenth and Thirteenth streets, had signed in favor of the zoning commission placing the block in the first commercial designation.

Police Seek Car Driver Who Struck Little Girl

Police last night were searching for the driver of an automobile which Tuesday struck down and injured Caroline Stuart, 11 years old, of 1452 Fairmont street northwest, at Fifteenth and Euclid streets northwest. The child is still under observation at Garfield Hospital, where it is believed she suffered a skull fracture.

The man, according to police, stopped his car after the accident and took the child to her home. Parents, however, failed to get his name, and while the man called next day to inquire about the child's condition, they still did not get his name. The automobile the man was driving bore tags listed to Alfred Gatz, 411 Monroe street northeast, the police said. The proprietor of a store at this address said he knew of no one by that name.

Operator Is Exonerated In Automobile Death

A coroner's inquest yesterday exonerated Reginald Sissons, 24 years old, of 1424 K street northwest, of blame in connection with the death of Dorothy Bryant, 14 years old, colored, of 434 I street northwest.

The girl died in Gallinger Hospital a short time after she was struck by Sissions' car at Seventh street and Massachusetts avenue northwest, last Monday. The accident was held unavoidable.

Virginia Railway Asks New Terminal

Public Utilities Requested to Allow Use of Site North of Avenue.

The Mount Vernon, Alexandria & Washington Railway made another request of the Public Utilities Commission yesterday for permission to establish a terminal north of Pennsylvania avenue in view of the District Supreme Court's denial of an injunction against the Federal Government, which plans to order the tracks out of the Mall Triangle.

As it has done repeatedly before, the commission denied the petition, but stated that it would be receptive to an application for erecting a terminal on Constitution avenue, between Thirteenth and Fourteenth streets.

Such a terminal could only be temporary, however, as the tracks would be removed when this section of Constitution avenue is improved next year.

Soccer Game May Cost Boy Loss of Eye

A school game of soccer may cost a 14-year-old youth the sight of his right eye as the result of an unusual accident yesterday on the Monument Grounds.

Vincent Dabbondanza, 14 years old, of 629 Second street northeast, walked into Emergency Hospital about 3:30 o'clock yesterday and told physicians that he had been hurt in the soccer game. Examination showed that the eye was badly injured and that the iris probably had been ruptured.

The lad was running in to kick the ball, but an opponent beat him to it. The ball rose swiftly and caught the youth squarely in the eye.

Bar Association Hears City Head

L. G. Reichelderfer Flays Use of Third Degree by Police.

Commissioner Luther G. Reichelderfer was the guest speaker last night at a meeting of the Washington Bar Association, composed of colored attorneys, held at the Musolit Club. He discussed the difficulties and responsibilities of the commissionership and spoke with considerable feeling of the third degree and the attitude of the present Board of Commissioners toward it.

The moral wrong involved in the third degree, he stated, is the governing reason why the Commissioners can find nothing in it to condone. "As a matter of police work, it gets nowhere, and has gradually been disappearing in all parts of the country, the better part of all police forces offering no condonation for this form of brutality."

With references to the investigation of police brutality now in vogue, he stated emphatically that it was the intention of the Commissioners to uncover for benefit of the public everything that might be disclosed by investigation of the Department of Justice, or other agencies. He expressed belief that Brig. Gen. Pelham D. Glassford would give the community a fine administration. Others who spoke were Judge James A. Cobb, Nathan A. Dobbins and Perry W. Howard, who presided.

Huge Properties Will Go on Block

Wardman Concern Buildings Worth $15,000,000 Advertised for Sale.

The largest auction in the history of the District was advertised yesterday by the Central Hanover Bank & Trust Co., of New York City, as trustee, for November 20, when twelve buildings of the Wardman Real Estate Properties, Inc., with a current assessed value of nearly $15,000,000, may go on the block.

The advertisement follows a District Supreme Court ruling, and the properties advertised are the Wardman Park Hotel, its addition, the Carlton Hotel, the Chastleton Apartments, Cathedral Mansions, north and center buildings, the Connecticut Avenue and Davenport Apartments, the Boulevard Apartments, Stoneleigh Court, the office building housing the United States Department of Justice and an apartment building at 2700 Connecticut avenue. Unless canceled, the auction will take place in front of the District Supreme Court Building at 2 o'clock in the afternoon. Vernon G. Owen, of Thomas J. Owen & Son, will be the auctioneer.

2 MADE MEMBERS OF RITE COUNCIL

S. G. Donaldson Appointed to Serve in South Dakota Office.

Sanford G. Donaldson, of Yankton, S. Dak., and Charles F. Buck, of New Orleans, were made active members of the Supreme Council of the Ancient and Accepted Scottish Rite at the convention of the order at Scottish Rite Temple, 1733 Sixteenth street northwest, yesterday.

Mr. Donaldson was appointed to serve as sovereign grand inspector general of the South Dakota jurisdiction, while Mr. Buck will hold the same office for the Louisiana jurisdiction.

Addresses were delivered at yesterday's session by Lisardo Muniz, grand minister of state of the Supreme Council of Cuba; Luis Reinhardt, a member of the Cuban jurisdiction of the supreme council; Frederic C. Webb, thirty-third degree Mason, of Trinidad, deputy of the supreme council from Scotland; Frederic B. Stevens, of Detroit, lieutenant grand commander of the northern jurisdiction; Charles H. Stillman, grand secretary general of the council, and Bishop W. C. White, of Honan, China, who discussed Masonic conditions in that country.

The Royal Order of Scotland met at the temple last night and the supreme council will conclude its convention tonight at a banquet at which about 75 members of the Scottish Rite order will be elevated to the thirty-third degree.

At an executive session yesterday the degree of the Royal Order of Scotland, which is attainable only by members of the Supreme Council, was conferred upon a degree class. Sam P. Cochran, of Dallas, Tex., new lieutenant grand commander of the council and provincial grand master of the Royal Order of Scotland, presided.

THE ONCE OVER

By H. I. PHILLIPS

THE GARBLE SISTERS ON THE MANCHURIAN CRISIS.

"WHAT'S all this newspaper talk about the Sinus-Javanese trouble?"

"It's sumpin' about a place called Manchuria."

"Where's Manchuria?"

"All I know is that it's some country Sir Hubert Wilkins tried to go under in a submarine called the Akron."

"Didn't I read sumpin' about America butting in on the argument?

"Sure you did. Secretary Stimson has told Mahatma Laval that Japan must stick to the gold standard and let the Chinese solve the unemployment problem her own way."

"There's danger of a big war, ain't there?"

"The head of the Japanese war department, a feller named Kenkichi Hitler, flew over the Chinese front and dropped bombs on the peace conference at two points. Kai Chang Briand is all upset over it and has told Mr. Hoover that unless we come in there can be no permanent settlement of the Indian problem."

• • • •

"WHAT'S the League of Nations doing about it? Anything?"

"The League of Nations has been holding all-night sessions for weeks and is split on a course of action. Walter S. Gifford, secretary to the league, thinks it is none of the league's business, while Judge Seabury is for taking a firm stand and telling both China and Japan that unless they settle the row peacefully they will ask for a writ of habeas corpus on the ground short selling is strictly illegal no matter what country does it."

"How did the troubles start, anyhow?"

"I'm not certain, but I think Manchuria refused to raise railroad rates. That caused some hard feelings, and then Bernard Shaw had to come out with a long statement indorsing Mahatma Gandhi and saying that under his dictatorship Russia was doing great and that the five-year plan would be a success, regardless of whether Alfalfa Bill Murray opened the oil wells again or not."

• • • •

"THEN what happened?"

"Well, they might still have avoided any real shooting if they hadn't mobbed Sir Oswald Mosley."

"Why did they mob Sir Oswald Mosley?"

"It came out in the testimony, before Judge Wilkerson, that he wore silk underwear and paid $23 for his shirts with monograms on the cuffs."

"But what right has Wickersham to interfere?"

"Who?"

"President Wickersham of the United States."

"You mean Hoover."

"I thought it was Wickersham. I haven't read the papers much during the last few days."

"Well, Mr. Hoover bases his appeal to the League of Nations on the fact he is against the dole."

"What's the dole?"

"The dole is a railroad that runs between Mukden and Muscle Shoals."

"Well, how does it look to you? Will there be war?"

"Only one thing can stop it."

"What's that?"

"I can't just think of his name. He's the biggest man in the international situation just now. You know who I mean?"

"Pepper Martin!"

"That's the feller!"

TROLLEYS LIKENED TO WOOL DEALERS

Adoption of Silk Compared to Growing Taxi Use by Independent.

Street railway companies are in the same position today as to competing taxicabs as manufacturers of women's woolen underwear were a few years ago when silk underthings became the mode.

At least so the Public Utilities Commission was told yesterday at closing session of the four-day taxicab hearing by J. G. McAlwee, Army veteran, who is operating a cab because he can't find any other job just now.

An independent owner-driver, McAlwee boldly answered William F. Ham and John H. Hanna, local traction heads, by reminding the commission that more than 4,500 men are now involved in the Washington taxicab industry as against 3,000 on the two street railways.

Return of meters would drive many of the local cab operators out of business, McAlwee said, both because of the initial cost of installing a meter and because a large portion of the present pick-up trade would be lost.

People's Counsel Richmond B. Keech and S. Russell Bowen, counsel of the Washington Railway & Electric Co., will file briefs with the commission before a decision is reached as to regulations to be proscribed. Mr. Keech has stood stanchly for a retention of the zone system, while the street railways want either a return to meters or a high enough fare to prevent taxicabs from competing with street cars.

Byers McK. Bachman, commission accountant, testified yesterday morning that taxicabs are taking about 23,000,000 passengers away from street railways annually on the flat rate basis. He estimated that combined income of the 4,600 cabs is $7,986,000, and that they will carry 26,620,000 passengers annually within a year.

Despite the fact that investments of the taxicab industry total only about $4,000,000, while those of the traction companies amount to $35,000,000, the cabs are being operated at an average loss of $95.55 a month per cab, he testified.

Passengers Sue Driver For $30,000 in Crash

Two suits, asking $30,000, were filed in the District Supreme Court yesterday by Lena Prawder, 2115 F street northwest and Lena Kay, 4926 Ninth street northwest. The former seeks $10,000 and the latter asks $20,000.

They charge that they were passengers in an automobile belonging to Samuel Brisker, of 726 Shepherd street northwest, on June 1, of this year, when the machine struck a pole on the Baltimore boulevard near Laurel. Both were badly hurt, and Miss Kay suffered a fracture of the skull. They claim, through Attorney Alvin Newmyer, that the machine was being operated not in accordance with traffic regulations.

Beauty School Is Sued For $10,000 for Burn

A suit for $10,000 damages was filed in the District Supreme Court yesterday against Mrs. Jessie Bennett, trading as "Stewart's School of Beauty Culture," at 921 F street northwest, for a burn sustained by Margaret McGirt, 1508 Potomac avenue northwest, when she was receiving a permanent wave in the shop.

The allegation claims that an operator in the beauty parlor permitted an instrument to come into contact with the customer's head, so that she was severely burned in several places on the scalp.

MRS. HOOVER PLANTS WILLOW OAK IN PARK

Ceremonies Are Observed Near Former Home of First Lady.

Mrs. Herbert Hoover is the wife of a President—not a landscape engineer—but when she plants trees they stay planted.

Yesterday she planted a willow oak for the children of her old S street neighborhood playground. Wielding the shovel with a vim, she scooped up four huge helpings of dirt instead of the usual perfunctory one.

The tree was really planted. To make sure no roots remained uncovered she turned her shovel over to the boys and girls, who eagerly finished the job.

Mrs. Hoover, who used to live across from the Mitchell playground, was dressed for the occasion, her leaf-brown velvet dress matched by a large leaf pattern appliqued on her hat. Her shoes and fur piece were brown. She wore no coat.

"Why, I knew Mrs. Hoover when she lived right across there," piped up one treble voice, breaking a moment's stillness.

Mrs. Hoover planted the tree "to grow up with the children," not far from the grave of Rex, the late Mrs. Morton Mitchell's golden-haired collie, whose old bones rest at the playground.

Later she applauded songs and folk dances, went into the Colonial playhouse to see the handiwork of the children, and listened to stories of old Rex, whose grave was willed with the playground.

In planting a playground tree, Mrs. Hoover followed a precedent set by the wives of three former Presidents—Mrs. Taft, Mrs. Wilson and Mrs. Coolidge.

The story of Rex is well known out Twenty-third and S street way. Mr. and Mrs. Mitchell purchased the playground site some twenty years ago for a home. Then their pet died and they buried him in what they intended for the garden of their home. Afterwards, when Mr. Mitchell died, his widow abandoned plans for the home, but made the following provision in her will when she died in 1918:

"To the City of Washington, D. C., I leave my lot on S street for a park. It was intended for our home, and our old dog, whose bones rest there, is not to be disturbed."

The playground house had been freshly painted yesterday in anticipation of Mrs. Hoover's visit, a new sand carpet was laid on the grounds, rolls of new grass were brought in to go around Mrs. Hoover's tree, and the old dog's grave was planted with violets and ivy and newly cemented.

Woman Seeks $5,000 For Injuries in Fight

Alleging that she was injured by Lewis Leppo during a fight in Capitol Heights, Mrs. Julia Grebstead yesterday filed suit for $5,000 in Prince Georges County Circuit Court. The bill was filed through Attorney J. Frank Lillard.

Charges of assault and battery arising out of the fight were tried in Police Court, but were dismissed. At this time it was testified that Leppo objected to Mrs. Grebstead coming to his house to see Mrs. Leppo.

Woman Suffers Hurt In Automobile Crash

Thrown violently against the windshield of the car in which she was riding when it rammed a machine in front, which stopped suddenly, Mrs. Bernice Gibson, 41 years old, of 161 U street northeast, suffered a possible fracture of the nose and cuts about the face yesterday.

The accident happened on Georgia avenue near Piney Branch road northwest, when the automobile driven by Mrs. Gibson's husband, Austin E. Gibson, 51, collided with the car of Miss Tonita R. Martin, 37 years old, of 3016 Dumbarton avenue northwest. Mr. Gibson drove his wife to Walter Reed Hospital, where she was given first-aid treatment.

Phone Company Says Man Had Payless Phone Device

A charge of petit larceny was placed against Lincoln J. McCarthy, 29 years old, of the Chastleton Hotel, in connection with an alleged scheme to defraud the telephone company on long distance calls, according to police.

The man was arrested at the Chastleton on a warrant yesterday, the specific sum involved being $7.20, according to Detective Sergt. A. D. Mansfield, who served the warrant on him. McCarthy, police say, is a follower of the races and calls a New York firm several times a day to give the results of each heat.

He is accused of making a key which fitted the coin boxes of pay telephones. The key would release a catch inside the box, which would ring the bell when the coin was dropped, but the coin would continue through the box to be eventually returned to McCarthy's pockets, it is charged. The case was worked up by special agents for the telephone company. McCarthy is slated to face Police Court this morning on the petit larceny charge.

Policeman on Day Off Gets in Three Hospitals

Private George B. Dean, of the Fourth Precinct, had a poor day off yesterday. Driving to his old home near Standardsville, Va., his car was suddenly struck from the side by a truck which dashed out of a side road. As a result he spent the day receiving treatment at three hospitals.

After the accident, Private Dean was taken to Staunton, Va., where he was treated by a private physician. He was not believed to be seriously injured and took a bus back to Washington. When he reached the city, however, he felt so badly that he reported to Emergency Hospital.

His injuries were diagnosed as several fractured ribs and numerous bruises and lacerations. He was later transferred to the Naval Hospital.
